

Providence, R. I., Oct. 30, 1907

Dear Chamberlain:

One of my women students, a graduate, asked me today if I knew anything about the New York schools; that is as regards the possibility of getting a chance to teach in one of them. I told her that I did not, but I knew a man who could probably tell me something about them and I would write to him about the matter. You are the man! Can you give me any information? She seems to have a preference for the natural sciences and is studying with ~~that~~ the idea of fitting for that kind of work I believe.

Perhaps you know something of the "red tape" or of the necessary preliminaries leading up to a possible appointment. If so I hope it will not be too much trouble for you to give me a little information on the subject when you are writing.

I acted upon your suggestion and wrote the "Junior Typewriter" people and today got a reply with an inclosed descriptive circular. It is certainly small enough and cheap enough, but is it good enough? Have you had a chance to see it or to try it yet?

We are all as well as usual here. I hope your mother still continues to improve.

Cordially yours,

Collins, J. Franklin. 1907. "Collins, James Franklin Oct. 30, 1907 [Collins to Chamberlain]." Edward Blanchard Chamberlain letters to James Franklin Collins

View This Item Online: <https://www.biodiversitylibrary.org/item/258554>

Permalink: <https://www.biodiversitylibrary.org/partpdf/277749>

Holding Institution

Harvard University Botany Libraries

Sponsored by

Andrew W. Mellon Foundation

Copyright & Reuse

Copyright Status: Public domain. The BHL considers that this work is no longer under copyright protection.

This document was created from content at the Biodiversity Heritage Library, the world's largest open access digital library for biodiversity literature and archives. Visit BHL at <https://www.biodiversitylibrary.org>.