PRELIMINARY IRIS PRICE LIST

LEE R. BONNEWITZ
Van Wert, Ohio

LAST year I published two descriptive Iris lists after the Iris blooming season, and I had intended to defer the publication of all Iris lists this season until after the blooming season, but I am receiving so many requests from customers asking for price lists and quotations on certain varieties, that I have decided to publish this preliminary list with the assurance that as soon as practicable after the blooming season I will publish a descriptive catalogue. The prices quoted are for single rhizomes to be delivered after the blooming season. Experienced Iris growers will, of course, know that rhizomes shipped in July are much smaller than those shipped in September and October, but they also know that the small rhizome planted in July or August makes a better plant in the customer's garden the following year, than the rhizome of the same variety twice as large planted in late October or November. Irises planted in July and August do not usually show much growth above ground, but during the fall months they send out the roots, and store up strength in the rhizome for excellent growth the following season.

This is not by any means a complete list of the varieties I will offer this season, but it contains some of the varieties which Iris lovers seem very anxious to secure before the supply is exhausted.

I believe every root in my garden is true to name, but should any root which I send out, prove to be untrue, I will return the price paid me for it.

Terms—Cash with order.

Irises will be sent by express and customers can pay transportation charges upon arrival of shipment. When only a few Irises are ordered, purchasers may remit five cents extra for each root, and the Irises will be shipped by insured parcel post. If six or more roots are ordered shipped by parcel post, remit thirty cents additional for each dozen roots.

A Garden Note Book

Designed for

Professional and Amateur
Flower Growers

Published by

WILKINSON PRINTING COMPANY

VAN WERT, OHIO

GLADIOLUS RECORD

This form has been approved by many Gladiolus growers, and is in use by them.

HIS GARDEN NOTE BOOK has been made so that you may have a perfectly reliable system of keeping records of the various plants and blooms in your garden. The 'General Record' form is one with which you may keep the history of every planting you make or have made. By reference to it, when filled out, the past performance of every plant is known with certainty. And during the winter months you may accurately invoice your stock and plan your arrangements for the following year, knowing exactly what you have on hand. The Peony and Gladiolus Field Records provide an individual history for each plant or variety so arranged that by checking the proper items the plant may be classified and all details of its growth and blooming made a matter of record. We also have an 'Iris Field Record' which conforms to the Standard Data Card of the American Iris Society. It carries much detail and we do not recommend it to beginners, although anyone desiring complete details will find it valuable.

General Record form which is satisfactory for any flower

If you are a commercial grower and publish a catalog or other advertising literature, it may be to your advantage to communicate with us the next time you are in the market for printing. This company has done a large amount of flower printing and we are certain that you will be pleased with our service.

Besides doing much printing for the flower trade, we also produce a large quantity of other work, and should you be dissatisfied with your present printing connections, it will be a pleasure for us to quote you prices on whatever you may need.

WONDER how many of my readers have seen the new catalog issued by the Longfield Iris Farm, which is owned by Mr. E. B. Williamson and Mr. Paul H. Cook of Bluffton, Indiana. Mr. Williamson is the originator of 'Lent A. Williamson, the highest rated tall bearded Iris produced in America, and also of Dorothea K. Williamson, a beardless Iris of magnificent color. In this catalog seven new Williamson seedlings are offered for the first time, and two are illustrated in color. I am sure my readers will be as anxious to have these new Williamson productions in their gardens as I am to have them in mine. The catalog is particularly valuable because it presents a new color classification which is so simple that it can be learned in a very short time, and if it proves as practical as it appears to be, I believe all Iris lovers will want to adopt it. The catalog also contains ten pages of the most valuable Iris information I have ever seen in as limited amount of space. I know all Iris lovers will want to secure a copy of this booklet, and I feel sure they can get it by addressing the Longfield Iris Farm, Bluffton, Indiana.

A GARDEN supplying the local demand for Peonies and Irises is often a profitable pleasure. I am preparing a booklet which presents a plan for establishing such a garden with a minimum investment of time, labor and money. If you are interested I will be glad to mail a copy to your address. If you wish, my quantity Peony and Iris price lists will be included.
