Bonnewitz Garden Bulletin

SEASON 1925

QUANTITY PRICES

I spent the months of May and June three years ago visiting all the commercial Iris gardens in both France and England and at that time I purchased every good European variety which was then on the market. In April of this year I again visited the commercial growers of those countries in order to get their ideas of the values of the newer Irises and I again purchased all the new varieties available for shipment to America. I have, I believe, the largest collection of European Irises in the United States and many of the varieties purchased previous to this year have multiplied to such an extent that I am able to offer them to other growers at a reduction from the ordinary retail prices. On some of the varieties I can not spare more than three roots to any one grower, while on others I have a sufficient quantity that I can spare a dozen rhizomes and sometimes even a hundred.

It is also probable that flower lovers who are not interested in commercial gardens will be glad to purchase these varieties in quantity for mass planting, but the value of this bulletin will be mostly appreciated by men and women who are considering the advisability of starting a local commercial garden. Every flower loving community needs a garden where the flower lovers can purchase roots and bulbs, rhizomes and seeds of the flowers they love best.

All shipments will be forwarded at purchaser's expense. Include, for parcel post charges, five cents additional for each root, or if six or more are ordered include thirty cents for each dozen roots. On large shipments express will be cheaper.

I trust my bulletins will be of assistance and pave the way to profit for many local commercial gardeners.

LEE R. BONNEWITZ.

NOTE: This is the first of a series of Iris Bulletins to be issued at intervals during the next two months offering special Iris bargains. This issue is sent to everyone on my mailing list, but subsequent issues will be sent only to those who fill out and return the enclosed form requesting them.
