MOORE'S DAHLIA GARDENS

Dr. R. A. Moore, Frankfort, Ind.

Glad Information

Our gardens are located one-half mile west of the city on the Blinn Gravel Road. The Lafayette Interurban goes by the place. Follow the car line to our sign, or, if you come on the car, get off at Stop 39 and walk west to the first house. August and September are the best months to see the bloom.

THE GLADIOLUS AND ITS CULTURE

The gladiolus is one of the most popular of all the garden flowers. In its variety and blending of colors it rivals the rainbow, and in its wide range of uses it cannot be surpassed by any flower. As a cut flower it has few equals. Cut as the first floret opens, it will last a week in hot weather, and longer in cooler weather. By daily changing the water, removing the withered flowers, and cutting off a portion of the stem, every bud will open and last longer than if left to bloom in the garden. Its lack of fragrance appears at first as its only fault, but this is a distinct advantage where the flowers are banked and for its use in the sick room.

It is one of the easiest of flowers to grow, thriving with ordinary care, and responding remarkably to intensive cultivation. Deep planting helps it to withstand heavy winds and drouth. Plant it in the open garden away from shade trees and buildings, cultivate after every rain or watering, fertilize sparingly, and you will be rewarded with beautiful flowers. Plant the bulbs at weekly intervals from the first of April to the first of July and the first will begin to bloom as the last is planted. By selecting several varieties one can thus have a succession of bloom for nearly three months of the year!

The Gladiolus is grown from seed, from bulblets, and from bulbs. Only the hybridizer is interested in raising it from seed as this takes longer to produce the flowers. The gardener can increase his stock by planting the bulblets, a few of which will bloom the first year and a majority the second year. The bulblet comes true to the parent bulb, but if the seeds are sown, new varieties are produced. The hybridizer does not depend upon chance pollination, but selects the parent plants and does the crossing by hand. Anyone can produce a new variety in his own back yard if willing to follow the necessary details. For the beginner, however, it is better to plant the blooming size bulbs as these will produce the desired blooms the same season.

Blooming size bulbs vary from one to two or three inches in diameter, according to the variety and age of the bulb. We offer three sizes for sale, all of which will bloom perfectly under normal conditions if given proper care. These bulbs are all two year old stock from bulblets, having been tested for variety in our gardens. Size one bulbs are 1½ inches and up in diameter; size two are from 1¼ to 1½ inches; and size three are from 1 to 1¼ inches. Where varieties are not listed as to size, the bulbs are one inch or larger. We can furnish only the sizes indicated for any particular bulb. If you are a florist or a commercial grower and can use bulbs by the thousand, please ask for our wholesale list.

QUALITY ASSURED

A state nursery inspector has examined our strawberry plants in the field and our gladiolus bulbs in storage and issued us a certificate for the sale of both. Our bulbs were disinfected before planting and grown on new ground. Then as a final assurance of quality all bulbs are hand sorted for every order. Please read our guarantee.

State Inspection is Your Protection.

Warren Gladiolus Gardens

AN EXPLANATION

This year we are publishing our catalogue with Dr. R. A. Moore, who specializes in Dahlias. We are together offering both gladiolus bulbs and dahlias. No flower garden is complete without both of these wonderful flowers, and we hope that all who have raised one will now become interested in the other. The two growers are independent of each other, and separate order sheets are provided for the convenience of customers. All orders for dahlias should be sent direct to Dr. Moore, and all orders for gladiolus bulbs to us. However, if mistakes are made, any order, intended for one party and sent to the other, will be turned over to the proper grower. We trust that this arrangement will prove of mutual benefit to both growers and customers.

THE AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY

This organization has thousands of members scattered throughout the country. It sponsors the National Gladiolus Show each year at its annual meeting and publishes the Gladiolus Review, the monthly magazine which each member receives. The dues are two dollars a year and should be sent to Roscoe Huff, the Secretary, Goshen, Indiana. The magazine alone is worth the membership fee, besides there are other considerations.

PRONUNCIATION OF GLADIOLUS

This caused so much confusion that the American Gladiolus Society, at its annual meeting at Rochester, New York, in 1925, voted unanimously to adopt one pronunciation and form of the word for all uses. The accepted pronunciation is glad-i-o'-lus for both singular and plural, or just say glads for short. You will surely say "oh!" when you see a choice variety in bloom for the first time, so accent the "o" when you pronounce the word.

CULTURAL DIRECTIONS

Complete directions for raising gladiolus will be included with every delivery of bulbs. These directions are standardized by the A. G. S. and cover every phase of the work from planting of the bulbs to harvesting and winter storage. The purchase of a few bulbs means years of pleasure to the grower who follows the simple directions and cares for the increase.

OUR GUARANTEE

We guarantee our bulbs to be up to size, true to name, and free from disease. We treat our bulbs at planting time to prevent disease, and we use every precaution to keep the varieties separate. We will refund the purchase price or replace the bulbs on any orders that do not measure up to our guarantee. The purchaser buys with the understanding that we will not be held liable for more than the original purchase price on any stock that proves untrue.

DELIVERY OF BULBS

Our prices include delivery of bulbs by parcel post or express anywhere in the United States. We guarantee safe delivery after March 1. Our terms are cash, or 25 per cent down and balance before shipment. We send no bulbs C. O. D. except on request and at purchaser's expense. We offer no discounts, but prefer to give extra bulbs in proportion to the size of the order. We advise that you order early before any varieties are out of stock, and the bulbs will be sent when wanted.

CUT FLOWERS FOR SALE

Cutting the spike as the first flower is wide open aids in bulb development as the strength of the plant then goes to maturing the bulb instead of ripening the seed. During the blooming season we sell flowers at the farm for 50 cents a dozen.

An investment in Glads pays beautiful interest.
