Daffodils

PRICE LIST
Fall — 1928

Flatbush Dahlias are in bloom in September and continue to bloom until killed by frost. We would like everyone who loves flowers to consider this a personal invitation to visit our unsurpassed collection—an acre of the world's finest Dahlias—"in the heart of New York City." Location, five minutes' walk from the Kings Highway Station, Brighton Line of the B-M-T Subway. Or by auto, two blocks east of Ocean Parkway at Avenue P.

FRED VON RODECK
1628 EAST NINTH STREET
BROOKLYN, NEW YORK

OUR initial offering of spring flowering bulbs was so well received last season that we are encouraged to feature once more the desirability of growing two crops of gorgeous flowers on the same limited space.

After your Dahlias have been dug and stored for the winter, there is still time during October and November to plant Tulips or Narcissus, which will produce a mass of bloom next May and be out of the way in time for next season's crop of Dahlias.

We offer Tulips in the late-flowering varieties only, as they are far superior in size and keeping quality. Our prices will be found very low, and we cannot supply less than 100 of any one variety.

Our brief list of Narcissus is selected to include the very best varieties of each color and type. We recommend them especially, as they are at home in almost any climate or locality, and will thrive and multiply rapidly. As Narcissus may no longer be imported, the varieties offered are grown in this country. The bulbs are all sound and healthy, and may be depended upon to produce satisfactory results. We cannot supply less than 25 of any one variety.
