IMPORT Bulb Book

for 1922

from the Sign of the Tree

If you want your garden gay next Spring with Tulips, Daffodils, Hyacinths and Crocuses, now is the time to order the bulbs.

They are the true laughter flowers of Spring that bring joy and gladness to the landscape as nothing else does during April, May and early June.

Of Particular Interest To You

Mayhap you don't happen to know that over in Holland bulbs are bought, sold and gambled in quite like wheat and stocks are over here.

It is one of the big absorbing industries of the wooden shoe country.

But even as all Florida oranges are not sweet, so, just because your bulbs are Holland grown, it is not always a guarantee of their excellence.

But happily for you, Holland has its fine old dependable concerns, whose owners have for generation after generation been growers and dealers in the finest of stock.

By special arrangement with one of these old firms we get the choicest of the crop.

It is these, and these only, that this Ten-Ten Book now gives you the opportunity of securing.

That is to say: provided.

Provided, you send your order to us anytime before July 25th.

Then we will send it to our Holland concern for filling. The day the bulbs arrive, we will ship them direct to you. Admittedly, other concerns do much the same thing. But few of them can give you the assurance of choice stock that we do.

Low Price Qualification

These very same bulbs that we offer you now, provided you order them by July 25th, will cost you a good bit more if you wait until Fall to buy.

Furthermore, you will not have near the list to choose from. You can easily appreciate that it would be impossible for us over here to actually carry in stock anything like such a gamut of varieties.

These low prices given include packing charges, but not transportation.

Don't lose sight of July 25th being the closing day.

JULIUS ROEHRS CO.

Planting and Care of Bulbs

All the Spring-flowering bulbs are easy to grow. But there are a few simple rules that will help you to get the best results.

A good time to plant Tulips, Narcissi, Hyacinths and Crocuses is during October and early November, before the earth freezes.

Better still, order your bulbs shipped to you as soon as they are received by us from Europe.

Then plant them as soon as you get them.

The Soil

These bulbs will thrive in any well-drained garden soil, but the addition of bonemeal will assure you extra fine flowers.

And it will also help them if you place a handful of clean gritty sand under each bulb when planting. This is especially helpful in heavy or wet soil.

Planting

How deep to plant bulbs is a question that is sometimes a worry, especially since bulbs of the same varieties often vary in size.

A fairly accurate rule is to cover the bulb to a depth of about twice its height. That is—a bulb 2 inches high would be planted 4 inches deep, from the top of the bulb to the level of the soil.

Plant the bulbs with a pointed stick, or dibber, which may be notched to indicate the various depths. Be sure to cover the bulbs closely and firmly with earth.

For naturalizing, or planting in sod, turn back the sod in small sections, work in a little bonemeal, plant the bulbs and put the sod back.

Tulips: Plant early varieties 4 to 5 inches apart, 5 inches deep. Darwins and Breeder Tulips, 5 to 6 inches apart, 6 inches deep.

Narcissi: Plant smaller sorts 4 to 6 inches apart; larger, 6 to 8 inches apart, 4 to 6 inches deep.

Hyacinths: Plant 6 to 8 or 10 inches apart, and 3 to 5 inches deep.

Crocuses: Plant 2 to 3 inches apart (usually scattered irregularly), 3 to 4 inches deep.

Forcing

For Bloom Indoors: For forcing in the house or greenhouse, the bulbs should be potted up as early as possible, and either buried in a coldframe about 6 or 8 inches deep, or kept in a cool dark cellar, where they will not be allowed to dry out and will receive plenty of air.

The top of the bulbs should be even with the soil in the pot, bulb pan or "flat."

After the bulbs have made good root growth they are ready to be brought into the light. This should be done gradually, usually not before the end of January or early February.

They are best forced in a warm room with even temperature where they can have plenty of sunlight.

Do not allow the soil to dry out at any time.

Hyacinths

With the very mention of the name, how there flits through your mind a picture of wondrous bloom colorings and a wafting of fragrance like which there is no other. In their waxen-like formation they almost seem of the ethereal, still how real they are when they glow in our garden, under our window, or in some tucked-away spot. Because of their resemblance in shape to a drum-major's hat, they have been called Spring's leader flower.

But somehow the simile has always seemed a bit too dominant, too demanding for the Hyacinth of lovely retiring disposition.

But one thing sure, I know of no harbinger of Winter's demise that so fills me with happy contentedness. That is why I am urging you to plant them freely. Our Holland friends write us that never has their crop of Hyacinth bulbs been better.

That's good news for you.

Hyacinths for Bedding

Our Special Hyacinths for bedding are particularly chosen to give satisfactory results outdoors in beds or borders where a reasonably priced bulb is wanted to permit their use in quantity.

85c per 10; $7.00 per hundred.

Tulips

One of the altogether delightful things about bulbs is that as each in turn has its bloom-fest, each seems the loveliest of all.

You and I may talk of our favorite flower, but our favorite is the one which best fits into our mood, whatever the mood is.

And who is there who does not always welcome the colorful cups of the tulips as they seem perilously poised on their gray-green stems.

What flower is there that can be such a riot of color without being a riot?

And who yet ever had enough tulips and wasn't a bit saddened by their departure, even though by careful selection they did last six to eight weeks.

As for varieties—you can have them no higher than the Hyacinth, or in the gloriously dominant Darwins with nodding blooms, so tall that they reach your very waist.

Have a bed of tulips if you will, but also be sure to tuck them here and there along your borders and among the shrubbery. Use them freely as springtime sparkle points of color.

The wide range of colors and the tall strong stems make the Darwin Tulips quite distinct; not only among Tulips, but among all flowers of the garden because of their great range of soft glowing shades.

Using them once will give you an entirely new conception of what may be done with Tulips as a decoration both for the garden and the house.

Tulips are mostly used to give a striking color effect in the garden during the Spring, and Darwins, with their richness of color, are the brightest of all. They may be planted along the garden walks, in beds, in the perennial border, in front of evergreens or in beds in front of the house, or in many other ways they are sure to give satisfaction.

The Darwins are noted for their striking colors, but of all the shades none are more effective or more beautiful than the ones ranging through pink and rose.

It is here we have the variety Clara Butt, one of the most popular for bedding. Combining this variety in a bed with either Inglescombe Yellow or Mrs. Moon of the Cottage type, creates one of the most effective of all combinations of Tulips.

The varieties in this set are particularly suitable for using in front of evergreens or shrubbery, as the bright colors make them stand out prominently.

Darwin Tulips have always been famed for their striking shades in lilac, lavender and violet. In these are represented the unusual delicate shades so often described as "pastel shades."

And it is these delicate pastel shades in early Spring flowers that seem to be the most popular for house decoration.

However that may be, they are wonderfully effective in the garden, especially when they have sufficient background of fresh new green, for pastel shades call for corresponding light shades to give them proper contrast.

For this reason, these lavender and violet Darwins are perhaps more effective in beds to themselves than in other uses.

A glimpse of a long grass-edged border so planted resembles nothing so much as a band of satin ribbon, in changeable colors bound with green.

The variety, Wm. Copeland, is probably the most satisfactory of all Darwin Tulips for forcing. It is used extensively for this purpose by both amateur and professional growers.

Having the glorious Breeder Tulips makes possible an added joy from your Tulip garden. They are the ones with the lovely deep rich hues, giving the color contrasts so desirable.

Their blossoms are mostly deep shades of bronze, brown, mahogany and purple that are all too seldom found in the flower garden at any time of the year.

They are particularly effective when used with the pastel-tinted Darwins, since they both bloom in May, and when so used both types gain in beauty and effectiveness.

In size of flower and length of stalk many of the Breeder Tulips surpass even the Giant Darwins. And, also, some of them have the advantage of being sweet-scented.

The following list, we think, gives you the happiest selection of Breeder Tulips:

	Each	Ten	Hundred

Then, too, among the many splendid colors of these May-flowering Tulips are to be had the clear whites and sunny yellows not found in the Breeder and Darwin Tulips. And it is these whites and yellows that help preserve for your garden the pristine freshness of Spring.

In the following list of May-flowering Tulips we have collected the finest of the newer varieties, all of which have splendid colorings that make your garden brighter and more lovely than ever.

These Tulips are the earliest of all to flower and are of value for early bedding in the garden. As soon as they are through flowering, the bulbs can be lifted in time to use the beds for summer bedding plants.

And this type of Tulips is the easiest of all to force and the earliest.

All you have to do to have flowers in the house is to pot up the bulbs early in the fall, store the pots in a cold frame until the roots have thoroughly developed—then bring into the warmth and light as you want them.

The double Tulips are a most striking sight when in flower with their massive Peony-like flowers.

They can be forced as easily as the Single Early varieties, but it is not good to force them too early.

This type flowers outdoors about the same time as the Single Earlies, and on account of their large flowers and bright colors is of great value.

Tulips

Our "Tulip Garden" Set of Darwins

So earnest are we in our desire to have all our friends become thoroughly acquainted with the glorious modern Darwins that we've made up this special set at a price that just covers costs.

It consists of six hundred and twenty-five first quality bulbs, in twenty-five of the finest named varieties of Darwins, including those of the Ten-Sets listed in this booklet.

These sets are made up in Holland; each variety named. They come to you in the original package. This, we believe, is more Tulip joy for the money than you can possibly secure in any other way! "Tulip Garden" set of Darwins: 25 bulbs each of 25 named varieties (625 bulbs in all), $25.00.

Narcissi

You know, sometimes I think we flower enthusiasts become altogether too much wrapped up in name lingos.

You and I both have friends who rattle off the Latin names of flowers, but who somehow are not stirred by their beauties as we are.

Now take this name narcissi, it's nothing short of a nuisance that besides meaning the nodding narcissus so lovely and beloved, that it also means jonquils and the golden flooded daffodils.

Happily, however, those with Latin-limbered tongues can in no way detract from our each and separate brand of joy that the narcissus, jonquils and daffodils give us.

For years they have been to me like ground rainbows, as they nudge their golden tipped noses up through the soil in their promise that winter is surely over.

If there be any one family of flowers that it makes no difference how many you have of, and that you never have quite enough of, it is the so-called narcissi folks.

That's why I declare it's a favor to you, in urging you to buy at least twice as many as you had at first intended.

When it comes to the delights of Springtime there's nothing comparable to the lively, dancing beauty of Narcissi, Jonquils and Daffodils. And it's true that it is an impossibility to have too many of them in your garden.

The rapid development of Narcissi, Jonquils and Daffodils during the last few years has brought forth many new and splendid varieties. The cream of these you will find in the following Ten Strike Set:

The Trumpet varieties are those big yellow and white fellows that nod and smile at you as you pass along. Sort of give you a sly wink of a "good day, sir," that makes you feel that after all it's good just to be alive.

Maybe the reason for this is because their trumpets, or crowns are longer and more conspicuous than their petals. Anyway, the most prosaic of us will admit they nod!

The following Trumpet set is chosen out of dozens of fine ones, since they're a little finer, we think, than the rest. With which we believe you'll agree when you read the list.

Forcing Narcissi is downright fun, for, from the moment you start them to blossoming time, there's always the thrilling thought that its life depends on you. Which thought makes it indeed a part of your life.

Hence, it's a wise thing to insure blossoms by ordering good live bulbs.

The Ten Set for Forcing listed below, not only assures you of this rich harvest, but gives you the best Narcissi for forcing from which to choose.

Crocuses

Crocuses

The Crocuses are the earliest of all. Long before the Jonquils or Daffodils are awake to the fact that Winter has gone and Spring has come to take its place, these fascinating flowers thrust up their lovely heads and star the grass with their silvery faces.

They will grow anywhere. In beds, under shrubbery or scattered broadcast under trees or across a sweeping slope of lawn.

They are ideal to plant on the edge of a woodland or in meadows, for these are their natural settings. Which facts, judging by their actions, they seem to know and celebrate by prolific blossoming.

But there's a "don't" to heed when planting them in grassy places. Be most careful not to cut their foliage until it has matured and die down—else you'll lose them, or if not that, they will do less well.

However, whatever you do, be sure to plant Crocuses and plenty of them. The following list will give you opportunity to have the best of them all.

Bulbs for Growing Indoors

Narcissi Paper White Grandiflora

This is one of the most satisfactory of all bulbs for growing in the house.

The bulbs can be grown in either pebbles and water or in soil the same as other bulbs.

After potting allow the roots to develop in a cool room for a week or ten days and then place in a light window in a warm room.

The bulbs will produce flower quickly and can be had in flower before Christmas.

For a succession of flowers during the winter secure extra bulbs and store them in a cool place, starting a new bowl every week or ten days.

Lilies

Ten Set of Hardy Lilies

The uses of the Lilies are manifold. They can be grown in beds by themselves with great effectiveness. They can be used in mixed herbaceous borders with entire success because of their varying heights, many colors and different flowering periods and certain lilies can be grown among shrubbery most satisfactorily.

This list of Lilies will present no difficulties in cultivation in ordinary soil. It would be well, however, to mulch them with barnyard manure in the fall.

MELROSINE

It Kills Rose Bugs

Why Raise Ros

ROSE BUGS are those pernicious pests of several species, known only too well to exasperated rose-lovers as their greatest enemies—the nasty, grayish-brown, long-legged, quick-flying beetles, about three-eighths of an inch long, that suddenly appear just when the roses come into bloom.

Sometimes they are called ROSE CHAFERS, ROSE BEETLES, ROSE CURCULIO, &c., while their entomological name is Macrodactylus Subspinus and Rhychites Bicolor Fabr.

Swarming in the garden by myriads for five or six weeks, and attacking first the white and the blush roses, they then pass successively to the yellow, pink and red beauties.

Having ruined all the roses—flowers, buds, petals and foliage, they overrun without hesitation, peonies, Japanese iris, lilacs, spirea, coreopsis, rhododendrons and other June blossoms. On occasion they also infest cherry, and other fruit blossoms, grape-vines, &c., and even ravage asparagus and other vegetables.

Thus, although known as ROSE BUGS, hardly a garden subject is safe from their rapacious appetite, which always leaves destruction and desolation to mark its trail.

Meanwhile—if you have stood idly by and have allowed them to live and propagate—they have laid their millions of eggs in the holes eaten in the lovely rose-buds, to hatch into grubs, which eventually find their way into the soil. There they hibernate over the winter, to emerge full-fledged in still greater numbers and begin their deviltry anew, when the roses bloom again. So every rose-bug in your garden is not only a present evil, but a still greater menace for the future.

Until the advent of MELROSINE, these iron-clad spoilers were rightly considered invincible; their hard shells and enormous vitality make them immune to ordinary poisons such as arsenic, lead, hellebore, and nicotine, which simply seem to whet their appetite, and are frequently destructive to plants.

Heretofore the only known remedy (?) was to pick them by hand (if you could catch them) and drown them in kerosene! This was of course but a makeshift—in truth a counsel of despair.

BUT NOW ROSE BUGS NEED NO LONGER BE PATIENTLY ENDURED; THEY CAN EASILY BE ELIMINATED. If you let them ruin your garden it will simply be due to neglect, you cannot blame it on "luck."

For, when sprayed with diluted

MELROSINE

THEY DIE! Not perhaps, or sometimes, no ifs nor ands about it. Based upon an entirely new scientific principle, while non-poisonous, pleasant and harmless to use, innocuous to birds and domestic animals, yet

To Feed Bugs!

MELROSINE

Is certain death to rose bugs!

The blooms are saved without spot or blemish, PERFECT—for not only the dreaded Rose Bugs, but the other insects as well are destroyed. Moreover, the plants are cleansed and sanitized, thus preventing disease. Strengthened, invigorated and refreshed, their blooms enhanced in color, beauty and size, are also increased in number, while greater resistance to winter-killing accrues as an additional advantage.

MELROSINE should always be used in accordance with the complete directions lithographed upon each can. In general, one pint is diluted to make three gallons of spray solution; a trial package makes one gallon. One gallon makes 20-25 gallons and will care for about 100 rose bushes for the season.

MELROSINE is a liquid contact insecticide, it must hit the bugs to kill them, which is readily accomplished with any efficient spray outfit. Like all contact insecticides, it therefore is a remedy and not a preventative, and if your grounds are fully infested it may take several seasons to wipe them out, but in the meantime your blooms will be saved in the fullest perfection.

MELROSINE made its great success as a remedy for Rose Bugs, for which it is, so far as we know, the only effective preparation, but of course, the less resistant insects succumb still more readily to its deadly power, and therefore you have in offering all the convenience and economy of having on hand one preparation to combat various sucking insects. It is effective for most species of Plant Lice, Black Flies, Green Flies, Soft Scale Insects, Rose Leaf Hoppers, Saw Flies, Japanese Beetles, Thrips, Red Spiders, Aster Bugs, Mealy Bugs, &c., &c. New uses are being constantly reported, the dilution sometimes requiring modification for heavy attacks, or the more resistant species.

The Interesting Instance Of The Old Dedham Oak

Last week I took a wonderful mountain ride through a section of the country where, when I was a boy, lumbering was the chief activity.

The second growth timber is now here and there punctuated by majestic towering pines that for some reason has escaped the axe.

And so it is as you ride through all of New England, here and there are venerable trees gnarled and character filled that have been spared.

Such a one is the Avery Oak at Dedham, Mass., which escaped not only the needs of the early settlers in their cabin building, but, later, what was the munificent offer of $70 to use its timber as knees in the building of the historic frigate Constitution.

In spite of Sam Nicholson's pleas for patriotism, Deacon Jonathan Avery, its owner, refused him the tree.

Today with its centuried trunk and massive limbs it stands as an inspiration to all.
