

U. S. Dept. of Agriculture,

Washington, D.C. January 29, 1896.

Dear Sir:-

Please accept my thanks for your report on the prickly lettuce at Providence. Mr. Walter Deane wrote to me last year that a few plants were found at Malden, Massachusetts, but that it was very rare in eastern Massachusetts, in the region of its first introduction. The introduction at Providence is probably from the west rather than from the north.

Very truly yours,
Lyster H. Dewey.
