PHOTINIA GLABRA

See the picture, taken from one of the parent trees, in the front cover of this price list! It is a broad-leaved evergreen newly introduced by us. When covered with new sprouts, mass of burning scarlet, tinted here and there with older leaves of green, will be sure to convince you that this is the tree non-comparatively beautiful. It naturally grows 20 feet high with immense white flowers, which are also very attractive. It gives most desirable effects when planted between evergreen conifers. It also gives a grand view as planted individually in the lawn, trimming in any shape you may choose, such as pyramidal, standard or glove. Most unique hedges in Japan always with this plant. Although it is adaptable to almost any soil and climate it thrives particularly well in the southern part of this country.
