PITY THE POOR DOGS.

The National Canine Defence League desires to call attention to the great suffering caused to dogs by making them follow trams, omnibuses—especially electric or motor trams and omnibuses—motor-cycles and bicycles, or even carriages, in hot weather, or at any time, unless at a slow pace. A horse races only for a few minutes, but dogs are called upon to gallop at full racing speed for many miles, perhaps for hours! It grievously overtaxes their hearts and all their powers. Many drop utterly exhausted, and die, literally heartbroken, by the roadside.

It is intensely distressing and sad to see a poor dog, panting as if his body must burst, overcome by heat and suffocated by dust, labouring frantically and painfully after a fast-trotting horse, a bicycle, even a motor-cycle! But it is still more heartrending to see him running after a motor, electric or horse tram or omnibus, in a crowded thoroughfare, bravely and pitifully straining every nerve to keep up and not lose sight of the vehicle he follows, confused and frightened by the medley of traffic, every instant in danger of becoming lost, and in imminent danger of death, while his careless or heartless owner sits at ease without a thought for his trusty canine friend, left alone and unaided to face that terrible strain and peril. Dogs are absolutely faithful, and will follow their masters anywhere, through anything; but they should not be subjected to these very severe and unnecessary ordeals. The above-mentioned gross cruelties often result from want of thought, and the League earnestly entreats dog owners not to inflict them upon their dogs.
