To Our Patrons and Friends:

In issuing this price list of Imported Dutch Bulbs we wish to call your attention again to the fact that our bulbs are grown for us by one of Holland's leading bulb growers and are not to be compared with stock offered at lower prices which is bought at the auctions.

VAN LAAR & COMPANY
615 Blue Hills Ave., Hartford, Conn.

A Few Hints on the Growing of Bulbs

Most spring flowering bulbs should be planted after the middle of October, unless the weather is still extremely warm. Bulbs may be planted up to the time of frost, but if planted a little sooner better results may be had.

Fertilizing

Ground bone may be added to the soil, but fresh stable manure should never be used. If your soil is poor, a mulching of manure should be given.

Covering

After the ground is frozen, it is well to cover your bulbs with leaves or other covering material, though not too heavily, and care should be taken in early spring, uncovering as the weather becomes warmer.

Delivery of Bulbs

Bulbs begin to arrive from abroad about September 15 and orders will be shipped before October 15th.

In the immediate vicinity of Hartford all orders amounting to $2.00 and over will be delivered free of charge.

Where orders have to be sent by parcel post, customers have to pay all charges.

We make no charge for packing.

Darwins bloom several weeks later than the early Tulips, usually from the middle to the latter part of May. Beautiful color combinations may be worked out with this class of Tulips as their colors are clear and include many shades.

Breeder Tulips

The old Dutch Breeder Tulips are a most interesting class of Tulips, becoming more popular every year, and will soon take rank with the Darwin.

The colors are in bronze, yellow, brown, buff and blue shades. They bloom with the Darwins but the colors are so different that they form a distinct class of Tulips.

In growth they are even stronger than the Darwin and the flowers are of mammoth size.
