OTTO KATZENSTEIN,

C. D. BENBOW,
Resident Manager, for James W. Tufts, Boston, Mass.

The difficulties encountered at Pinehurst of determining upon plants that would succeed under the peculiar conditions presented there and then of securing them in quantities, has led to the preparation of this list in which are offered the kinds that have been found to be of the greatest value, so that they may be procured at a moderate price by those who are undertaking improvements in this long-leaf pine region.

As many of the most useful plants here have not been offered in other sections of the country and in foreign countries, and as they are likely to prove of value, it was thought advisable to give the list a wider circulation than was at first contemplated.

The kinds of woody plants offered in the largest quantities are those that have so far been found to be of the greatest value during the four years since the nursery was first established. Of these Andromeda nitida, the fetter-bush, is a low, broad-leaf evergreen shrub with white or pinkish racemes of flowers similar to and quite as attractive as Andromeda (Leucothoe) catesbaei. Over sixty thousand of these have been planted at Pinehurst, with an unusually small percentage of loss. Myrica cerifera pumila (M. pumila), a low growing shrub with small, light-green and nearly evergreen foliage, has proven to be especially desirable. It is the shrubby sand-barren form of the common bayberry which here makes small trees. Ilex dahoon, Ilex glabra, the inkberry, Ilex opaca, the holly, have also been planted at Pinehurst in very large quantities, are reliably evergreen and are very attractive in fruit, especially the latter. The two vines, Smilax laurifolia, with its dense evergreen foliage and black berries, and Smilax walteri, with its brilliant coral red berries, are exceedingly attractive elements in the winter landscape, and have been transplanted successfully to the nursery and village. All of these plants, and with very few exceptions all the woody plants offered in the list, are likely to prove hardy in the North and in European gardens.

The herbaceous plants offered are the gems of an exceedingly interesting flora, and of the many varieties not now in cultivation some are sure to find a permanent place in our gardens. Of plants that are not natives the Pinehurst Violet, a hardy form of the English violet, with large single and very fragrant flowers, blooming continuously from September to May, and a healthy dark-green foliage throughout the year, has proven to be an exceedingly valuable all-the-year-round ground covering plant. It was first discovered in an old Southern garden.
