DAHLIA CLUMPS

The illustration shown on the first page is one born of necessity, and while almost self-explanatory, a few words will not be out of place.

A glance at the illustration will show how deceptive the words "field clump" or "whole roots" may be. Some growers propagate from cuttings, some from tubers. Each produce what is known commercially as "clumps." It is therefore of the greatest importance to the purchaser which kind of a clump the advertisement or quotation refers to, Figure 2 or Figure 3.

The figures presented represent fairly the relative sizes of the commercial Dahlia tubers, as grown in this country.

My system of growing is from tubers. These produce stock as shown by Figure 3. These are divided for planting and sale purposes, as shown in Figure 1.

In dividing, each piece passes a critical scrutiny and all mangled and worthless tubers are removed so that only stock of known vitality is sent out. By this method I can save my customers twenty to fifty per cent in express charges, without damage to quality.

These divisions usually average heavier than the clump grown from cuttings. No attempt is here made to cast reflections upon the quality of cutting stock. It is more a question of size than quality.

Prices quoted in this list are for strong divisions with from one to three good eyes.
In weight approximately 25 pounds to the 100.

A NEW DEPARTURE

Dahlias In Box Collections

For several years past I have put up for local dealers, sets of 13 assorted varieties—unlabeled, embracing a wide range of colors, red, white, pink, yellow, variegated, etc.—no two alike, and all double.

These collections are put up in a neat telescope box and are so packed as to keep without loss through the sale season. They are very handy for store trade. A great advantage is that every sale is a dollar sale, where the customer otherwise would probably be satisfied with the purchase of a few tubers only. There is also a great saving of time in the transaction. This is not inferior stock, but just the same as sells for 15 cents each when labeled; only I use stock that I am full handed on. These boxes sell for $1.00 and cost the dealer 70 cents or $6.50 in lots of 10. Prepaid price 80 cents per box.

BUSINESS TERMS

1. Prices quoted in this list do not include express or mailage; add 20c per dozen for Dahlias for postage, other articles at the rate of 8c per lb., if wanted by mail.
2. Orders from unknown persons must be accompanied by cash or satisfactory references.
3. No goods will be sent C. O. D. unless one-half the amount accompanies the order.
4. No extra charge will be made for packing.
5. Six articles of a kind at dozen rates: twenty at 100 rates.
6. Goods ordered sent by freight will be sent at the risk of consignee.

PRICES

I do not claim that my prices are the lowest; nor have I ever coveted the reputation of running a "cheap place." I aim to do an honest business and at the same time retain a profit on my investments. The past season in this locality was one especially favorable, and my stock is finer than before. Any orders intrusted to me will receive my careful attention. (See Retail Catalogue accompanying this for full list of varieties and fuller descriptions.)

A NEW BOOK

Wilmore's Dahlia Manual. An up-to-date work on Dahlia Culture.

Special prices to the trade. This book will bring you business if offered as a premium. 15 cts. per copy; 10 copies for $1.00.

NOVELTIES AND NEWER DAHLIAS

Special attention is called to this list. They cannot fail to please, both in points of beauty and usefulness as a cut flower, and the prices will be found quite reasonable. The following is only a partial list. See Retail Catalogue for fuller description.
