The "Why" of Collections!

I first listed Peony Collection groups to meet the needs of those who wished help in making a selection of varieties. And this shall always be the primary "Why" of Bonnewitz Collections. Each group I offer will contain Peonies which I can recommend.

The second "Why" of Bonnewitz Collections is the saving of overhead expense. By concentrating work of digging, dividing, labeling, packing and shipping to special collection groups, the orders can be handled in greater numbers, and at much less expense than individual orders. This saving I am glad to pass on to my customers by crediting it to the price of these special collections. My saving is your gain.

Size of Divisions For Peony Collections

Last winter the Peony and Iris Growers followed the trend of the times, and at a meeting held at Chicago, they formed a Growers Association. One of the first steps taken by the new Association was to adopt a two to three eye division as a standard division, and in offering Peonies in our retail Peony Catalog, our price is based on furnishing the new standard division. Every root shipped on orders selected from that catalog will carry three or more eyes. In fact, on checking up the shipping last week, I found my Superintendent sending roots with five, six and even eight eyes. I can not promise to send this size roots on all orders, but I do promise to send three or more eyes on every order selected from my retail Peony list.

In pricing the special Peony Collections the prices are based on furnishing standard divisions with two good eyes and a well balanced root system. I have selected this size because it will grow satisfactorily and give splendid results (in my own planting I divide the roots to strictly one eye). By furnishing two eye divisions with a well balanced root system, I can pass a small additional saving on to my customers, and give values in Collection groups which will give splendid results.

Each Peony division in these special collection groups will have at least two good eyes with a well balanced root system.

Shipment and Terms

All collection orders will be shipped once each week during the Peony planting season. Shipments will be forwarded by express, transportation charges collect. If parcel post delivery is desired, include thirty cents (30c) for each collection ordered to cover postage and insurance charges. At these special prices, cash should accompany all orders for collections. Make remittance payable to Lee R. Bonnewitz.
