Extra! Extra!

Right after my price lists were off the press a purchase of Koehler seedlings was made at a great reduction from regular prices, which gives me an opportunity of selling some choice sorts at great big bargains. Take H. W. Groschner's word for it, that at least the first two varieties are very desirable additions to any collection. Grasp the two best low priced Iris buys of this year. Send in your order while thinking of buying more.

RED RIDING HOOD—(Koehler 1922). The nearest approach to red in the Iris family, and for that reason it has a place in the Iris garden that no other variety can fill. The standards are a reddish lavender, while the falls are purplish solferinored, with mottlings of brown near the base, the back of the petals pinkish lavender. Greatly admired wherever seen. Height 32 inches.

The above description rings true. The nearest red Iris.

UNDINE—(Koehler 1922). A very strong grower and very conspicuous among other Pallida varieties. The standards are a lovely shade of deep lavender, while the falls are rich velvety purple.

A great improvement on Othello, better substance, larger flower and richer, brighter, vivid color.

Not Known.

The other varieties I do not know; I selected them because they appeared to be the very best of the other seedlings. At my reduced prices there are sure to be some good buys among the lot and the thing to do is to buy Koehler seedlings while the buying is very good.

Don't Stop Planting Iris

It is a great mistake to think that Irises should not be planted after August. The ground is warm enough during September and early October to start root growth and once root action is commenced, Irises will continue to keep right on growing into December. It is a wise precaution to protect even early planted Iris and if light protection is given later planted Iris there is no doubt about them wintering over and if the fall weather remains warm a long time later planted Irises will have caught up with early planted ones.

The thing to do is to keep on planting Irises and keep right on picking up real bargains while the buying is good.

First Chance

U. T. readers always have the first chance of my limited number of small sizes of extra choice varieties and bargain sorts, for the reason that my lists are mailed to U. T. readers first of all.

It's EASY

To camouflage the Iris situation by giving frank opinions about some varieties and keep mum on cheaper sorts. Throw dust in your eyes and not mention more moderate priced mediocres. Play possum with higher priced things and shut up like a clam about the expensive
