June 12<sup>1913</sup>.

Dear Dr. Kennedy

You cannot know how much pleasure your kind note of the 10th gave to Mrs Goodale and to me. Its cordiality and the breadth of its invitation are more like the tone of hospitality in the days of our youth than like the more formal notes usual in these busy years. Be assured that although we can hardly run away again this summer to see you in your charming home, we appreciate to the full the welcome which we could count on there. We join in sending you and Mildred hearty thanks for your note, and we add for both our affectionate regards,

Yours faithfully

George Lincoln Goodale
