PREFACE.

In setting forth to the public this Catalogue of the Scarsdale Stud, it may be well first to state the main object attempted to be produced, viz. :—to improve the breed of horses for general use. To accomplish this end the thorough-bred race horse is the first and most important ingredient—provided he has size, strength, color, endurance, proper formation and action. We are indebted to the racing community for many of these qualifications, without which the horse of the present day would not be what he is. The young thorough-breds are exercised and partially trained for racing purposes on the track at Scarsdale, twelve miles from my residence at Fordham. I am a breeder and never have been a sporting turfman. Should I however succeed in raising thorough-breds of promise, I will let them run in the stakes for which they now are, or may hereafter, be entered, or sell their running qualities to sporting turfmen. It is a common saying that “winners run in all shapes,” but it will be my endeavor to raise a stock of thorough-bred horses of such size, color and form as to be of great value in the stud should they fail to excel upon the turf.

The second ingredient of which I am possessed is the trotting horse of America. This is a combination of several breeds with strong infusions of the thorough-bred, heretofore reared by accident or haphazard, but, for the last few years, many breeders have given that attention to the subject which its importance deserves, and for this ingredient the community is indebted to the trotting turfmen. I am also exercising, on my private trotting track, for the same object as the racers, the young trotters I have bred.

To breed horses, or any animals, properly, one must take advantage of all the best strains of blood he can obtain and not limit himself to what he may then possess. I have been a breeder of animals all my life, but during the past five years have limited myself to the breeding of horses, to which subject I have applied much capital.

Up to the present time I have refused to sell. By reference to this catalogue it will be seen that the animals possess the blood of the celebrated racers, American Eclipse, Monarch, Trustee, Boston, Sarpedon, Emilius, Glencoe, Polly Hopkins, Ariel, Fashion, Lance, and many others of the olden time, and Kentucky, Lexington and Leamington of the present day. The trotters possess the blood of Messenger, Mambrino, Abdallah, Bellfounder, Rysdycks Hambletonian, Major Winfield and Norman. I think I have formed a nucleus for a breeding establishment which, if properly conducted hereafter, will be productive of good to the country, and may reimburse me. I, therefore, invite all who may take an interest in the subject to attend an exhibition of about 55 head embracing the entire stud, which will take place at my residence, Mount Fordham, during the days of the Spring meeting at Jerome Park, from the 4th to the 11th of June. On Wednesday the 8th, at one o'clock P. M., will sell at public auction, about one-half; which will be of nearly if not equal merit with those reserved. A positive sale may be expected as the limits of my establishment will not warrant a larger increase.

"THE MARSHAL"—(No. 1.)

Thoroughbred Stallions.

Terms for the Season of 1870.

"THE MARSHAL," $50.

Half cash in advance, remainder when proven in foal. Mare's at owner's risk. Good pasture at $10 per month.

THE MARSHAL and his progeny were exhibited the past two seasons at the County and State Fairs, where they carried off the laurels. He also won the SPECIAL PRIZE of $200 at Elmira, in 1869, as the best Stallion for general purposes. 5 two-year olds, 4 yearlings, and a number of foals at the foot of the dams, may be seen at the Scarsdale Farm at all times, excepting during racing week at Jerome Park, when they will be on exhibition at Mount Fordham.

In Woodruff's "Trotting Horse of America," p. 119, it will be seen that in 1853, the two ten-mile trots were won by "KENTUCKY PRINCE," whose dam was sired by imported "SARPEDON," as was also the dam of "LADY PALMER."

The double dash of "SARPEDON" with "AMERICAN ECLIPSE" and "BOSTON" blood, as seen in "THE MARSHAL'S" pedigree, makes him well calculated to get trotters, roadsters, carriage horses and racers.
