NOTICE

TO ALL WHOM THESE PRESENTS SHALL COME, I, THE KING, send greeting.
Whereas by Letters under the Great Seal of Great Britain, bearing date the fourth day of January last, we did give and publish our special command, that all our Justices of the Peace, and all other our Justices, should take care to see that all our Subjects, who are or shall be in possession of any lands or tenements, should pay to us, or to the proper Officers, the sum of one penny for every acre of land, or for every hundred feet of tenement, and so on, according to the value of the same, as by the said Letters more fully appears.
And whereas we have received information, that some of our Subjects, who are or shall be in possession of any lands or tenements, have refused to pay the said sum of one penny, or the said sum of one penny for every acre of land, or for every hundred feet of tenement, and so on, according to the value of the same, as by the said Letters more fully appears.

And whereas we have received information, that some of our Subjects, who are or shall be in possession of any lands or tenements, have refused to pay the said sum of one penny, or the said sum of one penny for every acre of land, or for every hundred feet of tenement, and so on, according to the value of the same, as by the said Letters more fully appears.
We have therefore thought fit, that you should see that all our Subjects, who are or shall be in possession of any lands or tenements, should pay to us, or to the proper Officers, the sum of one penny for every acre of land, or for every hundred feet of tenement, and so on, according to the value of the same, as by the said Letters more fully appears.
And we have therefore thought fit, that you should see that all our Subjects, who are or shall be in possession of any lands or tenements, should pay to us, or to the proper Officers, the sum of one penny for every acre of land, or for every hundred feet of tenement, and so on, according to the value of the same, as by the said Letters more fully appears.
