TERMS OF SALE—CASH.

All purchases must be settled for and removed on day immediately following sale.

ALL books of necessity have prefaces, and catalogues of importance are not an exception to this rule, and whilst dry and uninteresting to the average reader, well repay the specialist and those to whom the subjects are of interest.

Whilst the library of Mr. B. M. Everhart covers every department of literature and science, and the following list wanders over a wide range of subjects, here and there are islands in this ocean of learning, some large, some small, but overshadowing all the rest is the collection of books on Fungi, Mycology and the Flowerless Plants. Mr. Everhart was a man of large means and was able to gratify his hobby which with long years of research developed him into a world-wide authority on the subject of Fungi, and the greatest in the United States, for 'twas he that arranged the Arctic Fungi in the Smithsonian Institution.

The library not only contains the English books, both old and new, on Fungi, but also most of those published in foreign tongues and many handsomely illustrated in colors.

In connection with these might be mentioned North American Pyrenomycetes, by Messrs. Ellis and Everhart, the greatest and best book on the subject; Ellis and Everhart North American Fungi and Fungi Columbiana, limited to forty-five sets and published in two editions, 53 volumes, illustrating by Natural Specimens, 100 different Fungi in each volume or a total of 5300, and published at a cost of over $400.00 per set.

The Le Conte Scrap Books, with their thousands of Specimens of Natural History Subjects, hand colored from life, and others bearing directly or indirectly on the same subject, costing Mr. Everhart thousands of dollars, and if time and labor are to be taken into consideration their value is beyond computation.

There are besides these many notable works, among others may be named Michaux & Nuttall's Trees of America, Wilson and Bonaparte's Ornithology, Audobon's Quadrupeds and Birds (though unfortunately incomplete) and Diedrich's great work.

In the Department of Americana will be found most of the Standard Works on History, an especially fine set of Schoolcraft's Indian Tribes, sets of Jefferson, Hamilton and Adams, various Biographies, Proud's Pennsylvania and others. Mr. Everhart's taste did not seem to run along the line of rare imprints and these are lacking entirely.

In General Literature, and especially prominent, is the Collection on Napoleon and the French Revolution, with a small assortment of Shakespeariana. The Standard Sets of the Modern novelists are entirely missing, but there are some of the very best editions, in fact many rare first editions, in both English and American Biography, Drama, Travel, Classics and Belles Lettres.

In the volumes of pamphlets, of which there are quite a number, and in the bundles of books, there are many items that would not pay for separate cataloguing, but will well repay investigation on the part of any one looking for cheap literature.

No attempt at a biography of Mr. Everhart has been made in this article nor will any be necessary, for his work as a Mycologist which gave him fourth rank among the world's authorities on the subject of Fungi, and as an all-round Naturalist and General Zoologist he is known to Scientists and known and respected by his fellow townsmen; and his library we are safe in saying is the most important and extensive of its kind ever offered for sale.

- 308 ALGAE ENSICCATAE AMERICAE BOREALIS CURRANTIBUS.
W. G. Farlow, C. L. Anderson and D. C. Eaton, Editae. 2 vols. Folio. Boston, 1878 Fine specimens, well mounted.
- 309 ELLIS. North American Fungi and Algae. Compiled by B. M. Everhart. Illustrated by Original Tracings on Tracing Paper. 4 large 4to, wooden portfolios.
- 310 ELLIS, J. B. and EVERHART, B. M. North American Fungi.
36 vols. 4to, portfolios.
Each volume describes 100 different fungi, and the materials for the illustration of this work up to the sixteenth volume, which appeared in 1886, were collected by Mr. Ellis, after which he was assisted by Mr.
Everhart. The specimens are either placed in little paper packets or a piece of bark, or wood containing the fungous growth is glued to the page. There were but forty-five sets of the work and these cost $8 per volume. 3400 different fungi are given and this is probably the only set now remaining in a private collection in the State. Arranged according to natural orders with indexes.
- 311 ELLIS, J. B. and EVERHART, B. M. Fungi Columbiana.
19 vols. 4to, portfolios.
This is a SECOND EDITION of the foregoing item and contains 1900 different specimens, arranged according to natural orders with indexes.
Cost $8 per volume. So tedious and exacting was the work of preparing both the first and second editions of this work that, excepting in a few instances, but one volume a year was produced and never but two.
- 312 EVERHART, B. M. Chester County Fungi. 1 vol. 4to, portfolio.
This volume contains 100 specimens of the fungi of Chester County.
Mounted, arranged and indexed according to natural orders, after the manner of the two preceding items. Probably the only one in any private collection.
- 313 EVERHART, B. M. HERBARIUM. Flora of the Southern States. In 3 folio volumes. Arranged according to Natural Orders. 3 vols. Folio.
In fair condition. All the specimens are carefully mounted, and the fact that they were Mr. Everhart's personal collections and mounts needs no further description or recommendation.
- 314 EVERHART, B. M. HERBARIUM. Flora of the United States.
35 folio volumes mounted and arranged according to Natural Orders. 35 vols. Folio.
This Herbarium, begun by Mr. Everhart at the age of ten years and continued until his death, in importance and completeness has few peers, nor can its money value ever be computed. Whilst Mr. Everhart's specialty was the flowerless plants, the thirty-five volumes of flowering plants of the United States, and the three volumes of the flowering plants of the Southern States, carefully cured and mounted, representing some 8000 species, give Mr. Everhart a world-wide reputation as a naturalist.
Fair condition.
