RETAIL ONLY
AN OFFERING OF SUPER-GLADS

After many years of testing and rating GLADIOLUS, studies which I shall continue to pursue, I am adventuring in a new field, that of commercial bulb growing and selling. My list may not be as extensive as some, yet those offered are all choice varieties which attained ratings of 85 or better, excepting a few on which ratings are expected to be obtained during this season. These are listed only because friends who have seen them have given me unstinted recommendations, and because they are from originators who are keenly critical of what they introduce. Descriptions are necessarily brief. I respectfully bid for some of your patronage, with the assurance that all stock furnished will be healthy and true to name, and that any proving otherwise will be cheerfully replaced the following season.

CULTURAL INSTRUCTIONS

An open sunny situation. Preferably a rich loamy soil, though most any type except a stony one will do. For hand cultivation, rows should be about 18 inches apart, thirty inches for wheel hoe, and three feet for horse cultivation or garden tractor. I find three to five inches a suitable depth, with small bulbs and bulblets more shallow, about two inches deep. Bulbs should be set about twice their diameter apart in the row, planting from the time the ground can be worked in spring up to June 15. Bulblets should be planted as early as possible. Cultivate frequently, and as soon as possible following a rain. Cut spikes when first bloom is open, leaving at least four leaves per plant to insure maturity of bulb for another season. Dig from September to November, beginning with bulblet stock and finishing with large bulbs. Twist foliage off when digging, cure in sun for few hours, finish curing in dry room for a week, clean and store cleaned stock in a cool frost proof place free from excessive dampness or dryness. Do not pack away too deeply.

MIXTURE.

A good mixture is the thing for beginners in Glad culture. I believe most Glad fans started out with mixtures; with experience named ones were then taken up. I have but one mixture which contains all types and classes, named varieties accidentally mixed, pick-ups from the field and good seedlings not different enough to bear names, primulinus and large types. Not a poor one in the lot. Price 25 for $1.00 prepaid. Not less than 25 sold.
