M. H. WALSH

Gardener to the late Mr. Joseph S. Fay

WOODS HOLE, MASS.

1901

Season of 1901.

I take pleasure in submitting herewith my list of specialties for the season of 1901, with revised and complete descriptions. I would call attention to the newer varieties of roses added, especially to my new seedlings in the Tea and Polyantha classes: Sweetheart, Debutante, and Flush o' Dawn which are placed on the market for the first time, and also the larger variety of peonies and hollyhocks from which to select.

As in the past, nothing is offered for sale by me that has not been thoroughly tested, and I have exercised great care in compiling my different collections.

It is my intention only to send out the best stock at prices consistent with the quality of the goods offered.

I desire to thank my many patrons for their favors of the past season, and trust that I may merit a continuance of the same.

M. H. WALSH,

WOODS HOLE, MASS.

That everything may be satisfactory, it is suggested that attention be given to the following hints, which may be helpful : —

Immediately the plants arrive, unpack and sprinkle tops and roots with water, after which cover with a sack or bagging and place in a shaded spot until ready to plant. If soil is unfit for planting, put in a trench, lay plants in closely, and throw soil loosely on roots, covering them well.

For Roses. The rose does not thrive in stagnant soil, so that if drainage does not naturally exist, it must be provided.

Soil best fitted is loam of a deep greasy nature which should be manured well, cow manure being best; if this cannot be had, horse or pig manure may be used.

It is better to apply a surface dressing in the autumn for a protection against frost. This should be forked in during the early spring.

Pruning. Unless a particularly cold or late spring it is safe to prune in March or April. In all cases it is necessary to cut away the dead or unripened wood, leaving only the strong and well-matured.

To produce well-formed plants it is better to prune to an eye or bud pointing outwards.

Climbing or pillar roses should only have tips of shoots trimmed, and should not be cut back.

The best time to plant in the fall is the latter part of October to the middle of November, but it may be done as late as the middle of December. In spring, April or May is the best time, but it may be done as early as March, it depending on the weather.

When planting see that the roots are not crowded, and be careful not to cross the roots; and allow no manure to be placed on bare roots, covering them first with soil.

During a dry spring or summer roses will need plenty of water, and frequent soakings of the bed with liquid manure will be beneficial.

For rose mildew, flour of sulphur dusted over the plants is a good remedy, as is also frequent sprinklings of sulphide of potassium in liquid form $\frac{1}{4}$ ounce to the gallon.

White Rambler. (Thalia.) Flowers pure white, otherwise similar to Yellow Rambler. Price as above.

Sweetheart. A new rose of the climbing or trailing variety.

This rose, originated by me, has received great praise wherever seen, and was awarded a silver medal by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society in 1899, the year of its introduction.

It is a vigorous grower, and similar in habit to the ever popular Crimson Rambler. The color of the bloom when in bud is a bright pink, which shades to a soft white when flowers are fully expanded. Blooms are very double, and average $2\frac{1}{4}$ inches in diameter; deliciously fragrant. Foliage, glossy dark green. Price, 75 cts. each ; \$6.00 per dozen.

Debutante. A new seedling originated by me, and awarded a silver medal by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society in 1900. A distinct acquisition to the popular Rambler class.

This rose is of a beautiful soft pink color; flowers borne in clusters, similar to Crimson Rambler; very fragrant; the blooms when open have the delicate odor of the sweetbrier. Flowers are double and of uniform size. Foliage, dark green and glossy. A splendid variety, and especially suited for climbing or trailing. Blooms freely in July, and also in September and October. Price, 75 cts. each ; $6.00 per dozen.

China Roses.

Hermossa. Much like old blush in color. Flowers, large and full and freely produced. A good grower. Price, 35 cts. each ; $3.50 per dozen.

Moss Roses.

Blanche Moreau. Pure white. Perfect flower, well mossed.

Celina. Brilliant crimson. Cupped and double.

Common. Pale rose. Very double, well mossed.

Crested. Rosy pink. Buds beautifully crested.

Glory of Mosses. Blush pink. Large and full.

Laneii. Bright rosy crimson.

Marie de Blois. Rosy lilac. A good variety.

Salet. Light rose. Perpetual.

Price, 35 cts. each ; $3.50 per dozen.

Peonies.

Peonies. In this beautiful garden plant I offer a selected stock, which contains selections from the finest varieties grown either in this country or abroad.

I have added several new and distinct varieties to my list of 1900, and a perusal of the list will repay those wishing to purchase. The plants are strong and well rooted, and are, with proper care, sure to give satisfaction.

A bed or border of this plant is most effective, and no one will regret taking up their culture, as they are, while in season, a pleasure and delight to the eye.

Abel de Pujol. Purple rose color, whitish reflections.

Auguste Lemmonier. Large flower, anemone form, bright violet purple, very showy.

Bayard. Beautiful clear bright violet. Fine flower.

Hollyhocks.

In this grand old favorite I respectfully offer plants grown from my own seed, and which is not for sale in the market. I have a grand assortment of colors, and do not think that the collection can be equaled. The seed was saved from plants entirely free from the disease so prevalent among the hollyhock the past few years, and great care has been exercised in keeping the different shades distinct.

Double Hollyhocks which, with proper care and attention, should reach a height of from six to twelve feet in the following shades : buff, crimson, dark maroon (almost black), French white (dusky), light flesh, magenta, purple, pink, rose pink, scarlet, salmon, white, yellow. Price, $2.00 per dozen ; $12.00 per hundred.

Semi-double in the following shades : lemon yellow, pink, white, purple, buff, rose pink, dark maroon (almost black), canary yellow. Price, $2.00 per dozen ; $12.00 per hundred.

Single, in assortment of ten distinct colors. Price, $1.50 per dozen ; $8.00 per hundred.

Pansies.

A strictly limited stock of this popular flower, containing the choicest colors. Plants of this strain were awarded first prize in New York over a large number of competitors, and have taken first prize at the Massachusetts Horticultural Society almost continuously during the past twelve years. Price, 75 cts. and $1.00 per dozen ; $5.00 per hundred.

Positively no seed offered for sale.

Phlox.

The Phlox is becoming more and more popular each year as its useful qualities become known.

I offer an exceptionally fine collection of the choicest varieties. Nothing but good, strong, and hardy plants will be sent out.

Planted in good soil the Phlox will give satisfactory results for several seasons without replanting.

Bloom in August, September, and October.

Abundance. Wine red, shaded violet, white eye, trusses of great size.

A splendid variety.

Alliance Russe. Reddish salmon. A densely spiked flower of great size and uniformity. Sturdy grower.
