WELLINGTON, KANSAS

Postmaster—If this cannot be delivered to person addressed hand to some one interested in Fruits and Plants.

To Our Patrons

We desire to thank our many customers and friends for past favors, and we respectfully solicit a continuance of your patronage. To those not acquainted, will say that the Wellington Nurseries were established in 1867, more than fifty years ago, and in that time we have tested nearly all the different varieties of fruit and find a very small percent of the different kinds adapted to this climate; that will stand the hot winds and bear well.

A great proportion of the trees that do well in the northern and middle states are worthless in this climate on account of blight. We are now growing only such stock as is best adapted to Kansas, Oklahoma, and the Great Southwest.

Our trees are all grown on upland in a soil which seems to be admirably adapted to root growth. We do not believe that a better system of roots can be produced than those found on our upland grown trees.

We have no old stock to work off. Our stock will be found first class in every respect.

We will appreciate your orders. Yours for good fruit and plenty of it,

WELLINGTON NURSERIES.
