CATALOGUE OF DAHLIAS

LOGAN DAHLIA GARDENS

R. D. 5, Butler, Pa.

INSTRUCTIONS—INFORMATION

To those who are unacquainted with the different classes and varieties of Dahlias we would suggest that such leave the selection to us. Send us the amount of money you wish to invest and in return we will send you those which will surely delight. Also our liberal filling of the order will be more than satisfactory.

ORDER EARLY. If you delay ordering until it is about time to plant, you are almost certain to find some of the varieties you wanted are all sold.

SUBSTITUTION. Orders are filled with Field Grown Roots with varieties called for, and unless substitution is asked, we never substitute, but would suggest naming a second choice.

TIME OF SHIPMENT. Unless otherwise ordered, tubers will be shipped near May 1st by Parcel Post or Express.

TERMS: Please send money with order or in advance of shipment sufficient to cover the entire bill. We pay the postage on retail orders of $1.00 and over accompanied by cash for the full amount.

GUARANTEE. We guarantee safe arrival of all roots. All roots are carefully marked, absolutely true to name. All tubers are grown from roots, not cuttings. Should a root properly planted fail to start a shoot in three or four weeks after planting, return it to us and we will cheerfully replace it at once, if possible; if we cannot we will refund the money. IN ALL CASES BULBS TO BE REPLACED MUST BE RETURNED.

REMITTANCES should be made by bank draft, post office money order or registered letter. Checks and money orders may be drawn to the order of the Logan Dahlia Gardens.

NAME AND ADDRESS. Remember to write your NAME, POST OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE; also give STREET NUMBER or P. O. BOX as plainly as possible.

HINTS ON GROWING GOOD DAHLIAS

IF BULBS ARE RECEIVED BEFORE IT IS CONVENIENT TO PLANT THEM, place in a shallow box of moist soil until time to plant outdoors. If roots become too dry it may kill the eyes. Handle roots carefully, if the necks are broken or crowns injured it may ruin the tuber.

SOIL PREPARATION—When it is possible, apply manure and spade the soil in the fall, then spade in the spring. The soil should be broken up to a much greater depth than where the bulb is to be planted. Some even spade and fertilize 12 to 18 inches deep. Any good garden soil will grow dahlias. An open sunny location is best. Plant about 6 inches deep and 3 or 4 feet apart in well prepared soil. About one-half pint of bone meal and a pint of sheep manure or some other well-rotted manure may be mixed with the soil for each dahlia. Some sand and leaf mold may be used and especially when the soil is heavy.

PLANTING TIME—The time varies according to the locality in which they are to be grown. They are usually planted from May 1 to May 20. Never plant when the soil is wet or soggy. Lay the tuber down FLAT, surrounding it with sand or light soil; never let the tuber come in contact with the fertilizer. BE SURE AND LAY THE TUBER ON ITS SIDE with eye or sprout up. Cover two or three inches deep and fill in the remainder after the plant comes up.

CULTIVATION—As soon as the plants are up, begin hoeing once or twice a week to keep the soil from forming a crust or baking. If many sprouts come up cut off all but one or two. If bushy plants are desired pinch out the top when there are three sets of leaves. Tie main stalk to stake to prevent breaking down. Work the ground rather deep all over at first; this brings air into the soil, which is beneficial to plant growth. As the plant develops and the roots come toward the surface the ground should be worked rather shallow around the hill for the radius of at least a foot. Work the balance of the ground rather deep and bring some fresh soil to the plant at each hoeing. A little bone meal and sheep manure may be added to the soil every two weeks after buds have formed. Do not let the fertilizer come in contact with the stalk.

WATERING—Spare the water but don't spare the hoe in the early stages of growth. The time to water dahlias is after they begin to form buds, then thoroughly soak the ground to the depth of at least a foot two or three times a week. Cultivate each time after the soil becomes dry enough. Much harm may be done by watering dahlias when the plants are young and not giving enough water at a time after buds form.

PRUNING AND DISBUDDING—Varieties having an excessive amount of growth should have a considerable part of their branches removed so that they will not be but compact bushes without buds or flowers. There should be plenty of ventilation among the leaves. Large flowers and long stems may be obtained by disbudding. Three buds usually form; let the central bud remain unless it has been injured or blighted. Take out the smaller buds, when small, and then take off the sprouts at the next pair of leaves and more buds will form. Cut off all dead flowers with as much stem as you can and do not let seed pods form if you desire large flowers.

ENEMIES OF THE DAHLIA

Borers occasionally work in dahlia stalks, making them wilt, and they will soon die if the borer is not killed. On examining the stalk, it is easy to find a tiny hole he has pierced in order to enter. Make a slit in the stalk with a pen knife just below the hole, if the borer is not in that section, try to find it in another section but do not cut through any joints of the dahlia. If you cannot find it make a weak solution of Black Leaf 40 and Arsenate of Lead and pour into the stalk which will soon kill the borer. Water for several days and stake it; in a few days it will be growing nicely again if you look carefully for this pest.

The black, the green and the white aphid may be controlled by spraying with Black Leaf 40.

Thrips cause buds to turn brown. Spraying with Black Leaf 40 when the dahlias are about 8 inches high and again when about 14 inches high is an effective remedy.

Axfixo, manufactured by the Hightstown Hardware Company, Hightstown, N. J., is excellent if your plants have been attacked by aphid, thrip, or the white fly. Apply this dust under leaves during the middle of the day and the action of the sun on the dust causes a gas to form which asphyxiates the pests. These sucking insects are the cause of many stunted dahlia plants.

The green leaf hopper, a very small and active insect, resembling a grasshopper, but so very small it is often unnoticed unless the bush is shaken, which may cause dozens of them to fly. Bordeaux Mixture and Black Leaf 40 are used for spraying to control these harmful insects.

Whale or fish oil soap is also good to use for spraying. Use one ounce to the gallon. Spray with the finest spray under the leaves as well as on top very early in the morning. The early morning spraying will, at the same time, largely prevent attacks of the tarnished plant bug, a glossy, brownish insect which punctures the tips of the growing shoots, sucking the juices and thus blighting or preventing the development of buds.

One part Wilson's O. K. Plant Spray to 14 parts water has been highly recommended as a spray.

LIFTING AND STORING DAHLIA ROOTS

Three or four days after the frost has blackened the stalks, cut them down. Select a pleasant day for digging in a week or ten days after they are frosted. Dig very carefully so as not to break the neck of the tubers. Turn the clumps upside down and allow them to dry but two or three hours if your cellar is very dry, otherwise they should dry for a day.

If your cellar is very warm and dry carefully store clumps upside down in barrels which have been lined with newspapers. Cover barrels with burlap and examine the dahlias occasionally during the winter. Some place the clumps upside down on the concrete floor or in boxes and cover with about 8 inches of ordinary dry garden soil.

Divide clumps in the spring.

PRICES

We have made some reductions in our prices. All orders received prior to January 1 for spring delivery will be subject to prices quoted in this catalogue even though they have been reduced since the order was received.
