Quarantine No. 37 Is Upheld

Florists living in certain states should grow on their own Spanish Iris bulbs.

SPANISH IRIS

Were imported by us in quantities many years ago. We are now prepared to deliver planting stock. If you import these bulbs now from Europe you have to get a special permit, then you pay Consular fees, transportation to the steamer from the European grower's place, then you must pay Ocean insurance, Ocean freight, 30% duty to U. S. customs, brokers' fees in New York, express to Washington, D. C., so the Horticultural Board may inspect them, then express to your town. Also some other costs usually develop before you get your bulbs. All of this takes much time and often there is a heavy loss sustained.

Another advantage in buying our Iris bulbs is the fact that our bulbs can be delivered earlier and also they have become acclimated and will do better the first year or two when planted out by you.

VARIETIES AND PRICES OF SPANISH IRIS BULBS.

Grow some of these smaller sizes outside next winter. Frost and freezing does not hurt them. Cut some flowers the first year and force the bulbs the next winter. They can not now be imported except under great expense, risk and trouble. Our prices are right. Order now for next Summer delivery.

Prices per 1000 bulbs.

Up to 1/2 inch diameter	$ 8.00

Iris Bulbs in the South

Our Mr. James A. Brown motored through the south last Spring and found a number of florists successfully growing their own Spanish and Dutch Iris bulbs. Also several plantings of Iris Tingitana

cut from small bulbs planted outside and those same bulbs were then forced under glass the following Fall.

SPENCER SWEET PEA SEED Summer and Winter Flowering

This year we have taken on two new Sweet
Pea ranches, with a total of about 40 acres.
One of them is in Monterey county and the other in San Luis Obispo county. These ranches, with our planting in Santa Cruz county, near Capitola, will give us three chances to escape climatic conditions that some years all but cause a crop failure.

EXTRA EARLY SPANISH OR Dutch Iris

The bulbs and flowers are larger than the regular Spanish Iris family. Also come into bloom two to three weeks earlier. Very valuable and very costly in Holland. Usually have two blooms to each spike.

MONTBRETIAS

(Taken from Florists Review)

Of the same family as gladioli, montbretias are hardier and increase more abundantly. They are adaptable equally well for cutting, if grown in the field, or for use in clumps in the garden. There are a number of old varieties, like Etoile de Feu, Pottsii and crocosmæflora, which have been popular for years. The flowers on these are, however, small and in no way comparable to those carried on such greatly improved varieties as George Davison, King Edmund, Golden West, and Lord Nelson. In good soil, these will easily grow three feet in height, and their spikes are produced for months and are always well branched. They are splendid for cutting, being especially effective with autumn foliage. With a small number of bulbs as a starter, it is easily possible to work up a good sized stock in a short time, as the bulbs increase rapidly. There are few flowers better for cutting from early August until late October. By all means, give these beautiful and easily grown bulbous flowers a trial.

Regale

Lilium Regale Bulbs (Myriophyllum)

PRICE 3 to 4 inch circumference, per 100, $18.00.
