Pot-Grown Strawberry Plants.

Ready about July 15th. Order Early

Pot-Grown Strawberry plants are now in almost universal demand for summer and autumn planting, which may be attributed to the fact that they can be planted with safety at a time that is most convenient for nearly all planters.

MARSHALL

Pot-grown plants will furnish a good crop of berries the following season, and they will be of the largest and finest quality.

Our plants are grown with a view to giving satisfaction to our customers, and are not sent out until well rooted and established in the pots.

Packing is done in the most careful manner, plants always reaching customers in good condition.

When planting in a dry time, soak the ball in water before planting, and don't forget to mulch in winter.

Prepare the ground the same as for any garden crop, working it deeply and pulverizing thoroughly.

Cover the plants in winter with any coarse litter, or stable manure if convenient.

Hardy Perennial Flower Seeds

The perpetual charm of hardy gardens has won for them wide and intense enthusiasm. While natural and restful in general effect their beauty is yet ever varying and ever appealing, for flowers may be found in them throughout the season. Perennials are quite easily raised from seed and can be sown as late as September. A light sandy loam is most suitable and seed beds should be shaded from the hot sun, and be kept moist. When the plants are large enough to handle they may be transplanted to a permanent place. A little protection for nearly all the hardy plants in Winter is very beneficial; for while they survive the severest frosts, they are frequently killed by alternate freezing and thawing in early Spring. Hay, leaves or straw furnish excellent material for covering.
