Peonies are one of the loveliest and most sweet scented of flowers—and one of the easiest to grow. They are not fussy and may be planted in full sun or partial shade. You can grow "show quality" blooms with ease!

Enrich the soil with cow manure before planting. Do not plant too deep; only 1 inch of soil should cover the eyes.

Figures following the variety names represent the rating. The rating is that of the American Peony Society; 10 is the highest possible score. All Dreer Peonies are rated 8.1 or better.

JAPANESE IRIS

We have yet to plant German Iris in a place where they would not grow—sun or shade, banks or terraces, moist or dry. They grow and multiply and yield a prodigious amount of bloom through May and June. Two firm rules to follow in planting are: no fresh manure; “knuckles up,” that is, the tops of the rhizomes (roots) should show just above the surface of the ground when planted. For fertilizer use dried sheep or cow manure or bonemeal. We have arranged our list by color classification, for your convenience. September or October is the best time to plant.
