PRICE LIST
1917

NURSERY

Information and Terms

This Price list cancels all the quotations of my General Catalogue for 1916. While I have retained the old prices as far as possible, it has been necessary to make a few advances. I have done this only to the extent of meeting actual changes in the conditions which affect my business. I positively will not consider the alternative of lowering the standard either of quality of stock or service, and I feel sure that my friends will justify me in maintaining a high standard while conducting my affairs as economically as practicable.

Catalogues. Beginning with this year, I do not intend to issue a full descriptive catalogue each season as formerly.

My General Catalogue for nineteen sixteen (40 pages) contains descriptions of the stock herein listed and many illustrations. Kindly ask for another copy if wanted. Remember to carry out prices according to this list.

In my Catalogue of Native Plants (16 pages) prices remain as printed for plants supplied this spring. Note that when 2 plants are offered for 25 cents, that is the smallest quantity sold; it cannot include two kinds for 25 cents. If you have mislaid this catalogue, a postcard will bring another copy.

Packing and Delivery. Prices include packing for shipment, but the cost of transportation is to be paid by purchaser. If wanted by Parcel Post, include sufficient for postage and balance will be refunded. Beyond the third zone, express is cheaper than Parcel Post, and charges may be paid at destination.

Orders will be accepted, payment due first of month following delivery, but cash is preferred for small amounts.

Deciduous Trees

The old saying that "The best is the cheapest," is especially true of nursery stock. A small difference in price may mean a big difference in results. Results cannot be adequately measured in dollars and cents. All my trees, shrubs and flowers are grown on the very best of irrigated land, are frequently transplanted to insure a strong root development, are pruned and staked to make symmetrical specimens; culls are grubbed out and put on the brush pile,—where they belong.

Strictly first class trees cost more to grow than "just trees." I have been growing plants for more than 25 years, and I hope that I shall be doing the same thing for another 25 years. I am growing better stock than I did at first, and still expect to make improvements. I hope that whoever succeeds me as owner of Rockmont Nursery will do better than I have, but I am going to set them a pretty high standard of quality.

In comparing prices, consider quality, and remember that my prices include packing for shipment, which is usually additional. Six of one variety at the dozen rate, 25 at the hundred rate. No reduction from the single rate unless quoted in quantity.

Colorado Evergreens

Success with evergreens depends very largely upon the way the stock is grown, and the way it is dug, handled and packed for shipment. The growing of choice specimen evergreens demands certain qualities of soil, artificial shade for the young stock and other facilities which the average nursery does not possess.

All of my evergreens are dug with a firm ball of earth and wrapped with burlap. This means, not only success, but quick results. On account of weight, I do not recommend shipping more than 500 miles.

GRADES OF EVERGREENS.

Everyone who has visited a nursery where evergreens are grown in large numbers, knows that some trees excel others in form and beauty. In order to give the purchaser at a distance the same advantage as the one who personally selects his stock in the nursery, I am offering three grades as follows:

Specimen Evergreens. Symmetrical trees, compact and well branched, with a straight central leader when this is the habit of the tree. Trees matched for size or shape or personally selected will be billed at the price of specimen evergreens.

Standard Evergreens are just what the name implies, well grown average stock.

Number-two Evergreens. Trees not quite symmetrical, but which will make a good show from one direction; suitable for screens or backgrounds.

PRICES OF EVERGREENS.

The prices quoted on the following named evergreens are for "specimen" stock. Standard evergreens will be sold at 15 per cent less, and Number-two stock at 25 per cent less, than the prices quoted for the different sizes. Six of one kind and grade at the dozen rate; no reduction from the single rate unless unless quoted in quantity.

Hedges and Windbreaks

It still seems necessary to warn Colorado people against planting the California Privet for hedges, as it is not reliably hardy in any part of the state and cannot give satisfaction. The English or Common Privet, Ligustrum vulgare, also known as European Privet, is hardy and makes a formal hedge of close, compact habit and fine appearance. The California Privet is more easily propagated, and hence gives larger profits to unscrupulous dealers.
