SISQUOC DAHLIA GARDEN

SISQUOC,
SANTA BARBARA COUNTY, CALIFORNIA

GREETINGS

TO OUR FRIENDS AND CUSTOMERS

California is called the land of sunshine and flowers. There is no spot known to us that is more favorable for growing dahlias than sunny California.

We grow annuals and perennials for the love of seeing them mature and bloom, and try almost everything that comes to our notice. It was this natural love for flowers that was the cause of our becoming interested in dahlia culture. We grew them for the love of the flowers. Our appetite increased, and the first thing we knew we had over one hundred varieties. We just grew into raising them commercially. Could not resist the temptation to secure each new variety that appealed to us, so we were forced to offer some of our stock of tubers in order that we could try other and newer varieties that were being offered. We spend most of our time in our dahlia garden. All the time we have to spare, and even more than that. We live in it. We talk dahlias morning, noon and night—all the year round. We even dream about them. We take a great delight in raising dahlias from seed. It is most fascinating. Seedlings require a great deal more attention than growing from standard tubers. We are delighted when we secure a beauty, and just as eager to dig up any and all that do not show promise of being worthy of growing. Our standard is: If we would not purchase any flower that comes, we dig it up when first appearing, making room for such as may be selected for further trial.

When a dahlia from a different locality does not do well with us the first season we give it another trial, and have been rewarded enough so that we want our customers to know that they sometimes require acclimating before they will do themselves justice.

Growing dahlias is a pleasant and healthful pastime. The flowers are individuals to us. When we visit a dahlia show we inspect each and every flower individually, and learn to know them just the same as we would people.

Our advent in the commercial phase of dahlia production was heralded with so much encouragement and patronage by our dahlia-loving friends and customers that we are encouraged in preparing a list for general circulation. We appreciate the many favors shown us, and assure you of our continued endeavor to merit a continuance of your kindly support. All persons interested in flowers are cordially invited to visit our garden during blooming season.

We are always willing to offer any suggestions that may be of benefit in helping you with your efforts at growing better dahlias, or better growing, and will cheerfully answer any and all questions on which you may feel that you would care for our advice. We have no secret methods and are willing to give you the benefit of our experiences for the asking. We aim to please, and will do all that is within our power to satisfy our customers.

Thanking you most sincerely,

P. W. JONES

CLASSIFICATION OF DAHLIAS

DECORATIVE DAHLIAS are double flowers, and usually full to the center, with broad and loosely formed petals having round, or pointed tips, sometimes rolled, or curved back.

CACTUS DAHLIA. The English cactus have long, narrow, pointed petals, like a chrysanthemum. Petals usually incurved, or twisted. American cactus is a new type. The petals are coarser than the English cactus, but not enough to form a hybrid.

HYBRID CACTUS. Flowers fully double; floral rays short as compared with previous type, broad, flat, recurved or twisted, not sharply pointed except when tips are divided (serrated). Margins only slightly revolute, and tubes of outer florets, if any, less than half the length of the ray.

PEONY DAHLIA. A semi-double flower with from two to five rows of broad petals, sometimes twisted and curled. Always shows a yellow center, which, in some varieties is surrounded by small, curled and twisted florets.

SHOW DAHLIAS. Double flowers, globular or ball-shaped rather than broad or flat, and full to the center. Floral rays more or less quilled and with rounded tips.

The Hybrid Shows are much larger than the previous type. They are not so tightly quilled, having looser petals and are not so set in form as the Show type.

POM PON DAHLIAS are diminutive Show dahlias. They are very small compact flowers made up of tiny quilled petals. They do not require disbudding, and are very floriferous. Usually not over two inches in diameter. Splendid for interior decorations.

The initials following the title of each dahlia denotes the classification in which it belongs:

D.—Decorative; S.—Show; H. S.—Hybrid Show; C.—Cactus; E. C.—English Cactus; A. C.—American Cactus; H. C.—Hybrid Cactus; P.—Peony.

All who visit our garden do not know the class that all dahlias come under, so we have prepared an alphabetical list for their convenience. In this manner anybody can find the name of any dahlia as they inspect them while growing, and at the same time by use of the initials following the name, will learn the class, with the one effort. We trust this will prove a convenience to all.

DAHLIA SEED

Growing dahlias from seed is the fascinating part of dahlia culture. The seeds should be planted early, (about the middle of March), in boxes of a mixture of richly fertilized soil and sand, about 50-50, which should be well watered through and through. Then the seed should be laid on in rows, which can be done by scratching a line across the bed, then covered by sifting loose sand over them enough to cover the seed. Expose the surface to sunlight, and water (sprinkle) lightly every forenoon. Keep them sheltered from frost and freezing until it is safe to set them out in the open ground, when they can be transplanted in their permanent rows.

Our plan is to dig up flowers after they bloom that are not good enough to be considered worth purchasing. In this manner we keep only the best. This is the source of supply of all the newer dahlias that are put on the market. Every dahlia grown was once a seedling. It is by elimination and selection that our supply of new dahlias is obtainable. Growing from seed requires a great deal more work and attention than the planting of standard tubers, while the results are very uncertain.

Seeds supplied in packets of 50c and $1.00.

We will be pleased to make an offer, with a view of purchasing any good seedling grown from our seeds.

TERMS: Cash with order. Orders are filled in rotation in same order as received. First come, first served. We select field grown tubers with eye sufficiently developed to insure their growing. No Mother tubers sent out. We guarantee all tubers to be true to name. We never substitute, and will return your money if we cannot fill your order as requested. All retail orders sent out postpaid. Cultural instructions enclosed with each order.

Owing to the fact that there are persons who are too busy, or not experienced enough to make an initial selection we will make up collections of half dozen, or one dozen tubers, no two alike for $2.50 and $5.00. Or for $5.00 and $10.00. Our own selection; every tuber marked, and will guarantee fifty per cent more catalog value than if ordered by the single tuber. We grow only first class dahlias, and have a sufficiently large stock to insure giving entire satisfaction in this offer.
