Gladioli

Knowing the happiness and contentment—rare thing today—of growing flowers, we very especially call your attention to the Gladioli if you are not already familiar with it. Not the old-fashioned, rather indifferent flower, but the up-to-date, enchanting, altogether beautiful variety of the present time.

The most delicate colors, as well as the richest and darkest hues imaginable are constantly delighting you. From the waxy white of the lily, the delicate tints of the apple blossom, the gayest colorings of the buttercup, nasturtium, aster, and even to the darkest, most velvety rose and richest of royal purple. Surely “Solomon in all his glory” was not arrayed like these.

Add to the lure and fascination of their beauty, their freedom from insects, the ease of cultivation, and the small space required and you can readily see their worth.

After having planted thousands upon thousands of them, we are watching eagerly for planting time again. Then how watchful we are to see the first spears peeping through, then as the plants grow, we admire their sturdiness, or their delicate form, as the case may be, then it is the flower spike and finally the bursting bud. Finally? No, not at all, for that one flowerspike, whether left in the garden or placed in a vase, lasts a long, long time and keeps right on opening up to the very tip top. While other varieties follow on in delightful “gladsomeness” until the heavy frosts put a stop to them. How regretfully we see them go, but that is not final either for now we look forward as eagerly as ever to see what kind of bulbs we are going to harvest. Will they be nice plump tall crowned bulbs? How much will they have grown? How many new ones? And are there many bulblets

We do so hope if you are not already a Glad grower that you may bring this happy hobby into your lives.

Cultural Directions

PLANTING

Gladiolus may be planted in most any kind of soil as early in the spring as the ground can be prepared and after danger of hard frosts. The ground should be spaded deep and thoroughly pulverized. Plant the bulbs in rows five inches deep and six inches apart in the row. The rows may be planted from one and one-half to three feet apart; or, in bed formation, they may be planted six inches apart in the row and rows one foot apart. Do not plant in the shade of trees as gladiolus need plenty of sunlight.

FERTILIZATION

If your soil is rich no fertilizer is needed, but we have found the best fertilizer we can get is bone meal or well rotted barnyard manure. The fertilizer should be well worked into the soil before bulbs are planted.

CULTIVATION

The soil should be kept loose around your plants. It is true that "Glads" will grow with very little attention but if you wish to get the best results they should be kept free from weeds and the soil loose at all times. Cultivate as soon after a rain as the ground can be worked without packing. After the flower spikes begin to show they should not be cultivated more than two inches deep.

CUTTING BLOOMS

There is no doubt but that the gladioli is one of the best cut flowers that can be grown as they last a long time after cutting, especially if the water is changed daily and a bit clipped from the ends of the stems. Cut the spikes as soon as the first blossom opens, leaving at least four leaves on the plant to ripen the bulb.

DIGGING AND STORING

After the foliage begins to turn brown, or they have been cut by a heavy frost, the bulbs should be taken up, the tops cut off close to the bulb, and placed in the sun for a few days. Then put them inside where they can get plenty of air until thoroughly dried, after which the old bulbs and roots should be removed and the bulbs stored in a cool, dry cellar and kept at a temperature as near forty degrees as possible. Bulbs should not be stored over four inches deep and not in air-tight containers.

Gladdie Boy

(Bill's Origination)

This variety was one of the outstanding new productions at the New England Gladiolus Society Exhibition at Boston this past season. The Massachusetts Horticultural Society voted it a Special Award of Merit. At the American Gladiolus Society Exhibit in New York City GLADDIE BOY was again in evidence winning the class for "Most Beautiful Basket of Glads" as well as the class for "Most Artistic Table Decoration." It is of the semi-primulinus type retaining the delicate characteristic coloring but in form more massive. Flowers are well expanded with only slight hooding effect. The color is distinctive, the general effect being a Grenadine pink gradually blending with straw yellow deep in the center. To further enhance its beauty, the petals are most gracefully frilled.

The Gladiolus, The King of Flowers

Would you like to know more about growing Gladiolus? Would you like to know how to make them bloom like your neighbors? Wouldn't it please you to be able to produce these long spikes with many flowers open, such as you see at the flower shows or in your florist's show windows? Would it be interesting to you to know what new varieties are being created; their color, size, and price?

There are no secrets in all these. If you will become a member of the American Gladiolus Society, you will receive its beautiful 32-page monthly "Bulletin," which explains all these things and teaches you how to grow them as good as the professional. The "Bulletin" will also teach you the best varieties and proper colors to grow for different effects and purposes.

Why have nearly four thousand amateurs joined the Society in the past five years? They are "in search of knowledge," and the best place to find it is in the columns of the A. G. S. Official "Bulletin," any issue of which is worth the full cost of membership.

Garden & Home Builder is published in a 20-acre garden—a vast experimental station. Here every new plant, new spray and insecticide, and new cultural method is tested. The results come to you each month in this reliable, fully illustrated periodical. It helps with every phase of garden work in every kind of a garden.

This magazine has been enlarged, its policy broadened, its name changed to Garden & Home Builder,—to help with the house as well as with the garden. With more garden material than ever, this is the best garden and home magazine published.
