SYNOPSIS

OF THE

CONTENTS OF THE BRITISH MUSEUM.

ON entering the gate of the Museum, a spacious quadrangle presents itself, with an Ionic colonnade on the south side, and the main building* on the north; the two wings being allotted for the dwellings of the Officers. The architect, Peter Puget, a native of Marseilles, and an artist of the first eminence in his time, was sent over from Paris by Ralph, first Duke of Montagu, for the sole purpose of constructing this splendid mansion.

GROUND FLOOR.

The first floor, consisting of sixteen rooms, contains the Library of Printed Books. Strangers are not admitted into these apartments, as the mere sight of the outside of books cannot convey either instruction or amusement*.

The decorations of the great staircase have been lately restored. The paintings on the ceiling, representing Phaëton petitioning Apollo for leave to drive his chariot, are by Charles de la Fosse, who, in his time, was deemed one of the best colourists of the French school; and of whom there are many valuable performances in France, among which are the paintings on the cupola of the dome of the Invalids, which are ranked among the admiranda of Paris. The landscapes and architectural decorations are by James Rousseau, whose particular skill in perspective has at all times been held in high estimation.

FIRST ROOM.

ROOM I. — This room, in its present state of arrangement, contains miscellaneous collections.

In the table-cases are deposited objects relative to technical mineralogy, or mineral substances in a wrought state, with the scientific and familiar names affixed to them. ROOM I.

(CASES 1 TO 10.) Lavas and other volcanic productions, in large polished pieces, principally from Mount Vesuvius; and miscellaneous specimens of minerals of considerable dimensions, with their names and localities affixed.

The remaining cases contain articles from the west coast of North America and the South Sea Islands.

(CASE 11.) Fishing implements from Nootka Sound and Oonalashka: harpoons: lines made of sinews and of sea-weed (a species of Fucus), &c.—Models of fishing-boats, &c.: water-proof fishing-jackets, made of the intestines of the whale, from Nootka Sound.—Several caps of wood, representing heads of beasts: a bird's head of wood, ornamented with feathers, &c.: a wooden coat of armour: birds made of wood, hollow, and containing stones, used as rattles; from Nootka and Oonalashka.

(CASE 12.) Warlike implements and various tools, clubs, adzes, &c.: Patoo-patoos of wood and bone, &c. Various domestic utensils from the same part of the coast. A screen made of the feathers of an eagle: knives: spoons: eating-bowls: bread made of the root of the Cassada tree (a species of Jatropha), with an unprepared piece

ROOM I. of the latter.—Caps of various shapes and colours; some with representations of the whale fishery : combs, &c. from Nootka and Oonalashka.

(CASE 13.) Baskets made in various parts of the west coast of North America.—Matting, &c. The inner bark of a species of cypress (CUPRESSUS thuyoides) in its different stages of preparation, for making mats, articles of dress, &c. : a garment made of this bark by the natives of Banks's Island.

(CASE 14.) Specimens of sculpture : imitations of the human form : masks, &c.

(CASES 15 AND 16.) Otaheite winter and summer cloths, made of the bark of the paper mulberry (Broussonetia), and variously dyed.—A mourning dress : a breast-plate made of feathers, &c., used in war, &c.

(CASE 17.) Coarse mats for sails, &c. Basket-work and cordage.—Ornamental mats made of a kind of flag : a dancing apron, &c. from Otaheite.

(CASE 18.) Fishing implements.—Various utensils made of a basaltic stone : rasps made of shagreen : wooden pillows : adzes of a kind of jade called axe-stone, &c.—Ornamental carvings : cloth beater : plaited hair : tatooing instruments : a planting spade made of a fragment of a shield : nose flutes : a bread fruit.—Various stone adzes, hatchets, &c.

(CASES

(CASES 19 AND 20.) Large cloaks : aprons : helmets : hats : distorted human figures, &c., made of feathers.—From the Sandwich Islands.

(CASE 21.) Various specimens of mats and cloths : gorgets made of red seeds, &c.—Cordage : slings : cloth beaters : hair for ornamental head-dresses.—Fishing-hooks made of bones and shells : saws made of sharks' teeth : and other tools.—From the Sandwich Islands.

(CASE 22.) Articles of ornament : bracelets made of boars' tusks, and of tortoise-shell : assortment of shells and seeds, &c.—Necklaces, and other ornaments. Coverings for the legs, composed of shells, seeds, and teeth, used in dancing : round mirrors made of a black slaty stone, which is wetted for use : quoits, weights, &c.—From the Sandwich Islands. Small cloaks, a head-dress, and other ornaments made of feathers :—a specimen of the species of creeper (Certhia vestiaria) which supplies the red feathers.—Fans : wooden bowls supported by grotesque figures for ornament.—Mostly from the Marquesas.

(CASE 23.) Specimens of cloth, matting, and cordage.—Basket-work, plain and ornamented : screens for the sun.—Ornamental basket-work : various pouches : a dancing dress made of the fibres of the bark of cocoa-nuts.—From the Friendly Islands.

(CASE

ROOM I.

(CASE 24.) Fishing implements, hooks, and various nets: models of canoes: adzes made of shells: tatooing instruments: rasps, &c.—Various articles of ornament: necklaces made of shells, seeds, &c.: combs: bracelets: kernels of a nut, which when burnt yields a strong light.—Aprons and other ornaments, made of the thigh-bones of a small bird: nasal flutes: fly-flaps: a shuttle, &c.—Various Cava bowls of wood curiously carved: some earthen vessels, &c.—From the Friendly Islands.

(CASE 25.) Various specimens of matting and cordage, mostly made of the New Zealand hemp (Phormium tenax).—Sundry woven articles: belts, &c.—Fishing nets: hooks, cordage, &c.—From New Zealand.

(CASE 26.) Articles of ornament: combs: necklaces, &c. Specimens of carving in wood and bone: pipes, and other musical wind instruments.—Warlike instruments: conchs used in war: clubs: saws made of sharks' teeth for dissecting the bodies of slain enemies: two human hands, being parts of the body of a slain enemy. Tools of various kinds, &c.—Various wooden boxes ornamented with carvings.—Boat scoops, &c.—From New Zealand.

OVER THE CASES 11—14. Various missile weapons from different parts of the west coast of North America and the islands of the South Sea: harpoons, harpoons, javelins, spears: a wooden shield: also various calabashes, some inclosed in wicker-work: a sledge from Baffin's Bay.

OVER THE CASES 18—20. Bows, arrows, quivers, drums, &c.

ROUND THE DOOR OPPOSITE THE ENTRANCE. Various sorts of plain and carved clubs, maces, &c.

OVER CASE 21. A large Cava bowl: wooden pillows.

OVER CASE 23. A canoe composed of many pieces of wood sewed together, from Queen Charlotte's Island: various kinds of paddles, &c.

OVER THE CASES 25 AND 26. A large wooden drum with lateral opening, made of the trunk of a tree: a wooden box, &c.

Also MANY ADDITIONS BY GIFT, BEQUEST, and PURCHASE; among which are particularly remarkable,

Fifty-seven volumes containing a series of Public Acts relating to the history and government of England, from the year 1115 to 1608, collected by Thomas Rymer, but not printed in his Fœdera; and sixty-four volumes of Rolls of Parliament;

* A Catalogue of the contents of this Room, and of most of the additional acquisitions in the fifth Room, compiled by the Rev. S. Ayscough, was printed in the year 1772, in two volumes quarto.

† A Catalogue of these MSS. was printed in the year 1759, in two volumes folio: but the latter part of it was found so defective, that it became necessary to have it corrected and enlarged. This improved work was completed in 1809, and, with copious Indexes, forms four volumes folio.

ROOM VI. the whole ordered by the House of Lords to be
 MSS. deposited in the Museum.

A collection in forty-seven volumes, relating to the History of Ireland : presented by the Rev. Jeremiah Milles, Dean of Exeter.

Forty-three volumes of Icelandic Manuscripts ; presented, with a much more numerous collection of printed books, by the Right Hon. Sir Joseph Banks, Bart. K. B.

Forty-one volumes, containing the decisions of the Commissioners for settling the City estates after the fire of London : presented by Thomas Cowper, Esq.

Twenty-four volumes relating to the history of Music, which, together with a considerable collection of printed books on the same subject, were bequeathed by Sir John Hawkins.

Twenty-seven volumes of music, chiefly motets, and other church music, by old composers (Prenestini, Palestrina, Pergolese, Steffani, Handel, &c.) bequeathed by James Mathias, Esq.

Thirty-eight volumes of manuscripts, and nine of drawings, being a copious collection towards a topography and history of the county of Sussex ; bequeathed by Sir William Burrell. To these have recently been added, by the donation of John Fuller, Esq. of Rose Hill, the collections for the same county, made in concurrence with Sir Wm. Burrell, by the late Rev. William Hayley of Brightling.

Forty-four volumes, thirty-two of which contain an obituary kept by the donor, the rest being a collection of autographs, original warrants, and other documents, catalogues of portraits, &c. bequeathed, together with a considerable library of printed books, by Sir William Musgrave, Bart. ROOM VI.
MSS.

A numerous collection of manuscripts, chiefly relating to the county and university of Cambridge, bequeathed by the Rev. Wm. Cole, M. A.

In the presses $\frac{1}{2}$ and XVI. are two rolls of the Pentateuch on vellum, the former of considerable antiquity, and the latter much more recent: this latter, together with a considerable number of Hebrew MSS. and printed books, was presented by Solomon Da Costa, Esq.

Against the press $\frac{1}{2}$ hang three specimens of minute writing, forming the portraits of Queen Anne, Prince George of Denmark, and the Duke of Gloucester their son.

Against the press XVIII. hangs an original deed in Latin, written on papyrus, being a conveyance of some land to a monastery; dated Ravenna, A° 572, bought at the sale of the Pinelli library. And opposite to it is a large specimen of the reed (Cyperus Papyrus) of which that kind of paper is made.

In the second window hangs an Italian note to Sir William Hamilton, written on modern papyrus, explaining the mode of preparing it.

SEVENTH

SEVENTH ROOM.

THE ROYAL LIBRARY OF MANUSCRIPTS,

Deposited in XXXIII. Presses.

THE COTTONIAN LIBRARY OF MANUSCRIPTS,

Deposited in XXI Presses.

ROOM VII.] These two libraries are not classed in a strict MSS. scientific order*.

In the press under No. XIX. of the Cottonian library are deposited ninety-four volumes of extracts, transcripts, and notes, chiefly relating to the Exchequer, collected by Thomas Madox, Esq. historiographer to Queen Anne and King George I. and bequeathed by his widow, as an addition to the Cottonian library.

On the table, in a glazed frame, is the original of the Magna Charta, belonging to the Cottonian library; and on the side of it is a fac-simile engraving of it, by Pine.—Against press XXI. of the Cottonian library is the original of the articles preparatory to the signing of the great Charter, perfect with the seal: presented Anno 1769 by Earl Stanhope.

* Of the King's Library, a Catalogue compiled by Mr. David Casley was printed in the year 1734, in quarto: and of the Cottonian Library, there are no less than three Catalogues extant: the first by Dr. Thomas Smith, printed 1696, folio; the second, being an attempt towards a classical arrangement, printed in 1777, octavo; and the third, improved and considerably enlarged by Mr. Planta, printed by His Majesty's command in the year 1802, folio.

THE SALOON.

The dome of this apartment, painted by the SALOON.
 above-mentioned La Fosse, represents the birth of Minerva. The landscapes and architectural decorations are by the same J. Rousseau who painted in the staircase; and the garlands of flowers are by John Baptist Monoyer, the most eminent flower painter of his time. Over the chimney is a full length portrait of King George II., by Shackleton.

This apartment contains the principal collection of Minerals of the Museum, systematically arranged, the more characteristic specimens being exhibited in the table-cases, and the remainder in the drawers underneath. In the arrangement of this collection a natural order founded on external characters has been followed: not, however, without consulting the chemical composition of the substances, so far as convenience would admit. Each of the glazed table-cases has its number inscribed on the upper part of the middle square of glass.

(CASE 1.) contains the combustible substances, among which may be particularized the different varieties of bitumén, from the fluid naphtha, to the solid jet (pitch coal of Werner) and the mineral caoutchouc from Derbyshire. (See British Collection: Derbyshire.) With these is placed an inflammable

SALOON. flammable fossil substance found by Humboldt
 NAT. HIST. in South America, where it is called dapèche, which has several of the properties of the common caoutchouc or India rubber; also the retinasphaltum found at Bovey, and that from Wildshut and Bergen in Bavaria; the peculiar resinous substance discovered in digging the tunnel at Highgate, &c.—Amber, the yellow and white varieties: fragments inclosing insects.—Sulphur, crystallized and massive, with selenite, sulphate of strontian, &c.; the same found sublimed near the craters of volcanos.—Graphite, commonly called black lead, massive, disseminated in porcelain earth, &c. (See British Collection: Cumberland.)—A few specimens of black coal.—Brown coal, to which belongs the well known Bovey coal—Dysodile, or papyraceous brown coal.—Among the specimens of anthracite or kohlenblende (to which may be referred the Kilkenny coal) is a specimen from Kongsberg in Norway, with native silver.

(CASE 2.) The diamond, though combustile, is by common consent considered as the first of precious stones: among the specimens selected to exemplify its crystalline forms, are the primitive regular octahedron; the same with solid angles truncated; with edges truncated, forming the passage into the rhomboidal dodecahedron; varieties of the latter, giving rise to the six-sided prismatic and the tetrahedral forms; cubes with truncated and bevelled edges; various hemitropic crystals or macles of diamonds, &c. With these are also placed specimens of the alluvial rocks in which the diamonds occur in the East Indies and in Brasil.—Zircon: to which belong the common jargon of various colours, and the orange-coloured, considered by some as the true hyacinth, from Auvergne, Chili, &c.; also the variety called zirconite, from Friedrichsvärn in Norway, imbedded in syenite, a rock composed of feldspar and hornblende.—Corundum: which comprehends the precious stones commonly called oriental gems (the sapphire, ruby, oriental amethyst, oriental topaz, oriental emerald), of the crystalline forms of which the principal modifications are here deposited; and the common or imperfect corundum from Bengal, Mysore, China (the diamantspath of Werner), Lapland, Piedmont, &c.—As appendix to these are added, the fibrolite (bournonite of Lucas), one of the concomitant substances of common corundum; and the emery which owes its hardness and consequent usefulness in polishing to an admixture of blue corundum. Between the common corundum of this and the feldspar of the contiguous opposite table-case, is placed the andalusite, which was first considered as a congener of the former, and afterwards referred to the latter (as feldspath apyre), but appears to be distinct from both.

(CASES 3, 4.) Among the many varieties of spinel we

SALOON.
NAT. HIST.

SALOON. we have the ceylonite or pleonaste, by some still NAT. HIST. considered as a distinct species, and the blue spinel from Åker in Südermania. Another substance nearly related to this species, is the automolite from Fahlun in Sweden, being the spinelle zincifère of Haüy.—Among the specimens of chrysoberyl or cymophane may be noticed the North American variety, in its matrix of quartz and feldspar with small trapezoidal garnets.—Kyanite or disthène, massive, in separate crystals and imbedded, with grenatite, &c.: also in small polished pieces, which are sometimes mistaken for sapphires.—Emerald and beryl: several crystals of the South American emerald, insulated and in their matrix; emeralds from Salzburg. Beryls of various colours, the most common of which is the variety called aquamarine: the fine groups of these, found in ferruginous loam at Nerchinsk and Adontchelong in Siberia, are very remarkable; large crystals of emerald or beryl from Limoges in France, and from Rabenstein in Bavaria, the latter accompanied by columbium.—Near the beryl is placed the euclase, a rare crystallized mineral substance, discovered by Dombey, in Peru, and which has also lately been found in the chlorite slate at Capao, near Villaricca in Brasil.—The pycnite, referred by Werner to the beryl, under the name of shorlous beryl, and considered as a variety of topaz by Haüy. The pyrophysalite, 1 from

from Fahlun in Sweden, described by the same crystallographer as a variety of topaz.—A series of crystals of Saxon, Brazilian, and Siberian topazes, among which there are several new modifications; Saxon varieties, imbedded in the topaz rock, an aggregate of topaz, shorl, quartz, and sometimes mica.—These cases also contain the tourmaline and common shorl. Among the varieties of the former may be specified the rubellite, also called siberite (tourmaline apyre of Haüy), a remarkable specimen of which, both with regard to form and volume, is here preserved: it was presented by the King of Ava to the late Colonel Symes, when on an embassy to that country, and afterwards deposited by the latter in Mr. Greville's collection. Other red and blue varieties from Siberia, and from Massachusetts in North America; the flesh-coloured tourmaline from Rosena in Moravia (which is by some considered as a variety of pycnite), &c.—Varieties of common shorl.—In CASE 4 and the adjoining opposite compartment begin the substances belonging to the species of quartz.—Rock crystal: various modifications of its crystalline forms: small dodecahedral and other crystals, known by the trivial names of Gibraltar diamonds, Bristol diamonds, &c.; varieties of colour according to which the crystals obtain the vulgar denominations of smoky topaz or morion, cairngorm, citrine, &c.; specimens of rock crystal, inclosing various substances,

SALOON. such as rutile, brown iron-stone, micaceous iron, NAT. HIST. needle antimony, actinote, asbest, chlorite, &c.
 groups of rock crystal.—Amethyst quartz of various tints, in grouped crystals; nodule lined with crystals of amethyst and cross-stone or harmotome, from Oberstein, &c.

(CASE 5.) Common quartz: among the specimens of this widely diffused substance, which offers such great variety in its external aspect, the more remarkable are those of hacked, corroded and cellular quartz from Schemnitz, as also the pseudomorphous or supposititious crystals, principally derived from modifications of calcareous and fluor spars; and, with regard to colour, the red quartz crystals from Compostella, imbedded in gypsum, and known by the name of hyacinths of Compostella; the blue quartz or siderite from Salzburg.—Among the other varieties of quartz is the rose or milk quartz, which occurs only massive, and the prase, which appears to be an intimate mixture of common quartz and actinote.—Fibrous quartz.—In this table-case are also deposited some varieties of the cat's-eye (mostly from Ceylon); a substance generally referred to the natural order of quartz.

(CASE 6.) Besides some specimens of substances related to common quartz, such as the avanturino quartz, the flexible sandstone from Brasil, and the iron flint (a substance in which oxide of iron exists in chemical union with silica), this case contains varieties varieties of the stalagmitical quartz, also called quartz sinter. The most remarkable among these are the siliceous concretions deposited by the celebrated hot spring in Iceland, the Geyser, one variety of which is called siliceous tuf, the other calcedonic sinter. Another variety of it is the pearl sinter from Santa Fiora in Tuscany (whence it obtained the name of Fiorite), and from the island of Ischia. To this may also be referred the ceraunian sinter, or those enigmatical siliceous tubes which were first found in the sands of the Senner heath, in the county of Lippe (where, from their supposed origin, they are called lighting tubes), and subsequently, under similar circumstances, at Drigg, on the coast of Cumberland, which is the locality of the specimen here deposited. [See also British Coll.]—The hyalite is placed here, as a mineral related both to stalagmitical quartz and calcedony.—The rest of this table-case and the greater part of the following are occupied by calcedonic substances. Among the specimens of common calcedony, the most remarkable are, the smalt-blue variety from Felsőbánya in Transylvania, crystallized in cubes; the branched and stalactical calcedony from Iceland, &c.; the botryoidal from Ferroe; nodules including water (enhydrites) from Monte Berico, near Vicenza, where they occur in volcanic rocks: cut and polished pieces of calcedony, with black and red dendritic and other figures, commonly called

SALOON. mocha stones; varieties with white, brown, and NAT. HIST. black, straight or curved lines; onyx, sardonyx, &c.

(CASE 7.) Calcedonic substances continued. Among these are various specimens of the red and yellowish varieties of calcedony, called carnelian: striped carnelians, &c.—Heliotrope, an intimate mixture of calcedony and green earth, which, when containing disseminated particles of red jasper, is commonly termed blood-stone.—The beautiful and much esteemed variety of calcedony, called chrysoprase: it has hitherto been only found at Kosemütz in Silesia, accompanied by a siliceous earthy substance called pimelite, which, like the chrysoprase, owes its green colour to oxide of nickel.—By way of appendix to the calcedonic substances, are added a few specimens of the less compound varieties of agates, in which common calcedony, carnelian, and heliotrope respectively form the predominant ingredients. (See also the table-cases, Room I.)—Of flint, a well known mineral substance, several interesting varieties are deposited in this case.

(CASE 8.) contains principally opaline substances, viz. specimens of the noble opal, which owes its beautiful play of colours to a multiplicity of imperceptible fissures in its interior; the Mexican sun or fire opal; the common opal, a translucent white variety of which, appearing yellow or red when held between the eye and the light, is called girasol; the semi-opal, agreeing in its principal cipal characters with the common ; specimens of those varieties which, having the property of becoming transparent when immersed in water, are called hydrophanes, and vulgarly oculus mundi ; wood-opal, or opalised wood ; jasp-opal, referred by some authors to jasper ; the menilite, called also liver-opal, found at Menil-Montant, near Paris, in a bed of adhesive slate, a specimen of which is added. Some varieties of cacholong may likewise be referred to the opal tribe.—The remainder of this case is occupied by the siliceous substance called hornstone, divided into the conchoidal and splintery varieties ; among these are the remarkable pseudomorphous crystals from Schneeberg in Saxony, derived from various modifications of calcareous spar, and generally referred to conchoidal hornstone ; also some beautiful specimens of wood converted into hornstone, being the wood-stone of Werner ; hornstone balls, from Haunstadt in Bavaria.—Flinty slate, &c.

(CASE 9.) In this case are deposited (besides the specimens of rock crystals continued from the opposite compartment of the table-case) the different varieties or subspecies of jasper, such as they are enumerated by Werner, viz. the globular or Egyptian jasper, found chiefly near Cairo, in rounded pieces, which appear not to owe their form to rolling, but to be original and produced by infiltration ; the ribbon jasper, or striped jasper, the finest varieties of which are found in Siberia ;

SALOON. beria: the variously-tinted common jasper; the NAT. HIST. agate jasper, found only in agate veins; the porcelain jasper, which is produced by the action of subterranean fire on clay-slate. Also the substances constituting the obsidian tribe, such as the pitch-stone, which is often confounded with semi-opal;—the pearl-stone, so called from its colour and the small globular concretions of which it is composed;—the obsidian, a remarkable variety of which is that found in globular pieces, at Ochotsk in Siberia, near the small river Marekanka, from which it has obtained the name of Marekanite; pumice, which is not in all cases of volcanic origin. Near these substances are placed some specimens of the mineral called by some iolite and pelionite, and dichroite from its exhibiting two different colours when viewed in different positions; together with the blue quartz from Orayervi in Finland, called also steinheilite.

(CASE 10.) This case contains zeolitic substances, viz. several varieties of scolicite and of mesotype, among the specimens of which may be particularized those with perfect prismatic-acicular crystals (needle-stone of Werner); the delicately fibrous varieties; the red compact variety, by some called crocalite, &c.—The natrolite of Klaproth, of which a few specimens are added, is by some considered as a variety of mesotype.—Stilbite, mostly crystallized: among the coloured varieties is the red from Fassa (Fassait).—Apophyllite, some varieties of which have been been mistaken for mesotype and stilbite.—Anal-cime, among the crystallized varieties of which are remarkably large specimens of the trapezoidal modification.—Chabasite or chabasie, in groups of primitive rhombohedral and modified crystals.

(CASE 11.) Continuation of zeolitic substances:—prehnite, crystallized and massive, the grass-green variety of which, discovered in South Africa by the Abbé Rochon, has been mistaken for chrysolite, chrysoprase, and even emerald. To this belongs also the koupholite of Vauquelin, and probably also the karpholite of Werner. The substance known by the name of Chinese jade (or stone You, see Room I. table 7.) may perhaps likewise be referred to prehnite.—Harmotome, or cross stone, both in simple and cruciform crystals, from Oberstein, Strontian, and Andreasberg in the Hartz, which last locality has procured to this substance the names of andreolite and hercinite.—Among those substances deposited in this case which are in some respects related to zeolitic minerals, may be observed the lazulite or lapis lazuli, which furnishes the valuable pigment known by the name of ultramarine; and the haiiynne, a mineral so named in honour of the late celebrated French crystallographer. Intermediate between the zeolitic substances and feldspar, are placed some mineral species which cannot be referred to either of these tribes: among them are the meionite and sommite, both from Vesuvius; the scapolite, a Norwegian mineral, of

SALOON. which several varieties are known under different names, such as the vitreous scapolite, the compact and the common scapolite (called also wernerite, after the late illustrious professor of Freiberg); the talc-like scapolite (micarelle of some authors), &c.; the bergmannite and the fettstein of Werner are related to these.—Distinct from these is the sodalite, from Greenland, and a new concomitant substance, the eudialyte of Stromeyer, composed chiefly of silica, zirconia, and soda.—In this table-case also begins the suite of specimens of feldspar, which is continued in the next case; specimens of compact feldspar, among which are, the red variety from Sweden, frequently mistaken for hornstone; the weissstein of Werner; the feldspath compacte tenace of Haüy, which is the same as the jade of Saussure, called by some saussurite, &c.

(CASE 12.) In this glass-case are deposited the different varieties of the Labrador feldspar, the naker-feldspar, or adularia, and the common feldspar.—Among the specimens of Labrador feldspar (more properly called opalescent feldspar, being remarkable for the beautiful play of colours which it exhibits) are several from the transition syenite of Laurwig in Norway.—The adularia (which stands in the same relation to common feldspar, as rock crystal to common quartz) is principally found on Mount St. Gothard, but not in the valley of Adula, from which its name is improperly derived:—this variety when cut en cabochon (such as the stone set in a ring) is commonly called moon-stone ; modifications of crystals of this variety.—Common feldspar, variously crystallized and massive, among the latter of which may be particularized the fine green variety from Siberia, called amazon-stone ; feldspar with imbedded fragments of quartz (graphic stone) from Siberia, &c.—To these are added a few specimens of disintegrated feldspar, which passes into porcelain earth.—The chiastolite or macle, placed in this table, is referred by Werner to feldspar, under the name of hollow spar. Petalite and spodumen or triphane, substances in which lithium, a new mineral alkali, has been discovered.—Indianite, one of the matrices of the common corundum of the Carnatic.—Albite.—As intermediate between the contents of this and those of the next case may be considered the leucite (amphigène of Haüy), of which several varieties are here deposited.

(CASE 13.) is principally appropriated to the substances of the garnet tribe. Among the more remarkable varieties of the noble garnet is that in curved-lamellar concretions, found massive in Greenland.—The pyrope, or Bohemian garnet, in rounded grains, &c.—The common garnet, the predominant colours of which are brown and green : among these may be mentioned the variety which, from its resemblance to resin, is called colophonite. To this also belongs the elegant

SALOON. gant variety from Kamschatka, denominated NAT. HIST. grossular, on account of the resemblance which its separate crystals bear to a gooseberry.—Tra-pezoïdal and emarginated crystals of the black garnets, called melanite, found particularly in the neighbourhood of Frascati.—The allochroite, also called splintery garnet, from Drammen in Norway.—The aplome, whose dodecahedral crystals differ from those of the garnet in being streaked in the direction of the short diagonal of their rhomboidal planes.—The cinnamon-stone from Ceylon, a mineral, which was supposed to contain zirconia, till a more accurate analysis proved it to be a substance nearly allied to garnet and vesuvian : some polished pieces of the same, being the true hyacinth.—Among the specimens of vesuvian or idocrase, the more conspicuous are the large beautiful crystals (the unibinaire of Haüy) discovered by Laxmann on the banks of the Vilui in Kamschatka, imbedded in a steatitic rock ;
 those from Vesuvius, where this substance occurs accompanied by other volcanic ejections, have, in Italy, obtained the appellation of volcanic gems, hyacinths and chrysolites.—Gehlenite.—
 In this case, though not very closely allied to the garnet tribe, is also deposited the staurolite (called grenatite in Switzerland) : besides several varieties of the cruciform and other crystals from Britany, we have modifications of the simple crystals in mica-slate from St. Gothard, accompanied by prisms of kyanite perfectly similar to those of the staurolite, and sometimes longitudinally grown together with them.

(CASE 14.) The contents of this table-case are:—chrysolite and olivine (péridot of Haüy), the former crystallized, and in cut and polished pieces; the latter as grains, in basaltic rocks and separate: to which is added some of the olivine-like substance found in the cells of the Siberian meteoric iron (CASE 49.)—The substances which have been described under the names of thallite, arendalite, akantikone, delphinite, &c. are Haüy's epidote, and Werner's pistacite: of which several specimens are deposited in this case. Among these is also the violet manganesiferous epidote, referred by some to the ores of manganese.—Zoisite.—Axinite, variously crystallized, from Dauphiné, &c.—The pyroxène tribe, comprising the augite, in separate crystals and imbedded in Vesuvian lava, together with groups of well defined crystals from Arendahl in Norway, where this substance occurs in primitive rocks, and the granular augite or coccolite; the varieties of diopside (now pyroxène) called alalite and musite; the salite or malacolite, a species perfectly distinct from the common augite or pyroxène.—The remaining substances in this case relate to the hornblende—or amphibolic minerals, which are continued in the two next cases: basaltic hornblende from Vesuvius, common hornblende, &c.

SALOON. (CASE 15, AND PART OF 16.) Continuation of
 NAT. HIST. amphibolic minerals. Only a few specimens of that widely diffused substance, the common hornblende, could be deposited in this part of the collection.—Between this and the substance called diallagite, or diallage (in the adjoining and opposite case, No. 16), are placed the hypersthène of Haüy (Labrador hornblende of Werner) and the anthophyllite, a substance from Kongsberg in Norway, nearly allied to them.—The actinote or strahlstein (of which we have the common, glassy, and fibrous varieties) likewise passes into substances contained in the opposite glass-case, especially the amianthoide from Oisans and the fibrous actinote, which is closely allied to some varieties of common asbest.—The tremolite (formerly grammatite of Haüy, but now referred by this mineralogist to his amphibole): among the specimens of this substance are, the fine fibrous variety, not unlike in appearance to some varieties of asbest in the opposite glass-case; glassy tremolite in dolomite and granular limestone (see the adjoining table-case, No. 21).—The rhæticite, a mineral, according to Werner, intermediate between tremolite and kyanite.

(CASE 16.) Asbest and amianth, with other related substances: among these may be observed specimens illustrative of the transition from a very close to a loose fibrous structure; various specimens of the flexible asbest or amianth, with some antique antique incombustible cloth, paper, &c. made of it; the varieties called mountain wood, mountain cork, or nectic asbest, &c. separate, and in combination with other substances.—As bordering on the varieties of actinote in the adjoining opposite glass-case, we have here the diallagite (diallage) the green variety of which, called also smaragdite, is considered by Werner as a granular variety of actinote: in combination with saussurite (a variety of compact feldspar) it constitutes the verde di Corsica. Another variety is called omphacite by Werner.—In its vicinity is also placed the axe-stone or Punamu-stone, thus called after one of the New Zealand islands, where the natives make hatchets, idols, &c. of it: it is generally considered as a variety of jade.

(CASE 17.) This case is occupied by the micaceous and talcose substances.—Among the varieties of mica or glimmer, may be specified those that exhibit perfectly transparent crystals; the beautiful red and yellow varieties, together with those of a metallic lustre: diverging-radiated mica, &c.—Pinite (micarelle of Kirwan).—Lepidolite; with which is placed a specimen of what is considered as compact lepidolite.—Intermediate between mica and talc, is the chlorite, among the varieties of which are the earthy, common, foliated, and the slaty: the last of these, with octahedral magnetic ironstone, bitterspar, &c.—Of talc we have the common or Venetian

SALOON. (which enters the composition of cosmetics) and
NAT. HIST. the indurated talc: to the former of these may also be referred the beautiful green variety from Siberia, composed of distinct groups of small diverging-radiated laminæ.—Potstone, or ollite, the lapis comensis of the ancients, from Como in the Milanese, where it is turned on the lathe into most durable culinary vessels.—In this case is also placed a substance from New York, which has very much the appearance of white laminar talc, but is a hydrate of magnesia.

(CASE 18.) contains steatitic substances.—Noble serpentine, which, in combination with primitive limestone, constitutes the marmo verde antico; common serpentine, among the varieties of which are best known those from Bareuth and from Zöblitz in Saxony, where they are manufactured into vases and various other articles; serpentine with garnets, magnetic ironstone, asbest, slaty talc, &c.—Triclasite or fahlunite, from Sweden and Greenland.—Varieties of steatite, among which the most remarkable are, that of a yellowish green colour from Greenland, and that from Göpfersgrün in Bareuth, with small crystals of other mineral substances, converted into, and forming part of, the massive steatite.—To these are added some substances which are allied to the preceding, though differing from them with regard to their chemical composition; such as the agalmatolite of Klaproth (bildstein of Werner, talc graphique of Haüy), employed by the Chinese for carving images, vessels, &c.—The keffekil or meerschaut, from Natolia, of which pipe bowls are made; and a related substance, called keffekilite by Dr. Fischer, who discovered it in the Crimea.—Lithomarge, the more remarkable varieties of which are, that of a reddish yellow colour, from Rochlitz, in porphyry; the fine purplish blue variety from Planitz, called terra miraculosa Saxonica by old writers.—Fuller's earth.—Bole; green earth, &c.

(CASES 19 AND 20.) In these and the three following table-cases are deposited the various carbonates of lime.—Crystallized carbonate of lime or calcareous spar; specimens illustrative of the cleavage, supernumerary joints, colour, &c.; primitive rhombohedron; various secondary rhombohedrons: among these the most common, but not the least striking, is the inverse rhombohedron, so called from being as it were an inversion of the primitive; the same with a considerable admixture of quartz, commonly called crystallized sandstone of Fontainebleau. Prismatic and pyramidal modifications of the same, among the former of which are the beautiful varieties from the Hartz, Salzburg, &c.*

 granular and compact limestone (marbles) ; massive magnesian limestone, called dolomite, and (contiguous to it, in the opposite case) the crystallized magnesian limestone, called bitterspar, in chlorite slate ; a variety of the same called tharan- dite, &c.—The substances called gurhovian, from Gurhof in Lower Austria : and conite, composed of the carbonates of lime and magnesia.—Fibrous limestone, the finest variety of which is that from Cumberland, and Andrarum in Sweden, with pearly lustre, which has obtained the name of satin spar.

(CASE 22 AND PART OF 23.) Various specimens of stalactical limestone, some varieties of which bear the name of alabaster in common with compact gypsum ; the peculiar variety called pea stone, from the hot springs of Carlsbad in Bohemia, and the white variety found in the bed of a small river near Tivoli, and known by the name of confetti di Tivoli.—Calcareous tuf ; to which are added some casts of medals, made at the baths of San-Felippe in Tuscany, where moulds of coins, gems, &c. are placed in convenient situations to receive the calcareous deposition.—Shell lime- stone, the most esteemed variety of which is that from Carinthia, called lumachella or fire marble (see Room I. table-case) ; and some varieties of anthraconite, called also madrepore stone, from a distant distant resemblance this substance bears to some petrifications of the order of corals; fetid limestone, &c.

NAT. HIST.

(CASES 23 AND 24.) These cases are occupied by suites of brown spar and of arragonite. Among the specimens of the former are many of the scarce fibrous varieties, which were formerly referred to common fibrous limestone; among the latter are Werner's columnar and acicular arragonite, as also fine specimens of the remarkable coralloid variety from Eisenertz in Styria, formerly called flos ferri.

(CASE 25.) contains the fluates of lime. Among the numerous varieties of fluor spar may be particularized the rose-coloured primitive crystals from Chamouni; the phosphorescent massive fluor spar, called chlorophane, from Siberia: the varieties called fortification fluor; earthy and compact fluor, &c.

(CASE 26.) contains the sulphates of lime, which are divided into selenite or sparry gypsum, of which several regularly crystallized, acicular and lenticular varieties are deposited; fibrous gypsum with silky lustre; foliated and compact gypsum, to which latter belongs the stalagmitical variety from Guadaloupe; and the earthy or frothy gypsum, to which may be referred Haüy's niviform variety of sulphate of lime.—The remainder of this case is occupied by the anhydrous sulphate of lime, or the cube spar and muriacite of

SALOON. Werner, the compact variety of which is, in some
 NAT. HIST. parts of Italy, known by the name of bardiglione.

(CASE 26*.) In this case are deposited the remaining salts of lime. Among the phosphates of lime may be seen several very scarce and interesting crystallizations of Werner's apatite (such as the large crystals from St. Petersburg); the variety called asparagus-stone; the Norwegian apatite, called moroxite; also the phosphorite, or earthy and compact phosphates of lime, and the pulverulent variety of the same, known by the name of earth of Marmorosh, and which was formerly considered as a fluuate of lime.—Arseniate of lime, called also pharmacolite, from Wittenichen in the Black Forest.—Siliciferous borate of lime: the sparry (Esmark's datholite), and the globular, fibrous variety of the same (the botryolite of Hausmann), two scarce Norwegian minerals.

(CASE 26.) contains the barytic salts, viz. the sulphates and carbonates of barytes. Among the subspecies and varieties of the former, called also heavyspar, are, the straight-lamellar, variously crystallized, the curved-lamellar, the columnar and prismatic; also the radiated variety known by the name of Bologna spar, from Monte Paterno near Bologna, and from Bavaria; the compact, called ponderous marble, including the fetid barytes or hepatite, &c.

Among the specimens of carbonate of barytes, or

or witherite, may be particularized the beautiful groups of double six-sided pyramids, and those of six-sided prismatic crystals.

(CASE 27.) Strontian salts; carbonate of strontian, also called strontianite, in prismatic and acicular crystals, which latter have sometimes been mistaken for arragonite.—Among the sulphates of strontian (celestine of Werner) the more remarkable specimens are, the splendid groups of limpid prismatic crystals from La Catolica in Sicily; the acicular variety in the hollows of compact sulphate of strontian, from Montmartre; the same in fissures of flint; the radiated and fibrous celestine, &c.

The remainder of this case is occupied by some other saline stony substances, viz. carbonate of magnesia, called also pure magnesia, and magnesite. Borate of magnesia, or boracite, in separate crystals, and the same imbedded in gypsum; —hydrargillite or wavellite, which may be considered as a phosphate of alumina; azurite and blue spar (Werner's lazulit and blauspath), which appear to be phosphates of alumina, magnesia and silica; —aluminite, a subsulphate of alumina, from Sussex, and from Halle in the territory of Magdeburg, which was formerly mistaken by some for pure alumina, by others for a hydrate of alumina with mechanically admixed sulphate of lime: it must not be confounded with alum-stone (alunite of French mineralogists), which, according to Cordier, is a hydrate of alumina with an-which is said to be geognostically related to amber, but is a mellate of alumina.—Glauberite (a compound of anhydrous sulphate of lime, and anhydrous sulphate of soda), imbedded in white and blue rock salt, &c.;—polyhalite of Stromeyer, a chemical combination of several salts, formerly considered as anhydrous sulphate of lime.

(CASE 28.) contains various saline minerals, among the more remarkable of which are the fibrous sulphate of magnesia and soda, from Calatyud in Arragon, and the blue salt with glau-berite, from Aranjuez in Spain.

In the glazed table-cases and drawers on the right hand side of the principal entry from the first room into the Saloon, are deposited the Metallic ores.

(CASE 29.) The ores of platina, gold, and mercury.—Platina in grains from Peru and Brazil :
 the latter mixed with grains of greyish-yellow gold. Palladium.—Iridium.—Native Gold, subdivided into pure and alloyed gold ; the former chiefly massive and as grains (from Guinea, Bengal, Sumatra), and in brown iron-stone, in quartz, with needle ore (acicular sulphuret of bismuth, &c.) from Siberia ; the alloyed gold (principally from Transylvania) crystallized in minute cubes
 and

and octahedrons variously aggregated, in reticular plates, &c.—The ores of mercury in this case are:—the sulphurets, consisting of dark-red cinnabar (by far the more common variety), massive, crystallized, and in combination with various mineral substances; the bright-red cinnabar (native vermilion, much esteemed by painters); the hepatic mercurial ore from Idria, compact and slaty; the former also with petrifications (coral ore); muriate of mercury, or corneous mercury, with native quicksilver, &c.

(CASE 30.) This case contains (besides some additional specimens of gold and mercurial ores, among the latter of which is the scarce native amalgam, crystallized and globular,) the ores of silver, between which and the ores of gold are placed the alloy called electrum, from Smeof in Siberia, and the auriferous silver from Kongsberg in Norway, both being a mixture of gold and silver in different proportions. Other alloys of silver are the scarce antimonial silver from Wolfach and Andreasberg, and the arsenical silver from Guadalcanal in Andalusia.—Among the numerous varieties of native silver may be particularized the various imitative forms in which it occurs, such as tooth-shaped, wire-shaped, dendritical, moss-like, reticular, &c., many of which are aggregations of minute crystals.—Common sulphuret of silver, or vitreous silver; massive, crystallized, and in other external forms, among which are

SALOON. are the laminar and capillary.—Brittle vitreous NAT. HIST. silver, of which some specimens are also deposited in the following table-case.—White silver ore.

(CASE 31.) The ores of silver contained in this case are the dark and light-coloured varieties of red or ruby silver ore, massive, crystallized, and in combination with various substances; the black silver ore, or sooty silver, which has not been analysed;—the muriate of silver, called also corneous silver and horn-ore, of various colours, amorphous, botryoidal, in laminæ, and crystallized in minute cubes and octahedrons;—the very scarce carbonate of silver, also called grey silver ore, from Alt-Wolfach in Suabia, &c.—In this case begin the numerous copper ores: among the specimens of native copper (which, like the native silver, presents a great variety of forms besides the crystallized, such as dendritic, filiform, &c.) may be specified the mass from Hudson's Bay, found by Mr. Hearne and described by him in his journal.

(CASE 32.) Ores of copper continued: common sulphuret of copper or vitreous copper, variously crystallized, foliated, compact, &c. To this are also commonly referred the oblong, scaly, secondary fossils, known by the name of Frankenberg corn ears, which occur in the bituminous marlslate of Frankenberg in Hessa, and are principally composed of vitreous and grey copper.—The variegated copper ore, easily known by the reddish colour of its fractural planes, massive

and foliated.—The grey copper ore (fahl ore), SALOON. crystallized, massive, and disseminated in various NAT. HIST.

(CASE 33.) Ores of copper continued: yellow copper or copper pyrites, the most common of all the ores of this metal: among these is also the pale yellow, fine grained variety, called hematitiform and blistered copper pyrites.—Seleniuret of copper and silver, called eukairite, in foliated carbonate of lime from Skrickerum, in Smolandia, Sweden.—Red or ruby copper ore, compact, foliated, and fibrous; one of the more remarkable is the bright red capillary variety from Rheinbreitenbach, in Nassau. To these are added a few specimens of what is called tile-red copper, or tile ore, a mixture of red copper ore and brown iron ochre.

(CASE 34.) Ores of copper continued: black copper, massive, and as superficial covering of other copper ores.—Carbonates of copper: splendid groups of crystallized blue or azure copper, from Chessy and the Bannat, combined with various substances, and earthy varieties of the same, some of which (called mountain-blue) have been used as pigments.—Crystals passing from the state of blue copper into that of green carbonate (cuiivre carbonaté bleu épigène Haiiy.)—Green carbonates of copper; among which are the beautiful varieties of fibrous malachite of velvety appearance, in acicular crystals, with carbonate of lead, &c.

SALOON. (CASE 35.) Ores of copper continued : among
 NAT. HIST. the specimens of compact malachite, the most beautiful and characteristic are those from the Gumashevsk and Turja mines in the Ural mountains. — Anhydrous carbonate of copper. — Werner's frothy copper ore from Hungary. — In this case is also placed the copper-green of Werner, by some called chrysocola, a substance often confounded with common green carbonates of copper, but which contains much silica. — To the silicates of copper may likewise be referred the diopase, a very scarce substance from Siberia, also called emerald copper, on account of its pure green colour ; and the very scarce sky blue velvet copper ore. — Phosphate of copper from Nassau and Hungary. — Muriate of copper, crystallized and laminar : to which also belongs what is called green sand of Peru, or atacamite, from being found in the desert of Atacama, between Chili and Peru, as sand of a small river. The rest of this case is occupied by the principal varieties of the different arseniates of copper, namely, the foliated arseniate, or copper mica, the lenticular arseniate, or lentil ore, and the olive ore of Werner, which are formed into five distinct species by some mineralogists. (A greater variety of arseniates of copper will be found in the collection of British Minerals : Cornwall.)

mispickel), the sulphurets of iron, viz. the common, smooth and striated; the radiated pyrites, a substance very subject to decomposition, and to which belong most of the varieties of what is commonly called lenticular and coxcomb pyrites, as also the globular pyrites of a radiated texture.

(CASE 37.) Sulphurets of iron continued:—The hepatic or liver pyrites of Werner, very distinct from what French mineralogists call fer sulfuré hépatique, which latter is decomposed common and radiated iron pyrites and sometimes brown iron stone.—Magnetic pyrites, which is nearly allied to the preceding species: massive and crystallized in six-sided prisms.—The remainder of this table-case is occupied by part of the oxides of iron: magnetic iron-stone, massive, of various grain, compact, crystallized, in serpentine, chlorite slate, &c.; ore which yields the wootz, a very hard kind of iron from the East Indies; magnetic iron sand, &c.

(CASE 38 AND PART OF 39.) Oxides of iron continued: specimens of specular iron, or iron glance, among which those from the island of Elba are remarkable on account of their beautiful iridescence and play of colours; variety in large laminar crystals, appearing like polished steel, from Stromboli, &c.; the micaceous iron ore of Werner, belonging partly to this species, partly to the scaly red and brown iron-stone (in the next table-case); among the most remarkable specimens of which is that in delicate, transparent

SALOON. parent tables of a blood red colour, from Nassau-
 NAT. HIST. Siegen: that in scales coating the cells of lava: a shining brownish black variety used as hair powder by the Bootchuana natives beyond the Great River, South Africa, &c.

(CASES 39 AND 40.) contain the different varieties of compact red iron-stone and red hematite, and of hydrous oxides of iron, the latter, comprehending Werner's ochrey and compact brown iron-stone and brown hematite, together with several varieties of argillaceous or clay iron-stone, such as common, columnar, pisiform, reniform clay iron-stone, meadow-ore, &c.—Salts of iron; viz. carbonate of iron, or spathose iron ore, the primitive form of which is different from that of carbonate of lime: crystallized, massive, and botryoidal (sphærosiderite of Hausmann) in basalt.—Arseniate of iron, or pharmacosiderite, which occurs only crystallized, chiefly in cubes, whence Werner's name of cube ore. [See British Collection: Cornwall.]—Cuprififerous arseniate—Scorodite.—Chromate of iron, among the specimens of which is one from Baltimore, in which this substance is intermixed with talc stained purple by chromic acid.—The pyrosmalite considered by some as a muriate of iron.—Phosphate of iron, crystallized (with native gold, from Transylvania), massive and pulverulent: among the specimens of the latter are, the massive variety from New Jersey, and several earthy varieties, in clay, wood, peat, &c. To these is added

added the ilvait (the yenite or jenite of some SALOON. mineralogists), which is now enumerated by NAT. HIST. Haüy among the ores of iron, under the appellation of fer silicéo-calcaire.

(CASE 41.) In this and the two following cases are contained the ores of lead, the most common and useful of which is the sulphuret of lead, or galena: the specimens here deposited include various modifications of crystals, detached, and grouped together, in combination with blende, pyrites, and many other substances; galena of various grain, massive and disseminated; galena of corroded appearance, decomposed and regenerated; the compact and specular variety, called slickenside by the Derbyshire miners.—With these is also placed the antimonial sulphuret of lead, or triple sulphuret of lead, antimony, and copper, called endellion by Count Bournon. [See British Collection: Cornwall.]

(CASE 42.) Ores of lead continued:—the more prominent specimens in this case are those of carbonate of lead, or white lead, among which may be particularized the laminar varieties, the beautiful modifications from Siberia, and the crystallized acicular white lead from the Hartz, accompanied with green and blue carbonates of copper; the fine light-blue variety coloured by copper, &c.; the black lead ore of Werner, which appears to be merely a variety of the white lead ore.—With these are placed three substances from Leadhills, hitherto considered as carbonates, but which, according to analyses lately published, are

SALOON. are, sulphato-carbonate, sulphato-tricarbonate,
 NAT. HIST. and cupreous sulphate of lead.—Phosphates of lead, which are divided by Werner into brown lead ore, and green lead ore. Among the specimens of the brown phosphate, the most remarkable are the large six-sided prisms from Huelgoet in Britany, &c.

(CASE 43.) Ores of lead continued:—green phosphate, massive, botryoidal, spicular, &c.; variously crystallized; of various shades of green, passing into greenish-white, into yellow and orange; with ferruginous quartz, straight-foliated barytes, &c. from Freiberg in the Brisgau, &c.—Arseniate of lead—Molybdate of lead, or yellow lead ore; massive, lamelliform, and crystallized; on compact limestone, &c. chiefly from Bleyberg in Carinthia. The specimens of chromate of lead, or red lead ore, deposited in this case, are particularly beautiful and instructive: the accompanying substances are green lead ore, and sometimes small greenish-brown crystals of a substance (Vauquelinite) which appears to be chromate of copper and lead: the gangue stone, in which the red lead occurs in the gold mines of Beresof, is a kind of micaceous rock mixed with particles of quartz and brown iron-stone—Murio-carbonate of lead, or horn-lead, the crystallized varieties of which have hitherto been observed in Derbyshire only. [An interesting suite of crystals of this scarce mineral substance will be found in the British Collection: Derbyshire.]

Sulphate

—Sulphate of lead, called native lead-vitriol by Werner, crystallized and massive.—Lead earth, indurated and friable, of various colours ; its different varieties appear to be related to carbonates, phosphates, and sulphates of lead : to which latter also the reniform lead ore (blei-niere of Werner) from Siberia appears to belong : some varieties of lead earth are oxides. Near to these is also placed the native minium, from Hessa, first described by Mr. Smithson, and varieties of the same from Siberia ; all of them probably produced by the decay of galena.

(CASE 44.) Ores of zinc. Among the many varieties of sulphuret of zinc, or blende, may be particularized those relative to colour, viz. the yellow, the brown, and the black blende of Werner ; the first of which is generally most pure, while the two others contain a portion of iron ; the fibrous blende of Przbram in Bohemia, in which the cadmium was discovered by Stromeyer ; the variety called testaceous blende (schaalen-blende), the most characteristic specimens of which are from Geroldseck in the Brisgau, contains, besides iron, a portion of lead.—The other ores of zinc in this case are those of a sparry appearance, commonly called calamine, which constitute three different species, viz. the electric or siliceous calamine, in a variety of which the presence of cadmium has been announced by the late Dr. Clarke ; the common calamine, or native carbonate of zinc ; and the red oxide of zinc : the specimens mens of the two former species include various crystalline and other forms, among which are the pseudomorphous crystals of carbonate of zinc, derived from modifications of calcareous spar.

(CASE 45.) Ores of tin, of which we have the sulphuret of tin, or tin pyrites, and the oxides, which are divided into common tin stone, and wood tin:—tin pyrites, hitherto only found in Cornwall, nearly pure, mixed with copper pyrites, &c.;—among the specimens of common tin stone are, the regular and maced crystals, the pebble-like and granular tin stone (shoad tin, stream tin, grain tin, &c.), and the greyish-white crystals, resembling scheel ore, or tungstate of lime; the tin stone from Finbo, in Sweden, which contains oxide of tantalum.—The ores of tungsten, which generally accompany those of tin, are—wolfram (schéelin ferrugineux Haüy), crystallized and massive, from Bohemia, &c. and the tungstate of lime, scheel ore (schéelin calcaire Haüy), among the crystallized specimens of which is the primitive acute octahedron from Allemont in Dauphiné.—In this case are also placed the specimens of molybdena, or sulphuret of molybdenum, which should not be confounded with graphite; the yellow powder on feldspar, from Westmania in Sweden, is oxide of molybdenum.

(CASE 46.) Part of this case is occupied by the ores of titanium, viz. the oxides, called titanite, brown-ore, brunon, (sphène, and titane silicéo-calcaire caire Haiiy,) among the varieties of which is that in large flat octahedral crystals from Norway, with epidote, &c. also the variety called, by Saussure, rayonnante en gouttière, from St. Gothard, on feldspar, with chlorite, &c.—Titan-shorl, also called rutile; massive, crystallized, and fibrous, to which latter belongs the variety with golden tarnish, from Moutier, near the Montblanc; the acicular crystals of rutile in rock crystal, &c.; the ferriferous oxides (siderotitanium of Klaproth), some varieties of which may be considered as titaniferous oxides of iron, and to which may be referred the black sand called menachanite, and the iserine, in loose grains and imbedded;—specimens of anatase, or octahedrite, from Dauphiné:—the same, together with a scarce substance called crichtonite (craytonite of Bournon), which has been considered by some as a variety of helvine, and as a silicate of zirconia by others, but appears to be a silicate of titanium. The remainder of this table-case contains the ores of antimony: native antimony, from Allemont, and from Sala in Sweden, some varieties of which are arseniferous;—sulphuret of antimony, or grey antimony (the most common ore of this metal), occurs compact, foliated, radiated, and plumose: the more remarkable among these are the specimens of crystallized radiated antimony in fine groups, especially from Transylvania; radiated grey antimony with barytes, realgar, &c.; the plumose grey antimony, some varieties of which, appearing

NAT. HIST.

SALOON. appearing like delicate wool or down, display a fine iridescent blue, yellow and red tarnish ; red antimony, mostly in fine capillary crystals, from Bräunsdorf in Saxony, and a variety of the same, called tinder ore, from the Hartz ;—white antimony, formerly considered as a muriate of this metal, crystallized, on galena, &c.—specimens of antimonial ochre on native and grey antimony, &c.

(CASE 47 AND PART OF 48.) contain the ores of cobalt and arsenic. The crystals of glantz-cobalt, which has been frequently confounded with white cobalt, are mostly from Sweden ;—a suite of specimens of white cobalt, exhibiting the principal modifications of crystallized and irregular shapes ;—grey cobalt, principally from Wittichen in Würtemberg ;—some specimens of oxides of this metal, viz. the black and the brown or yellow cobalt ochre, the latter of which contains iron ;—various specimens of the red cobalt ore, or arseniate, comprising the earthy (cobalt crust) and the radiated (cobalt bloom) varieties, from Saalfeld, Allemont, &c. Between these and the remaining metallic substances in the adjoining table-case are deposited the ores of arsenic ; native arsenic (formerly called testaceous cobalt) in reniform and botryoidal shapes, from Andreasberg, &c. ;—splendid and instructive specimens of the sulphurets of this metal, viz. the yellow orpiment, massive, and in separable, striated, transparent laminæ ; and the red orpiment or realgar, perfectly crystallized and massive, and also (in

 ing matter between the laminæ of crystallized straight-foliated barytes;—specimens of the native oxide of arsenic, showing the octahedral form of its primitive crystals.

(CASE 48.) The contents of this case are:—
 The ores of nickel, among which may be particularized the native nickel from Saxony, which was formerly classed with the ores of iron, under the denomination of capillary pyrites;—the arsenical nickel, called copper nickel;—nickel ochre, which is no oxide, but an arseniate of nickel.—Ores of bismuth: native bismuth, massive, disseminated and dendritic in jasper; to which is added a specimen exhibiting the artificial crystallization of the same, produced by sudden cooling of the melted metal;
 —sulphuret of bismuth, the bismuth glance of Werner, with which is placed the Siberian needle ore of the same mineralogist, being a triple sulphuret of bismuth, lead, and copper.—Ores of uran; the protoxide of uranium, called pitch ore, massive, pure, and with adhering ochre of the same metal;—the substance called uranite, or uran mica, (which, according to Berzelius, is no pure oxide of uran, but a uranate of lime,) in groups of emerald-green and yellow colours. The ores of tellurium or sylvane, which are divided into native tellurium, white and yellow (containing gold and iron); the graphic ore so called on account of the disposition of its minute laminar crystals into groups that bear a distant resemblance to written characters; and the black or Nagyag ore (commonly alloyed with gold and some lead).

(CASE 49.) The greater part of this case is occupied by the ores of manganese, viz.—oxides: radiated grey manganese, some varieties of which resemble the radiated antimony in the disposition of their acicular crystals; foliated grey manganese; compact manganese of various forms, botryoidal, tubercular, reniform, &c.; earthy grey manganese, a remarkable variety of which is the black wad of Derbyshire and Devonshire, which has the property of inflaming spontaneously when mixed with linseed oil.—Silicates of manganese: the red compact varieties from Siberia (Werner's mangan-spath), and from Kapnik (the red manganese of the same mineralogist).—Carbonate of manganese, phosphate, &c.—The helvine, referred by some mineralogists to Bournon's crichtonite, from which, however, it appears essentially to differ.

In this case are also placed the ores of columbium or tantalum, of yttria and of cerium, &c.—Columbite:—the specimen from North America in which Hatchett discovered the metal (see Phil. Trans. 1802); yttriferous columbite or yttrotantalite, from Bavaria, &c.—Silicate of yttrium: gadolinite, of which a unique crystal is here deposited: pyrrorthite and orthite, two scarce Swedish minerals, related to gadolinite.—Cerite or cerine (silicate of cerium) from Bastnaes in Sweden.—Yttrocerite, a fluuate of lime, yttria and cerium; and a related mineral composed of fluuate of yttria and oxide of cerium, with only a small portion of lime, but in which is often found a fluuate of the new earth to which Berzelius has given the name of thoria.—Specimens of the oxide of chromium, in

in quartz, discovered by M. Leschevin at Creuzot, in the department of the Saone and Loire.

In the opposite compartment of this table-case are deposited (as appendix to the ores of iron) the substances called aërolithes, because they have fallen from the atmosphere, and meteoric stones, because they are by some supposed to be deposited from meteors. The specimens of the former are, —native iron from Gross-kamsdorf in Saxony :—two small polished pieces of the mass found in Southern Africa, which weighed about 250 pounds, and is now in the cabinet of Haarlem ;—fragment of the iron from Senegal ;—specimens of the native iron from Otumpa, in the Gran Chaco Gualamba, in South America, described by Don Rubin de Celis, who estimated the weight of the mass to be about 300 quintals, or 15 tons ;—a large piece detached from the celebrated mass of Siberian native iron, which was discovered by Pallas on the summit of a hill between Abakansk and Belskoi Ostrog on the banks of the Jenisey, where it was considered by the Tartars as a sacred relic : the mass originally weighed about 1,680 pounds ;—a piece of the large mass from Ellenbogen, in Bohemia, and another of that found on Collina di Brianza, in Milan ;—a small piece of the large mass in the Capitania di Bahia, Brasil ;—A specimen detached from the large mass of iron preserved at Aix-la-chapelle ;—an Eskimaux knife and harpoon, (from Davis's Straits, Lat. 76 N. Long. 66 W.) the iron of which is meteoric.

NAT. HIST.

Of meteoric stones (classed with native iron, because they all contain this metal alloyed with nickel,) the following are placed in chronological order :—a large fragment of the stone which fell at Ensisheim, in Alsace, Nov. 7th, 1492, in the presence of the emperor Maximilian, then king of the Romans, when on the point of engaging with the French army : this mass, which weighed 270 pounds, was preserved in the cathedral of Ensisheim till the beginning of the French revolution, when it was conveyed to the public library of Colmar ;—one of the many stones which fell, July 3d, 1753, at Plaun, in the circle of Bechin, Bohemia, and which contain a great proportion of attractable iron ; specimens of those that were seen to fall at Roquefort and at Juliac, in the Landes of Gascony, July 24th, 1790 ;—one of a dozen of stones of various weights and dimensions that fell at Sienna, in Tuscany, Jan. 16th, 1794 :—fragment of the meteoric stone, weighing 56 pounds, which fell near Wold Cottage, in Yorkshire, Dec. 13th, 1795 ;—fragment of a stone of 20 pounds, which fell in the commune of Sales, near Villefranche, in the department of the Rhône, March 12th, 1798 ;—specimens of stones fallen near the city of Benares, in the East Indies, Dec. 19th, 1798 :—an entire and a broken specimen of the meteoric stones of which a shower descended at Aigle, in the department of the Orne, April 26th, 1803 ;—fragment of that of Smolensk, June 27th, 1807 ;—fragment of one of those that were seen to fall at Weston, in Connecticut, Dec. 14th, 1807 ;

—two

—two meteoric stones with shining black surfaces, fallen May 22d, 1808, at Stannern, in Moravia;—two fragments of the Tipperary aërolite, which fell in August, 1810: it contains quartz globules of a green colour, owing to oxide of nickel;—a fragment of that of Berlanguillas, in Catalonia, July 8th, 1811;—a fragment of one, weighing 66 pounds, which fell August 5th, 1812, near Chantonnay, in the Vendée;—fragment of the meteoric stone which fell at Adare, in the county of Limerick, Ireland, in 1813;—and one of that which fell at Juvénas (Ardèche), on June 15th, 1821.

EIGHTH ROOM.

The most interesting part of the collection of ROOM VIII.
 birds, serving to exhibit the general arrangement NAT. HIST.
 of the animals of that class, is contained in cases round the room.

(CASES 1 AND 2.) Accipitres, rapacious birds, or birds of prey : the Californian vulture ; a singular variety of the Pondicherry eagle : horned owls, &c.

(CASES 3 AND 4.) Various species of parrots, mackaws, and woodpeckers, toucans, barbets, cuckoos, shrikes, &c.

(CASES 5 AND 6.) Grosbeaks, buntings, orioles, warblers, paradise-birds, king-fishers, &c.

(CASE 7.) Pigeons.

(CASES 8 TO 10.) Small African bustard, pheasants, the jungle-cock of India, which some have supposed to be the original stock from whence our domestic fowls have sprung ; quails, horned screamer, wood grouse, partridges, a specimen of the common wild pintado of Africa, adjutant crane, boatbill, tufted umber, rose-coloured spoonbill, &c.

(CASES 11 AND 12.) Scarlet curlew, scarlet flamingo, American avoset, darters, divers, &c.

(CASE 13.) contains some curious nests and eggs of birds ; the soup-nests formed by a species of swallow ; the nest of the tailor-bird, &c. On the

ROOM VIII. the lowermost shelf is deposited the supposed leg
 NAT. HIST. of the Dodo, &c.

(TABLE 1.) contains the Polyparia, or solid habitations of the Polypi vaginati, the third order, of the second class, of Lamarck's Histoire naturelle des Animaux sans vertèbres, after whose system, the contents of most of the tables in this room are arranged. Amongst the specimens in this compartment, are the genera, Acetabulum, Flustra, Escara, Retepora, Millepora, Caryophylla, Fungia, Pavonia, Agarica, Meandrina, Explanaria, Astræa, Porites, Pocillopora, Madrepora, Seriatopora, Corallium, Melitæa, Isis, Antipates, Gorgonia and Corallina.

(TABLE 2.) Annulata sedentaria, or the shells of annulated worms ; the third order of the ninth Class ; amongst which are Siliquaria, several Dentalia, Magilus, Galeolaria (both very rare), Vermicularia, Serpulæ, &c.

(TABLE 3 AND 4.) Cirripeda—Class 10.
 Order 1. Several species of the Balanus or barnacle, as the Otion or ear-barnacle, Cineras, Pentelasmis, Pollicipes ;—Coronula and Tubicinella, which are found imbedded in the skin of various species of whale ; Chelonobia, or turtle-barnacle, found inhabiting the shells of turtles ; Conia, or four-valved-barnacle ; many species of Balanus or the true acorn-shell, with several newly discovered genera, that are parasitical, as Adna, Acasta, Creusia, Megatrema, Pyrgoma, &c. (The shells in this Table, are according to
 Dr. Leach's

Dr. Leach's arrangement. Encyc. Brit. Supple. ROOM VIII.

(TABLE 5.) Conchifera bimusculosa—Class 11. Order 1. This compartment contains the families of the Tubicolaria, Pholadaria, and part of the Solenacea. Amongst them are the Aspergillum javanum or watering pot shell ; Clavagella, probably the only recent shell of the kind known ; Fistulana clava, Septaria arenaria, or great bifurcated teredo, Teredo navalis, or ship-worm ; Pholas dactylus, or prickly piercer, Gastrochæna cuneiformis ; several solenes, or razor shells, Panopæa Aldrovandi, (Mya Glycimeris, Lin.) or great gaper, &c.

(TABLE 6.) contains the last genus of the Solenacea, Glycimeris siliqua ; and the families Myaria, Maत्रacea, Corbularia, and Lithophaga. Amongst them are Mya truncata, Anatina lantern, Lutraria solenoides (Mya oblonga. Gmel.) Mactra gigantea, and M. stultorum, Crassatella, Erycina cardioides, Ungulina transversa, Solenomya mediterranea (very scarce), Amphidesma, Corbula nucleus, Pandora, Saxicava, Petricola, and Venerupis. The three last genera perforate rocks, and make their habitations therein.

(TABLE 7.) The families, Nymphacea solenaria, and N. tellinaria—Conchæ fluviatiles, and part of the Conchæ marinæ. Amongst the Nymphacea, are the Sanguinolaria rosea, (Solen sanguinolentus. Gmel.) and S. rugosa, (Venus deflorata. Gmel.) Psammobia ferroensis, —Psammotæa donacina,—various Tellinæ, Corbis

ROOM VIII. bis fimbriata, Lucina pensylvanica,—several species of the genus Donax, and the genera Capsa and Crassina. Under the families of the Conchæ, are Cyclas, Cyrena, and the very rare shell Galatæa radiata, (Venus subviridis. Gmel.) Cyprina and part of the genus Cytheræa.

(TABLE 8.) Cytheræa, and part of the Veneres; containing several species of each genus.

(TABLE 9.) The remainder of the genus Venus, and the genus Venericardia, of which very few species are known, except in the fossil state. The family of the Cardiacea, are also included in this compartment, namely the genera Cardium, Cardita, Cypricardia, (the two last were classed by Linneus with the Chama) Hiatella, (Mya of Linneus) and Isocardia. The last genus includes the rare and elegant shell Isocardia Moltktiana---the Chama Moltktiana of Gmelin.

(TABLE 10.) The families Arcacea, Trigoniana, and part of the Nayada. Amongst them are the Cucullæa auriculifera, (Arca cucullus. Gmel.) several species of the genera Arca and Pectunculus, and the genus Nucula; (the two latter were confounded with the Arcae, by Linneus,) the genus Trigonia, and part of the genus Unio, (Mya of Lin.) some species of which furnish pearls of considerable size and beauty.

 genus, of which Lamarck gives but that one spe- NAT. HIST.
 cies. Also the families Chamacea, Tridacnea, and part of the Mytilacea. Of the Chamacea, is a specimen of the Diceras arietina, the only known species of this genus, and hitherto not found as a recent shell; and various species of Chama. The second Order, of this Class, Conchifera unimusclosa, begins with the family Tridacnea, comprehending the genera Tridacna and Hippopus. Some shells of the species Tridacna gigas, are the largest that are known;
 they are said to have been found of 500 pounds weight. Part of the genus Modiola, (Mytilus.
 Lin.) of the family of the Mytilacea, are contained in this compartment.

(TABLE 12.) Modiolæ continued; and the genera Mytilus (the Muscle) and Pinna.

(TABLE 13.) The family Malleacea, and part of the Pectenida; including under the former, the genera Crenatula (rather rare shells), Perna, Malleus, (the two last classed as Oysters by Linneus) Avicula (Mytilus. Lin.) and Melea- grina. The Meleagrina margaritifera, (Mytilus margaritiferus. Lin.) affords valuable pearls, and the inside is formed of the beautiful substance, known by the name of Mother of Pearl. Under the Pectenida, are included the genera, Pedum, (containing only one species, P. spondyloideum, Ostrea spondyloidea. Gmel.) Lima, Plagiostoma (fossil)

ROOM VIII. (fossil) and Pecten, or Scallop shell. The Lima NAT. HIST. and Pecten were considered as Ostrea, by Linneus.

(TABLE 14.) Pecten continued; and the genera Plicatula, and Spondylus or hinged Oyster.

(TABLE 15.) Ostracea, including the genera, Gryphæa (only one recent species of this genus, G. angulata is known); Ostrea, Vulsella, and Placuna.

(TABLE 16.) Anomia, the last genus of the Ostracea. Also the families Rudista, and Brachiopoda. In the first, are the fossil genera Radiolites, and Calceola, and the recent genus Crania; in the latter the genera Orbicula, Terebratula, (Anomia of Linneus) and Lingula. Of this genus, which is the last of the Conchifera, only one species, L. anatina, (Patella unguis. Lin.) is known.

Mollusca. Class 12. Order 1. Pteropoda. This compartment also contains one family of this Order; Hyalæana—which includes the genus Hyalæa, and another genus allied to the Hyalæa, named by Dr. Leach, Pontica.

Order 2. Gasteropoda. The families Phyllidiana, and Semi-Phyllidiana, of the second order, are likewise in this compartment. In the first are the genera Chitonellus, Chiton, or Coat of Mail shell, and Patella, or the limpet. In the second, the genus Umbrella.

(TABLE 17) Calyptracea, Bullæana, Laplysiana

lysiana and Limacina, the four remaining families of the Gasteropoda. The genera of the Calyptræa are, Parmophorus, or Thracian shield shell, Emarginula, Fissurella, Pileopsis, Calyptræa, Crepidula, and Ancylus. The Bullæana contain the Bullæa aperta, (Bulla aperta. Lin.) and several species of the genus Bulla. Lاپlysia and Dolabella are the genera of the next family. The shell of the former is a small cartilaginous scutcheon, which adheres to the posterior part of the back of the animal ; that of the latter is wholly internal. The genera of the family Limacina are, Parmacella, an internal shell, very rarely met with ; Limax (the Slug), whose shell, a small testaceous lamina, is contained in a fleshy or coriaceous scutcheon, attached to the fore part of the back of the animal ;—Testacella, and Vitrina. The shells of the two last genera are external.

Order 3. Trachelipoda. The family Colimacea, contains the genus Helix, a part of the numerous species of which are in this compartment.

(TABLE 18.) Helix continued, together with the genera Caracolla, Anostoma, Helicina, Pupa, Clausilia, and Bulimus.

(TABLE 19.) The four remaining genera of the Colimacea, viz. Achatina, Succinea, Auricula, and Cyclostoma.

(TABLE 20.) The families Melaniana, Peristomata, and part of the Neritacea. The genera of the first are Melania, Melanopsis and Pirena :

 NAT. HIST. Ampullaria : of the third, Navicella, Neritina, Nerita, and

(TABLE 21.) Natica. The families Ianthinea, Macrostomata, Plicacea, Scalariana, and part of the Turbinacea, are also in this compartment. The first has but one genus, Ianthina : the second, the genera Sigaretus, Stomatella, Stomatia, Haliotis : the third, Tornatella, Pyramidella ; the fourth, Vermetus, Scalaria, Delphinula : the fifth, Solarium, Rotella, Trochus, (TABLE 22.) Monodonta, Turbo, Planaxis, Phasianella, and Turritella. Amongst the scalaria, is the costly and beautiful shell S. pretiosa (Turbo scalaris. Lin.), or Wendel trap. The first genus of the family of the Canalifera, Cerithium is also in this compartment.

(TABLE 23.) Genera of the Canalifera continued, viz.—Pleurotoma, Turbinella, Cancelaria, Fasciolaria, Fusus, Pyrula, Struthiolaria, Ranella, Murex, and

(TABLE 24.) Triton, the last genus of this family. In this compartment are also the genera of the family Alata, viz.—Rostellaria, Pterocera, and Strombus.

(TABLE 25.) Part of the family Purpurifera, viz.—the genera, Cassidaria, Cassis, Ricinula, Purpura, Monoceros, Concholepas, Harpa, Dolium, and part of the genus Buccinum. From the molluscous animal, inhabiting the purpura, the ancients obtained their celebrated purple dye, dye, which is contained in a bladder-shaped reservoir, situated near the stomach. The species P. patula (Buccinum patulum. Lin.) is said to have afforded the finest colour.

ROOM VIII.
NAT. HIST.

(TABLE 26.) Buccinum continued, Eburna, Terebra. The next family is Columellaria, two genera of which are in this compartment, viz. Columbella, and Mitra. The species Mitra zonalis, is an unique shell.

(TABLE 27.) The genera of the Columellaria continued, viz. Voluta, Marginella, and Volvaria. Also, the first genus, of the family Convoluta;—viz. Ovula, amongst which is the O. volva (Bulla volva, Lin.), or Weaver's shuttle.

(TABLE 28.) The genera Cypræa, Terebellum, and Ancillaria, and

(TABLE 29.) Oliva and Conus, of the same family. Amongst the Cyprææ, is the rare and beautiful shell the Cypræa aurora (Cypræa aurantium. Gmel.), or orange Cowrie, and several specimens of the species C. moneta, used by the inhabitants of the coast of Guinea as current money. Amongst the numerous genus Conus, are several fine shells, particularly the C. ammiralis, C. cedo nulli, and the very rare and costly C. aurantius, or orange admiral.

(TABLE 30.) Conus continued, and the families of the 4th Order, Cephalopoda, viz. Orthocera, Lituolata, Cristata, Sphærulata, Radiolata, Nautilacea, Ammonæa, Argonautæa, and Sepiaria. Many of the genera of these families,

ROOM VIII. the greater number of which are fossil shells, are
 NAT. HIST. wanting. Amongst those in this compartment, are Belemnites, Spirula, Miliolites, Rotalites, Discorbites, Nummulites ; some fine specimens of the Nautilus, Ammonites, Orbulites, Bacculites, and several of the elegant genus Argonauta, or paper Nautilus. The Loligo, and Sepia, or Cuttle, are the last genera of this order.

Order 5. Heteropoda, consists of naked Mollusca, or such as have no shell, except the genus, Carinaria, of which Lamarck enumerates three species ; C. vitrea, C. fragilis, and C. cymbium. An unique shell of the first species, is preserved in the Museum at Paris, of which there is a model, in wax, in this compartment. The original was brought by M. Huon, one of the Officers, sent in search of La Peyrouse, from the South Seas. This singular shell is suspended below the belly of the animal, and seems destined to cover and protect the heart and branchiæ.

(TABLE 31.) Miscellaneous. A dissected Nautilus, shewing the interior chambers of the shell ; one valve of a large Meleagrina margaritifera, or pearl muscle—various specimens of pearls, which are produced by disease in shells ; two pair, and a single valve, of extraordinary size, of the Pinna squamata ; the byssus, or beard of the pinna, and a pair of gloves, made of the same substance, &c.

NINTH ROOM.

This room is appropriated to petrifications and other fossil organic remains, among which the following may be specified.

ROOM IX.

NAT. HIST.

Osseous remains of mammiferous animals (CASES 5 TO 12). The more remarkable are :—A fossil human skeleton imbedded in limestone, from Guadaloupe, described in the Philosophical Transactions of 1814.—The bones of several pachydermatous or thick-skinned animals, viz. those of the several species of PALÆOTHERIUM and ANOPLOTHERIUM, from the plaster-quarries in the vicinity of Paris ;—those of the fossil Siberian elephant (ELEPHAS primigenius Bl.) which is the real mammoth ; and the gigantic North American animal (MASTODON ohioiticus), which has likewise erroneously been called mammoth ;—those of the rhinoceros (R. antiquitatis).

Of carnivorous animals we have the cranium and other bones of the cavern bear (URSUS spelæus Bl.) from the Hartz and Franconia.

Among the bones of the ruminant animals are :—A very perfect specimen of the skull and horns of the large elk (CERVUS giganteus or hibernicus), found fossil in Ireland and in the Isle of Man ;—the skull of the Caledonian ox (Bos Taurus, var. gigantea), nearly allied to the European domesticated ox :—bones in the osseous breccia of Gibraltar and the coast of Dalmatia.

Of

ROOM IX. Of the scarce remains of birds, there are two NAT. HIST. specimens in this collection from Oeningen and the plaster-quarries of Paris.

Among the bones of the class of reptiles, the most interesting are those of several species of ICHTHYOSAURUS, a genus of the order of Lizards (Sauri), to which we have given that name on account of its having been first mistaken for a fish by Chapman and others. Particularly remarkable are the carpal bones of the foot of ICHTHYOSAURUS immanis, the largest species we are acquainted with, from the blue lias of Lyme Regis, and Bath :—the bones of another huge lizard belonging to a genus intermediate between the Monitor and Guana, from Maestricht ;—skeleton of an animal of the salamandrine order (Batrachides), formerly mistaken for human*.

The CASES 16 TO 23 contain fossil remains of spiniferous zoophytes (Echinodermata), viz.—

CASE 16, AND PART OF 17, species of the genera ECHINUS (Urchin), and ECHINOCIDARIS (Turban Urchin).—CASE 17. those of ECHINOCORYS (Helmet Urchin).—CASE 18. those of ECHINOPILIUM (Cap Urchin).—CASE 19. contains the species of ECHINONAUTUS (Boat Urchin), ECHINOBRISUS (Brissus Urchin), and ECHINODISCUS (Quoit Urchin).—CASE 20. those of ECHINANTHUS (Flower Urchin), and ECHIN-

AMYGDALUS (Almond Urchin).—CASE 21 those of ECHINOSPATAGUS (Spatangus Urchin).

ROOM IX.

NAT. HIST.

CASES 22 AND 23 contain the various genera of the zoophytes commonly called ENCRINITES, &c.

In CASES 24 TO 29 are deposited the tubulated cellular, and corticated Polypes. Of the tubulated polypes (CASE 26) the principal genera are TUBIPORA and POLYSTOMUS (formerly TUBIP. serpens).—Among the cellular (CASES 26, 27) are the genera CELLEPORA, together with LUNULITES, ORBULITES, &c.—The remaining cases contain the various genera of that section of the corticated polypes which comprises the Madreporas, such as CYCLOLITES, ASPIDISCUS, TURBINOLIA, FUNGIA, CARYOPHYLLÆA, MADREPORA, ASTRÆA, HYDNOPHORA, with some other undescribed genera.

In CASES 30 TO 37 a considerable suite of fossils, which have been considered as belonging to the Alcyonia and Sponges.

CASES 38 and 39 are chiefly occupied by fossil remains of the class CRUSTACEA, divided into various genera, and excluding the order of Trilobites of which the principal genus (CALYMENE) is familiarly known by the appellation of the Dudley Fossil. To these are added (in CASE 39) remains of insects (chiefly of the order of Neuroptera) from the marl slate quarries of Oeningen, &c.

The CASES, 40 TO 43 (near the windows) contain, among other interesting vegetable remains

ROOM IX. mains, an extensive collection of fruits and seeds
NAT. HIST. from the blue clay of the cliffs in the Isle of Sheppey, and impressions of leaves and other parts of plants, in bituminous marl slate from Oeningen, &c.

TENTH ROOM.

BRITISH ORYCTOGNOSTIC COLLECTION.

ROOM X. This room contains the rudiments of a collec-
NAT. HIST. tion of British simple mineral substances. In a series of table-cases are deposited the minerals of the first seven counties of England, in alphabetical succession, from Bedfordshire to Devonshire inclusive. The names of the counties are on the upper part of these table-cases, the contents of which are disposed, by longitudinal and parallel divisions, into four classes, viz. Earths, Metals, Inflammable Substances, and Salts. These divisions (as soon as convenient room shall be obtained) are to be continued, in the same direction, through the whole series of table-cases, so that it may be ascertained at one view, if any and which of the substances belonging to those classes, are to be met with in any given part of Great Britain.

ELEVENTH ROOM.

In this room is deposited the collection of ROOM XI.
 British Zoology.* The birds are disposed in NAT. HIST. cases round the room, into the following grand divisions or orders:—

The first order consists of the ACCIPITRES, or Predaceous Birds (CASES 1 to 6): it contains the genera Falco and Strix (eagles, falcons, hawks, and owls). Among the species of the first genus may be distinguished two races: one of them comprehending those birds named Noble, the greater portion of which were used in falconry, such as the peregrine falcon (including the supposed species named the starry, the blue-black falcon, and the lanner, of British writers), the hobby, the merlin (including what is called the stone falcon), the kestrel, and the gerfalcon (of which the islandic and white gerfalcons are only varieties of plumage). Among the other species of this genus are the golden eagle (adult, and in that state of plumage in which it is called the ring-tailed eagle, together with the chick in two states of growth), the cinereous sea-eagle, (the varieties of which have been distinguished as two species, named the white-tailed and common, or cinereous eagle), the goshawk (young of the second year, in which state only it appears to have been no-room, which contains a selection from the great collection of Insects illustrative of the orders and genera of this class.

ROOM XI. ticed in England), the honey buzzard (in three NAT. HIST. different states), the rough-legged buzzard (of which the rough-legged falcon is only a variety), the ash-coloured, and the common or hen harrier
 (the female of which is the ring-tail of authors).
 The species of the genus Strix, the nocturnal birds of prey of this order, consist of the snowy owl, or harfang, the aluco owl, the white, the short-eared, and the little owl, or cheveche.

The second order PICI (CASE 7, upper shelves), is composed of birds with climbing feet, with ambulatory and (in the Linnean phrase), with gressorial or stepping feet: of the first division are the wood-peckers, and the wry- neck; in the second we have the nut-hatch (partaking of the general character of the wood- peckers and the titmice), the hoopoo, and the cree- per; in the third the bee-eater (a specimen of which was lately killed in Devonshire) and the king's- fisher.

The third order CORACES or Ravens, (CASES 7, and 8, lower shelves) comprises those with scansorial or climbing feet, to which belongs the cuckoo of which Europe possesses but one species, so remarkable for neglecting its young; and those with ambulatory feet, among which are the raven, and carrion crows, the rook, the jackdaw, magpie, jay (with its white variety, considered by some authors as a distinct species), the nut cracker; all which belong to the Linnean genus of Corvus;—the roller. To these are added the species of Lanius, referred by some to the predaceous

daceous, by others to the passerine birds: the great ash-colored and red-backed shrike and the wood chat. ROOM XI.
NAT. HIST.

In the fourth order (PASSERES, or Passerine Birds, CASES 8 and 9) are placed the starling, showing its change of plumage (amongst which the solitary thrush of Montagu is included); the water-ouzel; the rose-red thrush, the missel thrush, the throstle, the fieldfare, the redwing, the ring-ouzel, the black-bird; the Bohemian chatterer; the buntings; the bulfinch, with the greenfinch, hawfinch, and cross-bill; the finches including the sparrows; the larks, together with the species of Anthus, separated by Bechstein from the real larks; two species of fly catcher; a considerable number of species of the genus Sylvia, among which are the reed-warbler, the nightingale, the hedge-warbler (or, as it is improperly named, the hedge-sparrow), the black-cap (often named the Welsh or mock nightingale), the Dartford warbler; the stone and whin chats; the gold crest, the smallest of the British birds, &c. the white and grey wagtail; the titmice.

In the fifth order, the CHELIDONES or Swallows, (CASE 9, bottom shelf) are placed the goat sucker, the swift, the martin, the sand martin, and chimney swallow.

The sixth order, the GALLINÆ or Gallinaceous Birds (CASES 10 and part of 11), comprehends the columbine or pigeon tribe (referred by Linnæus to the Passeres) and the Gallinæ properly speaking: Of the former we have the stock pigeon, the ring pigeon,

ROOM XI. pigeon, and the turtle-dove; the latter includes NAT. HIST. the various kinds of game denominated grouse, partridge and quail; such as the cock of the wood, a bird no longer an inhabitant of Britain: black grouse; white and red ptarmigan: common part- ridge and common quail. To these are added the bustards, which, with regard to their habitudes, appear to be intermediate between this and the following order.

The seventh order comprehends the GRALLÆ, or waders (CASES 12 TO 15); among which may be specified the spoonbill (now seldom seen in this country), and the storks, with the herons and bitterns; the curlews, with the ibis, snipes, ruff, sanderling, &c.; the plovers, with the lapwing, oyster-catcher, &c.; the rails, with the crake, gallinule, &c.

The eighth order, entitled ANSERES, or web-footed birds (CASES 16 TO 22), contains the grebes, with the guillemots, divers, &c.; the gulls and terns; the petrels; the auks; - the puffin; the pelican tribe, with the cormorant, shag, and gan- net; the merganser, or goosander; the geese and ducks, comprising the wild swan, the red-breasted, clakis and brent, bean and white-fronted, geese;
 the cider duck, from which the down is obtained, and various other ducks, such as the scoter, pochard, shoveller, shieldrake, pintail, wigeon, teal, &c.

The collection of eggs is arranged along with the birds, in separate glass-cases, their numbers corresponding to those affixed to the birds.

CASE 23 contains nests, and ROOM XI.

CASE 24 windpipes, and other parts of various NAT. HIST.

British birds.

GALLERY

GALLERY OF ANTIQUITIES.

FIRST ROOM.

TERRACOTTAS.

All the Articles in the following Catalogue of Antiquities, unless where it is otherwise specified, belonged to the Collection of the late Charles Towneley, Esq.

OVER the door which fronts the entrance into this room, is a bust of Charles Towneley, Esq., to whose profound knowledge of ancient Sculpture, and zeal in the acquisition of the finest specimens of it, the nation is indebted for the formation of a considerable part of the splendid collection of Terracottas and Marbles contained in this gallery. The bust was presented by his uncle, John Towneley, Esq. It is executed in marble by Mr. Nollekens.

ROOM I.
ANTIQUITIES.

No. 1. A female statue, probably one of the Muses.

No. 2. An Amphora.

No. 3. A terminal head of the bearded Bacchus.

No. 4. A bas-relief, representing a combat between two Amazons and two Griffins.

No. 5. Ditto, representing the head of a Triton, on each side of which is a Cupid riding on a dolphin.

No.

ROOM I. No. 6. A bas-relief, representing a group of ANTIQUITIES. Silenus and cupid, before whom is a female Bacchante dancing, and playing on the tam-bourin.

No. 7. Ditto, representing an engagement between one of the Arimaspi and a Griffin; on the left of the combatants is the bust of an athletic

No. 8. Ditto, intended by the artist as a companion to No. 7, and to be joined to it in the manner in which it is here seen. The subject in both pieces is precisely the same: the bust, however, in this piece is placed on the right of the combatants, and is armed with a sword and shield.

No. 9. Repetition of No. 6.

No. 10. A bas-relief, representing a head of Medusa, on each side of which is an eagle in the act of seizing, with its talons, one of the snakes entwined in the locks of her hair.

No. 11. Ditto, representing a couple of chi-mæras lapping water out of vessels held to them by two youths who are attired in Phrygian dresses, and are each kneeling on one knee.

No. 12. Ditto, representing a female, who seems to be overwhelmed with affliction. She is seated, and is resting her head upon her right arm, while her attendants, from the concern visible in their countenances, appear to participate in her sorrow. This bas-relief probably represents Penelope dejected at the departure of Ulysses.

No.

No. 13. A bas-relief, imperfect, representing a fragment of Medusa's head, on one side of which is a figure of Minerva. ROOM I.
ANTIQUITIES.

No. 14. Ditto, representing the bearded Bacchus, and a female attendant on Bacchus, each of them holding a thyrsus. From the collection of Sir Hans Sloane.

No. 15. Ditto, imperfect, representing a head of Minerva and a head of Jupiter.

No. 16. Ditto, representing Minerva assisting the Argonauts to build the famous ship Argo.

No. 17. Ditto, imperfect, representing Venus on the ocean, riding upon a sea-horse.

No. 18. Ditto, representing Victory pouring out a libation to Apollo Musagetes. From the collection of Sir Hans Sloane.

No. 19. Ditto, representing a candelabrum lighted for a sacrifice. On each side stands a priestess, who with one hand supports the sacred fillets which decorate the candelabrum, and with the other hand raises a small portion of her robe, like the figure of Hope on coins of the Roman Emperors.

No. 20. Ditto, representing Machaon, after he has been wounded. He is supposed to be sitting in the tent of Nestor, who is administering a potion to him, as described in the XIth book of the Iliad. The females in attendance are slaves.

No. 21. Ditto, representing Bacchus and a G Faun;

ROOM I. Faun; the former holds a thyrsus in his left hand, ANTIQUITIES. the latter carries a torch in his right hand, and an amphora on his left shoulder.

No. 22. A bas-relief, representing two Fauns, kneeling, one of them playing upon the tambourin, the other accompanying him with small musical instruments called crotala. Between them is Ampelus, the lower part of whose figure terminates in branches of the vine.

No. 23. Ditto, representing two of the Seasons, Spring and Summer.

No. 24. Ditto, representing Victory sacrificing a bull before a lighted candelabrum, which is used as an altar.

No. 25. Ditto, imperfect, representing Perseus cutting off the head of Medusa.

No. 26. Ditto, representing Victory sacrificing a bull before a small altar, which is placed upon a tripod table.

No. 27. Ditto, imperfect, representing a female Bacchante offering a basket of figs to the goddess Pudicitia. From the collection of Sir Hans Sloane.

No. 28. Ditto, representing two Fauns gathering grapes into baskets.

No. 29. Repetition of No. 21.

No. 30. A bas-relief, representing Bacchus leaning on the shoulders of a Faun. At his feet is a panther holding up his mouth to receive the wine which is poured from the vase held in the right

right hand of Bacchus. Before this group is a female attendant on Bacchus, holding a thyrsus in her hand. ROOM I.
ANTIQUITIES.

No. 31. A bas-relief, representing two Fauns leaning over a large open vessel of wine, as if observing the reflection of their faces on the surface of the liquor.

No. 32. Ditto, imperfect, representing a trophy, before which stands a captive attended by a guard, and secured by a chain fastened round his right wrist.

No. 33. Ditto, representing two Fauns gathering grapes into baskets. From the collection of Sir Hans Sloane.

No. 34. Ditto, representing Paris carrying off Helen, in a car drawn by four horses.

No. 35. Ditto, representing Egyptian hieroglyphics.

No. 36. Ditto, representing two persons navigating the Nile in a boat. In the fore-ground are a hippopotamus, two crocodiles, some birds, and several plants of the nymphæa lotus. In the distance are buildings, on the roofs of which are seen three Ibises. The whole of this scenery is viewed through two arches supported by columns.

No. 37. Ditto, imperfect, representing a vase with two handles, on one side of which is a panther leaping up, a thyrsus, and the letter A.

No. 38. A statue of the Muse Urania: both the hands are wanting; but from the position of ROOM I. the arms, it is probable that the figure held a ANTIQUITIES. radius in the right hand, and a celestial globe in the left hand. It is three feet ten inches high, and is one of the largest statues that has been found of terracotta.

No. 39. An Amphora. From the collection of Sir Hans Sloane.

No. 40. A statue of a muse, resting her left arm upon a pile of writing tablets, which are placed upon a square column. The right arm is raised towards the neck. The figure, in its present state, is three feet four inches high; the head is lost.

No. 41. An Amphora. From the collection of Sir Hans Sloane.

No. 42. A bas-relief, representing a short naked human figure, with a beard; he holds in each hand the stem of a plant. On each side of this figure is seated a quadruped, whose head is that of an elderly man, and whose tail terminates in a flower.

No. 43. Ditto, representing Cupids supporting festoons of fruit.

No. 44. Ditto, representing a Faun and a Bacchante dancing, and holding between them the infant Bacchus in a basket used for winnowing corn.

No. 45. Ditto, representing the head of Pan, on each side of which is the head of a Satyr; one of the Satyrs is crowned with branches of the pine, and the other with branches of ivy.

No. 46.

No. 46. Repetition of No. 45.

No. 47. A bas-relief, representing the Indian ANTIQUITIES.
Bacchus received as a guest by Icarus.

No. 48. A bas-relief, representing two Fauns riding on panthers. The hinder parts of the panthers terminate in vine leaves. Between the panthers is a vase with two handles.

No. 49. Ditto, representing a bull and a lion running in contrary directions. The hind legs of both animals are enveloped in foliage.

No. 50. Ditto, representing a lighted candelabrum, which is composed entirely of a plant. The flames issue from the flower, which grows upon a long stem. On each side stands a priestess with one hand holding up a small portion of her robe (see Nos. 19 and 54), and with the other hand holding one of the branches of the plant.

No. 51. Ditto, representing two of the Seasons, Autumn and Winter.

No. 52. Ditto, imperfect, representing the goddess Salus feeding a serpent out of a patera. The serpent is twined round the trunk of a tree, from a branch of which are suspended two cast-off skins of the serpent.

No. 53. Ditto, representing a warrior consulting the oracle of Apollo.

No. 54. Ditto, representing a lighted candelabrum, on each side of which stands a priestess carrying a patera on her head, and holding up a small

ROOM I. small portion of her robe with one hand. (See ANTIQUITIES. Nos. 19 and 50.)

No. 55. A bas-relief, representing Theseus slaying a Centaur.

No. 56. Repetition of No. 18.

No. 57. Repetition of No. 23.

No. 58. Repetition of No. 50.

No. 59. A bas-relief, representing two Fauns treading out the juice of grapes in a wine-press. On one side is a Faun playing upon the double pipe ; and on the other side another Faun, somewhat aged in his appearance, loaded with a heavy basket of grapes.

No. 60. Ditto, representing a chariot race.

No. 61. Repetition of No. 6.

No. 62. A bas-relief, representing a mask of Bacchus, between those of a young and an old Faun.

No. 63. Repetition of No. 62.

No. 64. Repetition of No. 6.

No. 65. A bas-relief, representing two captives in a car drawn by two horses. The captives have chains fastened round their necks and round their ancles, and the ends of the chains are held by guards walking on each side of the car.

No. 66. Ditto, representing a head of Jupiter Ammon, which rests on a flower. The ends of the fillets with which the head of Jupiter is crowned are held on each side by a faun, who is furnished with wings, and whose figure terminates below

below in foliage, which curls in such a manner as to give the figure the appearance of a Triton. ROOM I.
ANTIQUITIES.

No. 67. A bas-relief, representing two Fauns gathering grapes into baskets.

No. 68. Ditto, representing a figure of Victory standing upon a plant, and supporting the branches of it with her hands.

No. 69. Repetition of No. 33.

No. 70. A bas-relief, representing Victory sacrificing a bull before a tripod altar.

No. 71. Ditto, imperfect, representing Theseus riding at full speed, and cutting off the head of an Amazon, whom he has caught by the hair of her head.

No. 72. Ditto, representing Venus carried through the air upon a swan.

No. 73. Ditto, representing Cupid pressing Psyche, in the form of a butterfly, to his breast.

No. 74. Ditto, representing Cupid flying, with a palm branch in one hand, and a wreath in the other.

No. 75. A terminal head of the bearded Bacchus.

No. 76. A female statue, probably of Thalia, the pastoral Muse.

No. 77. An Amphora. From the collection of Sir Hans Sloane.

No. 78. A female statue, the character unknown. The head and lower arms are modern.

No. 79. A statue of Juno, crowned with an indented diadem. Part of the arms is wanting.

Nos. 80—83. Amphoræ of various forms.

No. 97. A statue of Mercury, sleeping upon a rock.

ELEVENTH ROOM.

MEDALS AND COINS.

ROOM XI. This collection, the basis of which was formed ANTIQUITIES. by the cabinets of Sir Hans Sloane and Sir Robert Cotton, has been from time to time enlarged by many valuable purchases and donations, but principally by the munificent bequest of the Rev. C. M. Cracherode. It is comprehended under the three following heads:

1. Ancient Coins.
2. Modern Coins.
3. Medals.

The first of these heads consists of Greek and Roman coins. ROOM XI.
ANTIQUITIES.

The Greek coins are arranged in geographical order, and include all those struck with Greek characters, in Greece or elsewhere, by kings, states or cities, which were independent of the Romans. With this class are placed likewise the coins of free states and cities, which made use of either the Etruscan, Roman, Punic, Spanish, or other characters.

The Roman coins are placed, as far as it can be ascertained, in chronological order. They consist of the As and its divisions; Family or Consular coins; Imperial coins struck in Rome; Imperial coins struck in Egypt; Imperial coins struck with Greek characters, in different states and cities subject to the Romans; Imperial coins struck in the Roman colonies; Imperial coins struck with Punic characters; and Contorniates.

The second head, comprising modern coins, consists of Anglo-Saxon, English, Anglo-Gallic, Scotch, and Irish coins, and likewise the coins of foreign nations. This class is arranged according to the respective countries to which the coins belong, those of each country being kept separate.

The third head, which comprises a class considerably more modern than either of those which precede it, consists of medals struck in our own country, and of those which have been struck

ROOM XI. abroad. These are arranged in the same manner as the modern coins.

ANTE-ROOM.

ANTE-ROOM. No. 1. In the centre of the Ante-room, at the head of the stairs, is placed the celebrated Barberini vase, which was for more than two centuries the principal ornament of the Barberini Palace. This vase was purchased of Sir William Hamilton nearly thirty years ago, by the Duchess of Portland, since which period it has been more generally known by the name of the Portland Vase. It was found about the middle of the sixteenth century, two miles and a half from Rome, in the road leading to Frascati. At the time of its discovery, the vase was inclosed in a marble sarcophagus, within a sepulchral chamber, under the Mount called Monte del Grano. The material of which the vase is formed is glass: the figures, which are executed in relief, are of a beautiful opaque white, and the ground is in perfect harmony with the figures, and of a dark transparent blue. The subject of these figures is extremely obscure, and has not hitherto received a satisfactory elucidation; but the design and the sculpture are both truly admirable. This superb specimen of Greek art was deposited in the British Museum, in 1810, by His Grace the Duke of Portland.

No. 2. An ancient painting in fresco, representing senting deer; it was found in a subterraneous ANTE-ROOM. chamber at Scrofano, about sixteen miles from ANTIQUITIES. Rome. From the collection of Sir William Hamilton.

No. 3. A bas-relief, in stucco, representing a winged boy, or genius, carrying a pedom across his right shoulder. From the collection of Sir William Hamilton.

No. 4. An ancient painting in fresco, representing a female figure holding a patera, on which a vase is placed. Presented, in 1771, by the Earl of Exeter.

No. 5. An ancient painting in fresco, representing two females seated, in the Arabesque style, on the curling branches of a plant; one of them is holding a vase, the other a tambourin. Between these figures is a bas-relief, in stucco, representing a human head surrounded with ivy, and underneath are two birds drinking out of a well. Presented, in 1757, by Thomas Hollis, Esq.

TWELFTH ROOM.

COLLECTION OF SIR WILLIAM HAMILTON.

(CASES 1, 2, 3, 4.) Penates, or household gods, ROOM XII. in bronze. In the lower part of these cases are ANTIQUITIES. contained some large bronze vessels, one of which, in the form of a round deep patera, is remarkable for the beauty of its handles, which are raised above the edge: they represent two serpents

ROOM XII. holding an egg in their mouths ; underneath the ANTIQUITIES. serpents is the ægis of Minerva.

(CASE 5.) A raven, the size of life, and seven large candelabra, in bronze. The raven was presented, in 1777, by Lord Seaforth. It is of the finest workmanship, and has probably accompanied a statue of Apollo.

(CASE 6.) Specimens of ancient glass. The principal articles are eight cinerary urns. One of them has the leaden covering in which it was preserved ; and another contains the burnt bones, and the asbestos cloth which prevented the ashes of the body from mixing with those of the funeral pile. These articles are accompanied by a great number of lachrymatories, and various other vessels and fragments of vessels, of different forms and colours ; the whole of which afford ample proof of the ingenuity of the ancients, and of the great knowledge they possessed in the art of manufacturing glass, and of imparting to it whatever colour or form they chose.

(CASE 7.) A large collection of pateræ, upon which are engravings, principally in outline. In this case are also exhibited the umbo of a shield and the scabbard of a parazonium, both of which are ornamented in like manner with engraved figures. The same case likewise contains two bronze arms, executed in a good style ; the largest appears to be of very early work.

(CASE 11.) Necklaces, ear-rings, armillæ, and various other trinkets in gold, several of which are

are enriched with precious stones. Among the antiquities of gold in this case is a bulla, and a large patera : the latter is embossed with bulls, and was found at Gergenti in Sicily. This case contains also a large collection of scarabæi, and engraved gems, from the collections of Sir William Hamilton, Charles Townley, Esq. and the Rev. C. M. Cracherode. A piece of small mosaic work, and a few specimens of ancient art executed in silver, are likewise among the articles included in this case.

ANTIQUITIES.

(CASE 15.) Fragments in terracotta. They consist chiefly of small heads, some of which are well executed, and some are valuable as exhibiting specimens of the Roman head-dresses.

(CASE 16.) Small figures, and miscellaneous articles in terracotta.

(CASE 17.) Hindu, Chinese, and Japanese idols.

(CASE 26.) Ditto.

(CASE 27.) Small figures, and miscellaneous articles in terracotta.

(CASES 28, 32, 36.) Fragments of friezes in terracotta.

(CASE 37.) Specimens of ancient armour in bronze, consisting of helmets, breast-plates, standards, swords, belts, heads of spears, points of arrows, &c. In the middle division of this case is the Roman helmet which was found at Ribchester in Lancashire.

(CASE 38.) A tripod, a lectisternium, a pair of steelyards, and two very large candelabra, in bronze.

ROOM XII. bronze. The two first articles were presented by ANTIQUITIES. Sir William Hamilton, namely, the tripod in 1774, and the lectisternium in 1784.

(CASES 39, 40, 41, 42.) Miscellaneous antiquities in bronze, comprising scales, knives, pateræ, and simpula; mirrors, lamps, bells, and mortars; measures and wine-strainers; large vessels for culinary and other purposes; several small candelabra, and other articles.

(CASES 43, 44, 45.) A large collection of Roman lamps in terracotta.

(CASES 46, 47, 48.) Ditto.

(CASES 49, 50, 51.) Ditto.

(CASE 52.) Dice and tali, formed of various substances.

(CASE 53.) A great variety of tesserae in ivory, bronze, crystal, agate, and terracotta, many of which were tickets of admission to the theatres. In this case also is a considerable number of styles for writing on wax tablets; pins for the hair; bodkins, and needles both for sewing and netting.

(CASE 54.) Architectural mouldings in porphyry, part of a frieze in rosso antico, handles of knives, fragments of lectisternia, &c. &c.

(CASE 55.) Stamps for sealing casks.

(CASE 56.) A large collection of Roman weights.

(CASE 57.) Votive offerings in bronze.

(CASE 58.) A brick taken out of the ruins of a large city, supposed to have been Babylon, near the

the town of Hillah, on the river Euphrates; it has an inscription in unknown characters.

ROOM XII.
ANTIQUITIES.

(CASE 59.) Specimens of ancient painting, from Herculaneum.

(CASE 60.) A brick similar to the one in Case 58.

(CASES 61, 62, 63) Specimens of bas-reliefs in stucco, from the walls of Herculaneum.

(CASE 64.) Celts.

(CASE 65.) Various instruments used by the ancients.

(CASE 66.) Celts.

(CASE 67.) A marble patera, fourteen inches in diameter, found in the ruins of Hadrian's Villa; in this case are also contained specimens of Roman enamel, and inlaid work; and likewise some figs and other vegetable substances, found in a calcined state in the ruins of Herculaneum.

(CASE 68.) Armillæ, or bracelets, and various unknown ornaments in bronze.

(CASE 69.) A large patera of Oriental jasper, cups of crystal, agate, &c.

(CASE 70.) Hinges and nails.

(CASE 71.) Fibulæ, or brooches.

(CASE 72.) Buckles used by the Ancients for different purposes.

(CASE 73.) Handles and other parts of vases.

(CASE 74.) Ditto.

(CASE 75. Specimens of locks and keys.

(CASE

ROOM XII. (CASE 76.) Spears, knives, and various instru-ANTIQUITIES. ments in iron.

(CASE 77.) Bits, spurs, and ornaments for harness; fragments of chains, &c.

(CASE 78.) Some articles in bronze; the uses to which many of them were applied are unknown.

The intermediate and subsequent cases in this Room are filled with Greek vases, of which great numbers were found in sepulchres within those parts of the kingdom of Naples anciently called Magna Græcia. Most of these vases are ornamented with paintings, representing a variety of subjects, chiefly mythological, the compositions of which are truly elegant. The forms of the vases are much varied, and are equally simple and beautiful.

THIRTEENTH ROOM.

ROOM XIII. PRINTS AND DRAWINGS.
ANTIQUITIES.

This Room contains an extensive and valuable collection of prints and drawings, the most important part of which was bequeathed by the Rev. C. M. Cracherode.—The contents of this Room, as well as the collection of coins and medals, can be seen only by a few persons at a time, and by particular permission.

FOURTEENTH

FOURTEENTH ROOM.

No. 1—23. Bas-reliefs, representing the battle of the Centaurs and Lapithæ, and the combat between the Greeks and Amazons; they were found in the ruins of the temple of Apollo Epicurius (or the deliverer), built on mount Cotylion, at a little distance from the ancient city of Phigalia in Arcadia. These bas-reliefs composed the frieze in the interior of the Cella. The battle of the Centaurs and Lapithæ is sculptured on eleven slabs of marble. (1—11.) That of the Greeks and Amazons occupies twelve. (12—23.) The direction of the slabs belonging to the former subject was from right to left; that of the latter from left to right.

ROOM XIV.
ANTIQUITIES.

A circumstance which adds very much to the interest of these marbles, is our knowledge of the precise time when they were executed; for Pausanias, in his description of this temple, informs us that it was built by Ictinus, an architect contemporary with Pericles, and who built the Parthenon at Athens.

No. 24. A fragment of a Doric capital of one of the columns of the Peristyle. From the same temple.

No. 25. A fragment of an Ionic capital of one of the columns of the Cella. From the same temple.

No. 28—38. Fragments of the Metopes, found in the porticos of the Pronaos, and Posticus, which were enriched with triglyphs. From the same temple.

No. 39. A small tile, which was used for the purpose of covering the joints of the greater tiles; the ornament in front surmounted the cornice. From the same temple.

No. 40. Another tile used for the same purpose, but on the point of the ridge. From the same temple.

THE FOLLOWING ARTICLES CONTAINED IN THIS ROOM FORM A PART OF THE COLLECTION WHICH BELONGED TO THE EARL OF ELGIN.

No. 41. An Egyptian scarabæus, or beetle, brought from Constantinople.

No. 42. An architectural statue; it was one of the Caryatides which supported the roof under which the olive tree of Minerva was sheltered, in the temple of Pandrosus at Athens.

No. 43. A piece of the shaft of an Ionic column.

No. 44. The capital of an Ionic column belonging to the temple of Diana, at Daphne, on the road from Athens to Eleusis.

No. 45.

No. 45. A piece of the shaft of an Ionic column, belonging to the same temple. ROOM XIV.
ANTIQUITIES.

No. 46. The base of an Ionic column, likewise belonging to the same temple.

No. 47. The capital of an Ionic column, from the portico of the Erectheum, at Athens. The building to which this singularly beautiful piece of architecture belonged, was a double temple dedicated to Minerva Polias and Pandrosus.

Nos. 48, 49. A portion of the shaft, and the base, of the same column.

No. 50. A solid monumental urn, or cenotaph, with a bas-relief in front, not inscribed.

No. 51. Another monumental urn, of the same kind, inscribed with the name of Phædimus of Naucratis.

No. 52—54. Casts in plaster of three of the metopes of the north side of the temple of Theseus, at Athens. The first represents Theseus killing Creon, king of Thebes; the second, Theseus overcoming Cercyon, king of Eleusis, in a wrestling match; and the third, Theseus killing the Crommian sow.

No. 55—68. Casts in plaster from the frieze of the Pronaos of the temple of Theseus. The subject of this frieze is a battle fought in the presence of six divinities, who are represented sitting in the midst of the combatants.

No. 69—73. Casts in plaster from the frieze of the Posticus of the same temple. The subject ROOM XIV. ject of these sculptures is the battle of the Centaurs and Lapithæ.

 ANTIQUITIES.

No. 74—88. Casts in plaster of the whole of the frieze at the west end of the Parthenon; these casts are arranged in the order in which the original marbles were placed in the temple.

No. 89—97. Casts in plaster of the frieze of the Choragic monument of Lysicrates, commonly called the Lantern of Demosthenes. The subject of this frieze is the story of Bacchus and the Tyrrhenian pirates.

Nos. 98, 99. Casts in plaster, from one of the ends of the celebrated sarcophagus in the cathedral church at Agrigentum, which represents the story of Phædra and Hippolitus. Phædra is here represented surrounded by her female domestics, and plunged into grief at the refusal of Hippolytus, which has just been communicated to her. The attendants are endeavouring in various ways to console their mistress, and some of them attempt to alleviate her distress by the sounds of their instruments.

No. 100. A cast in plaster of a portion of the frieze from the east front of the Parthenon. The original is in the French collection. Presented, in 1820, by Francis Chantrey, Esq.

No. 101. A torso of Venus, of very fine sculpture. Purchased in 1821.

The fragments of mosaic pavement (placed for the present in this room) were found at Wingham thington in Gloucestershire. They were presented, ROOM XIV.

in 1811, by Henry Brooke, Esq. ANTIQUITIES.

FIFTEENTH ROOM.

ALL THE ARTICLES IN THIS ROOM, EXCEPT A FEW
 WHICH ARE PARTICULARLY SPECIFIED, BELONG-ED TO THE EARL OF ELGIN.

No. 1—15. Fifteen of the metopes belonging ROOM XV.
 to the Parthenon, which, alternately with the tri- ANTIQUITIES.
 glyphs, ornamented the frieze of the entablature surmounting the colonnade : they represent the battle between the Centaurs and Lapithæ, or rather between the Centaurs and Athenians, who under Theseus joined the Lapithæ (a people of Thessaly) in this contest. In some of these sculptures the Centaurs are victorious, in others the Athenians have the advantage, while in others again the victory seems doubtful with respect to either of the combatants. These magnificent specimens of ancient art are executed with great spirit, in alto-relievo : they were seen at a height of nearly forty-four feet from the ground.

No. 16. A plaster cast of the metope, No. 7.

No. 15*—62. The exterior frieze of the Cella of the Parthenon, which embellished the upper part of the walls, within the colonnade, at the height of the frieze of the Pronaos, and which was continued in an uninterrupted series of sculpture entirely round the temple. It is in very low relief. The subject represents the sacred procession

ROOM XV. sion which took place at the great Panathenæa, ANTIQUITIES. a festival which was celebrated every fifth year, at Athens, in honour of Minerva, the patroness of the city. The bas-reliefs which compose this frieze are arranged as nearly as it could be ascertained, and was compatible with the construction of the present room, in the same order as they were originally placed in the Parthenon. Those on the principal front of the temple, namely the east, are placed first, then follow those of the north, and lastly those of the west and south :
 they are arranged, in short, in the same manner in which they would be seen by the spectator who approached the temple by the east, and walked round it by the north, west, and south.

No. 15—21. That portion of the above-mentioned frieze which occupied the east end of the temple. On two of the slabs which compose this part of the frieze are represented divinities and deified heroes, seated ; namely, Castor and Pollux, Ceres and Triptolemus, Jupiter and Juno, and Aesculapius and Hygeia. There was originally a third slab, which represented four other divinities, also seated, but it has disappeared for many years. On the right and left of these sacred characters, are trains of females with their faces directed to the gods, to whom they are carrying gifts ; we see also directors or regulators of the procession, among whom are the officers whose duty it was to receive the presents that were offered. These females appear to have headed headed the procession, and to have been followed by the victims, charioteers, horsemen, &c. both on the north and south sides of the temple, which together formed a procession up to the same point in two separate columns.

No. 22—33. A portion of the same frieze, taken from the north side of the temple. No. 22 is a fragment of a much larger slab ; it represents two of the Metæci, or strangers, who settled at Athens, and were allowed to take part in the procession. They carry on their shoulders a kind of tray filled with cakes and other articles. The remainder of this part of the frieze represents charioteers and horsemen. Among the latter are seven slabs, succeeding each other in their original order, and which, whether we consider the elegance of the compositions, or the spirit with which the figures of the men and horses are executed, present us with the highest effort of the art of sculpture in the class of low relief.

No. 34—38. Five slabs of the frieze from the north side of the temple ; they ought to have been introduced, if the room would have permitted it, between Nos. 24 and 25. Three of these slabs represent charioteers, and two of them horsemen.

No. 38*. A single slab of the north frieze which serves to fill up a chasm between Nos. 31 and 32, and to complete the series from No. 25 to 33 inclusive.

Nos. 38, 38. Two slabs of the south frieze.

No. 39.

ANTIQUITIES.

ROOM XV. No. 39. A single slab of the frieze from the ANTIQUITIES, west end of the temple. It represents two horsemen, one of whom is riding before the other, and seems to be in the act of urging his companion to quicken his pace. The direction of these figures is the same as that on the north side, namely, from right to left. There is a peculiarity in the frieze of the west end, which distinguishes it from that on the north and south sides of the temple. The subjects represented on the slabs of those two sides run one into another, that is, what was left imperfect in one slab is completed in the next; whereas in the west end the subjects are nearly complete on each piece of marble. The western frieze is likewise distinguished from those of the two sides of the temple, by the comparatively few figures introduced into it.

The frieze at the west end of the temple originally consisted of fifteen slabs, of which there is a perfect set of plaster casts preserved in this collection. See Room XIV. (No. 74—88.)

No. 40—62. A portion of the same frieze, namely, that portion which enriched the south side of the temple. It represents a procession of victims, charioteers, and horsemen, and is very similar in its general character and appearance to the frieze on the opposite or north side. With respect to the victims, we do not possess any that were on the north side of the temple; but that they formed a part of the procession on

 Athens, has engraved a fragment of one of them.

No. 63. A group of two of the Fates, from the east pediment of the Parthenon, on which was represented the birth of Minerva. Another figure in this collection (No. 67) is supposed to have been one of the Fates, and to have formed a part of the same group.

No. 64. The upperpart of the torso of Neptune, one of the principal figures in the west pediment of the Parthenon. The subject of the sculptures represented on this pediment was the contest between Minerva and Neptune for the honour of giving name to the city of Athens.

No. 65. The upper part of the figure of Hyperion rising out of the sea. His arms are stretched forward, in the act of holding the reins of his coursers. This figure which represents the approach of day, is from the east pediment of the Parthenon, where it occupied the angle on the left of the spectator.

No. 66. The heads of two of the horses belonging to the car of Hyperion. They are just emerging from the waves, and seem impatient to run their course. From the east pediment of the Parthenon.

No. 67. A female figure, in a sitting posture, also from the east pediment of the Parthenon. This is supposed to be one of the sister Fates,

ROOM XV. and to have formed part of the group already ANTIQUITIES. described under No. 63.

No. 68. The head of one of the horses belonging to the chariot of Night, which was represented plunging into the ocean on the right angle of the east pediment of the Parthenon, that is to say, the right angle in reference to the spectator. The car of Day has been already described, as it was represented rising out of the waters on the opposite angle of the same pediment (Nos. 65, 66.)

No. 69. The Torso of Victoria Apteros, or Victory without wings, who was represented in this manner by the Athenians, to intimate that they held her gifts in perpetuity, and that she could not desert them. This goddess was represented driving the car of Minerva, on the west pediment of the Parthenon; the car approached Minerva, as if to receive her into it, after her successful contest with Neptune.

No. 70. A recumbent statue supposed to be of the river-god Ilissus. The Ilissus was a small stream that ran along the south side of the plain of Athens. This figure, which, with the exception of the Theseus, is the finest in the collection, occupied the left angle of the west pediment of the Parthenon.

No. 71. A statue of Theseus, the Athenian hero; he is represented half reclined on a rock, which is covered with the skin of a lion. Theseus, it

it is well known, professedly imitated the character of Hercules; and it is worthy of remark, that the attitude here given to Theseus is very similar to that of Hercules on some of the coins of Crotona. This wonderfully fine statue originally occupied a place in the east pediment of the Parthenon, next to the horses of Hyperion.

No. 72. A torso of Victory, from the east pediment of the Parthenon. The wings of this figure were probably of bronze; the holes in which they were fastened to the marble may still be seen.

No. 73. A fragment of a group which originally consisted of Latona with her two children, Apollo and Diana. This group was placed on the right side of the west pediment of the Parthenon. All that remains in the fragment before us is the lap of Latona, with a small portion of the figure of the infant Apollo.

No. 74. A statue of Iris, one of the daughters of Oceanus, and the messenger of the celestial deities, particularly of Juno. It is from the east pediment of the Parthenon. Iris is represented in quick motion, with her veil inflated and fluttering behind her; and she appears evidently in haste to execute the mission on which she is sent, that of communicating to the distant regions of the earth the important intelligence of the birth of Minerva.

No. 75. A fragment of the statue of Minerva, one of the principal figures in the west pediment

ROOM XV. of the Parthenon, and of nearly the same proportions as the torso of Neptune, from the same ANTIQUITIES. pediment (No. 64). This fragment consists of a portion only of the chest of the goddess, which is covered, as usual, with the ægis. The angles of the ægis appear to have been ornamented with bronze serpents, and the centre of it to have been studded with the head of Medusa, of the same metal; the holes in which these ornaments were fastened to the marble are plainly visible. The upper part of the head of this statue is still preserved in the collection. (See No. 118.)

No. 76. The torso of a male figure, supposed to be that of Cecrops, the founder of Athens. It is from the west pediment of the Parthenon.

No. 77. A group of two goddesses, probably intended to represent Ceres and her daughter Proserpine; the latter is leaning on the right shoulder of her mother. They are sitting on low seats, which are nearly alike in their construction, both of them being furnished with cushions, and ornamented with mouldings of a similar style. This group was in the east pediment of the Parthenon.

No. 78. A small figure of Telesphorus, completely enveloped in a cloak; it wants the head.

No. 79. The chest of a female figure, covered with drapery; it has probably belonged to one of the metopes of the Parthenon.

No. 80. The capital of an Ionic column, from the temple of Diana, at Daphne.

No. 81*. A small fragment of a very ancient Greek inscription, written in the bustrophedon manner. Presented, in 1785, by the Dilettanti Society.

No. 82. A bas-relief, representing a young man standing between two goddesses, Vesta and Minerva, who are crowning him.

No. 83. A Greek inscription in the Doric dialect; it is a dedication to Bacchus, by Alexas the son of Nikon, and Cephisodorus the son of Aglaophædas, who had both been victorious in the choruses of men.

No. 84. A fragment of a bas-relief, representing an elderly man before one of the gods, probably Bacchus, who appears to hold a vase in his right hand.

No. 85. A piece of the architrave of the Erectheum, at Athens.

No. 86. A votive Greek inscription of Antisthenes, the priest of Pandion: he was the son of Antiphates, and belonged to the tribe of Pandionis.

No. 87. An imperfect Greek inscription, engraved on three sides of a piece of marble, in very ancient letters. Presented, in 1785, by the Dilettanti Society.

No. 88. A Greek inscription from Athens, signifying that certain gifts, which are specified, had been consecrated to some goddess, probably Venus,

ROOM XV. Venus, by a female who held the office of lighter

No. 89. A fragment of a bas-relief, representing Minerva placing a crown upon a person's head.

No. 90. A small female figure, covered with drapery; it is without a head.

No. 91. A circular votive altar, ornamented with the heads of bulls, from which festoons are suspended. The inscription, in Greek, near the bottom, is a prayer for the prosperity and health of a person named Casiniax.

No. 92. A Greek inscription, written in two columns; it contains a list of names arranged in the order of the tribes to which they respectively belonged.

No. 93. An agonistic inscription, in Greek, consisting of the names of those who had conquered in the foot race of the stadium, and double stadium; in wrestling; in boxing; in the pancratium; and pentathlum.

No. 94. A bas-relief, imperfect, representing a goddess seated on a chair or throne, behind whom are seven figures, four of which are children; one of the latter is leading a ram to an altar, the rest are in the attitude of devotion.

No. 97. A bas-relief, representing a votive figure of Cybele, seated in a kind of small temple.

No. 98. A fragment of a bas-relief; belonging to the frieze on the north side of the Parthenon; it is a part of the slab, No. 35.

No. 99. An oblong shallow vessel for containing holy water. The front is ornamented with a bas-relief representing five figures, one of which, probably Juno, is seated on a throne: of the remaining figures, three females are imploring the benediction of the goddess in behalf of their children, whom they are carrying in their arms, and a fourth is bringing oblations. From Cape Sigeum, near the plain of Troy.

No. 100. An unknown bust.

No. 101. A fragment of a bas-relief, representing three figures sacrificing before an altar.

No. 102. A fragment of the capital of a Corinthian column; it is ornamented with the leaves of the laurel and acanthus.

No. 103. A fragment of a bas-relief, representing two of the goddesses, Latona and Diana, in procession. Similar bas-reliefs, in a more perfect state, are preserved in the Albani collection. The temple which is here introduced, is probably that of Apollo, which stood in the street at Athens, called "the tripods."

No. 103*. A small bas-relief, imperfect, representing

No. 104. A fragment of a cinerary urn, on which are represented four figures in bas-relief. The two central figures consist of a young man and woman who are joining hands, and whose names are inscribed above in Greek characters, Demonstrata and Callistus. Two other figures are standing by the side of these, in a pensive attitude.

No. 105. The upper part of the head of an Egyptian idol, in granite; the head is that of a lion, and is remarkable for being ornamented with a crown of serpents, similar to that which is spoken of in the Rosetta inscription.

No. 106. A circular altar, from the island of Delos; it is ornamented with the heads of bulls and festoons in very bold relief.

No. 106*. A Greek inscription relating to Oropus. Presented, in 1820, by John P. Gandy, Esq.

No. 107. A fragment of a bas-relief, representing a figure standing upright in a dignified attitude; it is probably intended for Bacchus.

No. 107*. The feet of a male statue, on the plinth. Presented, in 1820, by John P. Gandy, Esq.

No. 108. A bas-relief, imperfect; it represents three goddesses, one of whom is seated on a throne.

No. 110. A solid urn, or cenotaph, in the front of which two figures, a man and woman, are represented joining hands. The former is standing, the latter is seated. The names of both were probably inscribed upon the urn, but that of the woman only is preserved, Ada.

No. 111. A sepulchral column of Mysta: the Greek inscription informs us that she was a native of Miletus, daughter of Dionysius, and wife of Rhaton, who was a native of Thria, a town belonging to the tribe of Oeneis.

No. 112. A fragment of a square altar, which has probably been dedicated to Bacchus. The ornaments on two of the sides only have been preserved; these represent female Bacchantes in dancing attitudes. One of the figures holds a shawl or veil in her hands, the other brandishes a thyrsus.

No. 113. A small tile, in terracotta, which has been used to cover the joints of the larger tiles. The front is enriched with a fleuron, and is also inscribed with the name of the maker, Athenæus.

No. 114. An unknown female head, the hair of which is confined within a close elegantly formed cap. The same style of head-dress is observable on some of the silver coins of Corinth.

No. 115. The head of a laughing figure, executed in the early hard style of Greek sculpture.

No. 116. The head of a middle aged man, with of a mariner.

No. 117. A head of the bearded Hercules.

No. 118. The upper part of the head of Minerva: the statue to which it belonged formed one of the principal figures in the west pediment of the Parthenon. This head was originally covered with a bronze helmet, as appears from the holes by which it was fastened to the marble: and the sockets of the eyes, which were originally filled with metal or coloured stones, are now hollow. This fragment of a head, and the portion of a female chest, already described (No. 75), have both belonged to the same statue of Minerva.

No. 119. An unknown bearded head, very much mutilated: it is larger than life, and is crowned with a very thick cord-shaped diadem.

No. 120. A head of the bearded Hercules, similar to No. 117, but of smaller dimensions.

No. 121. A fragment of a head, crowned with vine leaves; it appears to have been executed at a declining period of the arts.

No. 122. An unknown female head, the hair of which is concealed within a close head-dress.

No. 123. A fragment of a bas-relief, representing an unknown female head: from the style of the hair, which is curiously plaited, we may fix the sculpture to about the time of Antoninus Pius.

No. 125. A fragment of a statue of Hygeia.

No. 126. A fragment of a bas-relief, with part of an inscription.

No. 127—130. Four pieces of the frieze from the temple of Erectheus at Athens ; they are enriched with flowers and other ornaments, which are designed with the most perfect taste, and are chiseled with a degree of sharpness and precision truly admirable.

No. 131—147. Fragments of figures, many of which have belonged to the metopes of the Parthenon.

No. 148. A cinerary urn, ornamented in front with four standing figures ; two of these, in the centre, are joining hands, the other two are in a pensive attitude. The names of all the figures were originally inscribed on the urn ; the first name is not legible ; the others are Philia, Metrodora, and Meles.

No. 149. A sepulchral column of Thalia, the daughter of Callistratus, of Aexone.

No. 150. A fragment of a sepulchral stèle ; the inscription is very imperfect, but records the name of Musonia. The summit is ornamented with the figure of a butterfly on some fruit.

 lady of extraordinary beauty, named Tryphera, who died at the early age of 25 years.

No. 153. A sepulchral Greek inscription, engraved on a piece of entablature. It consists of two lines in prose, and sixteen in pentameter verse. The name of the deceased was Publius Phædrus, a native of Sunium, son of Theophilus and Cecropia, and grandson of Pistoteles. The inscription states that he was of noble family, and that his death was followed by the universal regret of the Athenians, on account of his youth, learning, wisdom and personal accomplishments.

No. 154. A piece of Doric entablature, origin-

No. 159. A fragment of a very ancient Greek inscription from the Acropolis: it contains an account of certain expenses defrayed by those to whom the care of the public games was confided. The name of the Archon, under whom the stone was engraved, is effaced.

No. 160. A fragment of a bas-relief, representing the fore legs and part of the body of a bull.

No. 161. A fragment of a decree made by a society which is distinguished by a number of epithets, among which are two derived from the names of Hadrian and Antoninus. The society appears to have been formed of musicians, and the decree to have been passed in honour of Bacchus and the Emperor Antoninus Pius. A patera is represented on the upper part of this marble.

No. 162. A fragment of a bas-relief, representing a female figure seated in a chair, with a child standing by her side; the upper part of the woman is wanting. This fragment is probably part of a sepulchral monument.

No. 163. A sepulchral solid urn, ornamented with reeds, and inscribed with the name of Timophon, the son of Timostratus, and a native of Anagyrus, whose inhabitants were of the tribe of Eretheis.

No. 164. A sepulchral column inscribed with the

No. 165. A portion of the cornice from the portico of the Erectheum, at Athens.

No. 166. A fragment of a bas-relief, of large dimensions; it represents Hercules preparing to strike Diomed, king of Thrace, whom he has already knocked down, and is holding by the hair of his head.

No. 167. A sepulchral solid urn, having three figures in bas-relief on the front. The first of these is a warrior with a helmet and a shield, who is joining hands with an elderly man dressed in a long tunic; the third figure is a female. The inscription underneath these figures probably contained the names of the parties, but is too mutilated to admit of being decyphered.

No. 168. A sepulchral column of Menestratus, the son of Thoracides, and a native of Corinth.

No. 169. The upper part of a sepulchral stèle, having the inscription, as well as the arabesque ornament on the summit, perfect. The inscription is to the memory of Asclepiodorus the son of Thraco, and Epicydes the son of Asclepiodorus; both the deceased were natives of Olynthus, a city in Macedon.

No. 170. A fragment of a Greek inscription; it is too imperfect to admit of a full explanation, but it seems to have been in honour of a person who had distinguished himself on some occasion by great humanity.

No. 177. A Greek inscription, imperfect, but of which fifty-five lines remain. It is written in the Bœotian, Æolic dialect, and is a treaty between the cities of Orchomenus in Bœotia, and Elataëa in Phocis, respecting some payments due from the Orchomenians to the Elataëans. These payments were for the rent of certain pastures which the people of Elataëa had let out to the Orchomenians. The treaty confirms the payment of the stipulated sums, and renews the treaty of pasturage for four years.

Nos. 178—198. Twenty-one fragments of Greek inscriptions, so imperfect as not to admit of particular description.

No. 199. The celebrated Sigean inscription, first published by Chishull in his “Antiquitates Asiaticæ,” and afterwards more correctly by Chandler in his “Inscriptiones Antiquæ.” It is written in the most ancient Greek characters, and in the bustrophedon manner, that is to say, the lines follow each other in the same direction as the ox passes from one furrow to another in ploughing. The purport of the inscription is to record the presentation of three vessels, namely, a cup, a saucer or stand, and a strainer, for the use of the Prytaneum, or hall of justice, of the Sigeans. The name of the donor was Phanodiscus, the son of Hermocrates, and a native of Proconnesus.

No. 200. A Greek inscription, imperfect, engraved in very ancient characters; it seems to be an inventory of some treasures, probably those contained in the Parthenon, and which the Quæstors acknowledge to have received from their predecessors in the same office. The inscription not only fills one side of the marble, but also the right edge.

 city. It is directed, that the decree shall be engraved on marble, and placed in the temple of Neptune and Amphitrite. It appears, from the inscription immediately following, that the city here alluded to was that of the island of Tenos. Strabo and Tacitus mention a celebrated temple that was dedicated to Neptune in this island, and it is highly probable that the same temple was dedicated to Amphitrite, as well as to Neptune. Neptune and his symbols frequently occur on the medals of Tenos.

No. 232. A fragment of a decree of the people of Tenos, in honour of some benefactor, whose name is not preserved on the marble.

No. 233. A fragment of a public act of the Athenians ; it consists of twenty-one imperfect lines, and seems to relate to the repair of the pavements and roads in the neighbourhood of Athens.

No. 234. A fragment of a public act relating to the people of Athens and Myrina.

No. 235. A bas-relief, representing a Bacchanalian group, found among the ruins of the theatre of Bacchus, on the south west of the Acropolis.

ROOM XV. Acropolis. It consists of four figures, each carrying a thyrsus; one of these is Bacchus, dressed in the Indian costume, who with his right hand is holding out a double-handed vase, into which a female Bacchante is pouring wine from a monota, or vase with one handle. On each side of these figures is an elderly Faun, in a dancing attitude, one of whom is glancing his eye at the contents of a large vessel of wine placed on the ground.

No. 236. A bas-relief, imperfect, representing a charioteer driving four horses at full speed; a figure of Victory is flying towards him with a crown.

No. 236*. A bas-relief, imperfect, inscribed with the names of Aristodice, Aristarchus, and Athenais, natives of Sestus. Presented, in 1785, by the Dilettanti Society.

No. 237. A solid funeral urn, of large dimensions. It has a bas-relief in front, representing two figures joining hands; these figures consist of a female who is seated, and a man who is standing before her. The Greek inscription gives us the names of both persons: one is Pamphilus, the son of Mixiades, and a native of Aegilia; and the other is Archippe, the daughter of Mixiades.

No. 238. A bas-relief, representing Hygeia feeding a serpent out of a patera. She is seated on a throne which is covered with a cushion, and her feet are placed upon a footstool. She wears in her left hand.

No. 239. A solid sepulchral urn, with a bas-relief representing five figures, executed in a singularly rude style. The first of these figures is a boy carrying a large circular shield, the second is a warrior joining hands with a third person, who is seated before him: the group is completed by the introduction of a child, and of a female whose attitude evinces a dejected state of mind. Over the warrior is the name of Sosipus, in Greek letters.

No. 240. A sepulchral column, inscribed with the name of Anaxicrates, an Athenian, the son of Dexiochus; beneath the inscription is the representation of a sepulchral urn, executed in very low relief.

No. 241. A Greek inscription: it is a prayer in behalf of Euphrosynus.

No. 242. A sepulchral inscription, in six elegiac verses, to a young man of the name of Plutarchus, who died in Ausonia, at a distance from his native country.

No. 243. An architectural fragment, which has formed one of the ornaments of a roof.

No. 244. A part of a colossal foot, probably belonging to a figure in one of the pediments of the Parthenon.

Nos. 245—251. Seven bas-reliefs, of small dimensions: they represent various parts of the

No. 252. A fragment of a bas-relief, similar to those just described. The part of the body which had received a cure has been broken off; but the inscription implies, that Syntrophus presents it as a mark of his gratitude to Jupiter Hypsistos.

No. 253. A fragment of a similar bas-relief; the inscription has been broken off, but the part represented is a foot.

No. 254. An architectural fragment, similar to No. 243.

No. 255. A fragment of an unknown female head.

No. 256. The left knee of a colossal statue of very fine work: it has probably belonged to a figure in one of the pediments of the Parthenon.

Nos. 257, 258. Two bas-reliefs, which formed part of the frieze of a temple of the Ionic order (near the Propylæa at Athens), and dedicated to Aglauros. The subject represented on them is a combat between the Greeks and Persians.

Nos. 259, 260. Two bas-reliefs, from the same temple: the combatants appear to be all Greeks.

Nos. 261—272. Fragments of colossal statues, some of which have probably belonged to figures which stood in the pediments of the Parthenon.

No. 274. A sepulchral solid urn, with a bas-relief representing three figures, one of which is seated. The inscription presents us with the following names : Archagoras, Pythyllis, and Polystratus.

No. 275. A sepulchral column, with an inscription to the memory of Biottus, who was the son of Philoxenus, and a native of Diradium.

No. 276. A bas-relief, representing a narrow upright vase with one handle : the form of this vase very much resembles that of the solid urns, so often used by the Greeks as sepulchral monuments.

No. 277. A Greek inscription, imperfect, and very much defaced. It seems to be an inventory of valuable articles contained in some temple.

No. 278. A sepulchral column, inscribed with the name of Botrychus, son of Euphanus, and a native of Heraclea.

No. 279. A fragment of a bas-relief, representing a female sitting.

No. 280. A fragment of a Greek inscription : it is a decree of the people of Athens in honour of Hosacharas, a Macedonian. This decree was passed in the Archonship of Nicodorus, in the 3d year of the 116th Olympiad.

 marble. So much has been broken away from this inscription, that the precise object of it is not easily collected: it is ordained, however, that the decree shall be fixed up in the Acropolis.

No. 282. A fragment of a Greek inscription, engraved in very ancient characters. It seems to be a treaty between the Athenians and the people of Rhegium, a town of the Bruttii, in Italy.

No. 283. A Greek inscription, imperfect, engraved in very small characters: it is an enumeration of the sacred dresses which belonged to some temple.

No. 284. A fragment of a bas-relief, representing a procession of three figures, the last of which carries a large basket on his head: they are accompanied by two children.

No. 285. A sun-dial, with four different dials represented on as many faces. The inscription imports that it is the work of Phædrus, the son of Zoilus, a native of Pæania. From the form of the letters of this inscription, the sun-dial cannot have been made much earlier than the time of the Emperor Severus. It was found at Athens.

No. 286. A fragment of a Greek inscription:
 it consists of twenty lines of very ancient characters, and seems to be a part of a treaty.

No. 287. A Greek inscription, imperfect.

No. 289. A Greek inscription, imperfect at the end, being a contract respecting the letting of some lands and salt-pits by the people of Piræus. Presented, in 1785, by the Dilettanti Society.

No. 290. A very ancient Greek inscription, which has served as an epitaph on the tomb of the Athenian warriors killed at Potidæa. This inscription, which originally consisted of twelve elegiac verses, has suffered from the injuries of time.

No. 291. A piece of the architrave belonging to the temple of Erectheus, at Athens.

No. 292. A funeral inscription to the memory of Polyllus; in consists of one line in prose, and two in verse. The line in prose gives us only the name and titles of Polyllus, and the verses intimate that Polystratus had erected a statue to the deceased, and had placed it under the protection of Minerva; the marble on which this inscription is cut, formed a part of the base on which the statue stood.

No. 292*. The upper part of a sepulchral stèle, inscribed with the name of Eumachus, who was the son of Eumachus, and of the city of Alopece. Presented, in 1785, by the Dilettanti Society.

No. 293. A small statue of a boy, imperfect; he is in the attitude of looking up.

No. 295. The capital of an Ionic column belonging to a temple of Diana, at Daphne, in the road to Eleusis.

No. 296. A female torso, covered with drapery.

No. 297. A piece of the shaft of a small Ionic column, the lower part of which is fluted and reeded.

No. 298. A Greek inscription, engraved on two sides of a large piece of marble. It is an inventory of the sacred treasures belonging to the Parthenon.

No. 299. A piece of the ceiling of the temple of Erectheus, at Athens.

No. 299*. The lower part of a female statue covered with drapery.

No. 300. A bronze urn, very richly wrought. It was found inclosed within the marble vase in which it now stands, in a tumulus on the road that leads from Port Piræus to the Salaminian ferry and Eleusis. At the time of its discovery, this beautiful urn contained a quantity of burnt bones, a small vase of alabaster, and a wreath of myrtle in gold.

No. 301. A large marble vase ; it is of an oval form, and within it was found the bronze urn described in the preceding number.

No. 302. A Greek inscription, engraved on two sides of a tablet of marble. It is a decree of the council of the Bœotians, ordaining the election of three extraordinary magistrates, who, in concert with the ordinary magistrates, were to take charge of the re-casting some articles of gold and silver, belonging to the temple of Amphiaras, and which had been injured by the effects of time. No. 303. A piece of the shaft of a column, belonging to the temple of Erectheus, at Athens.
 the

No. 304. A piece of the shaft of a column, also belonging to the temple of Erectheus.

No. 305. A Greek inscription, engraved on two sides of a thick slab of marble. It is an inventory of the valuable articles which were kept in the Opisthodomos of the Parthenon, at Athens.

No. 306. An imperfect statue of a youth ; it is of the size of life, and of the most exquisite workmanship.

No. 305*. A sepulchral column, of large dimensions ; it is inscribed with the name of Aristides, who was the son of Lysimachus, and a native of Estiæa.

No. 306*. Part of the capital of an Ionic column.

No. 307. A circular altar, brought from the island of Delos. It is ornamented with the heads of bulls, from which festoons of fruit and flowers are suspended.

No. 308. A part of a Doric entablature, from the Propylæa, at Athens.
