

Northampton, Mass.

June 6, 1893.

Dear Dr. Robinson:

I got here yesterday noon after an extremely warm and dusty ride, during which I listened to the incessant chatter of Edward Everett Hale and an equally talkative woman who sat behind me.

I find an herbarium about as large as I expected - enough to fill one of our lower cupboards.

The incentives to indoor work are not great here, with the placidly minding Connecticut, the distantly near Berkshires and the closer ranges of Holyoke and you, so that Miss Chester had arranged a long drive for yesterday afternoon with a party of her friends. I shall however report for duty this forenoon while Miss Chester is in her laboratories.

They have put me in a house with twenty times my number of college girls, a most embarrassing situation did I not find one or two who are acquainted with my own friends.

I shall probably return to Cambridge Friday, though I may not get to the Hibbsian till next week as I have an exam on Monday. Sincerely
R. A. French.

Fernald, Merritt Lyndon. 1893. "Fernald, Merritt Lyndon June 6, 1893 [Fernald to B.L. Robinson]." Merritt Lyndon Fernald correspondence

View This Item Online: <https://www.biodiversitylibrary.org/item/258582>

Permalink: <https://www.biodiversitylibrary.org/partpdf/277112>

Holding Institution

Harvard University Botany Libraries

Sponsored by

Andrew W. Mellon Foundation

Copyright & Reuse

Copyright Status: Public domain. The BHL considers that this work is no longer under copyright protection.

This document was created from content at the Biodiversity Heritage Library, the world's largest open access digital library for biodiversity literature and archives. Visit BHL at <https://www.biodiversitylibrary.org>.