HOW TO GROW NARCISSUS

While the Paper White Narcissus can be grown in soil successfully, THE VERY BEST METHOD IS to grow them in WATER. By so doing they will be in a container that is attractive in itself and all ready to place in an attractive location in the home. First place a half-inch layer of BULB GRIT on the bottom of bulb dish. Second, place bulbs in dish and fill with pebbles and water. The bulb grit will furnish food for the roots. Then place in dark, cool cellar or closet for two or three weeks, or until the green shoots have attained a height of about five or six inches; then bring the dish to the light and look for the pretty blooms in a few weeks. A lover of plants will derive a great deal of pleasure by watching the developments of these bulbs. When first brought to the light the shoots will be almost white, but will soon turn to a beautiful green. Great care should be exercised in keeping the bowl filled with water, as the bulbs consume a great deal. CHARCOAL added to the water will keep it cool and sweet.

CALLA LILY

The Calla is one of the best winter flowering plants for house culture, as it needs little care beyond abundant water and an occasional washing of the leaves to keep them free from dust. The best soil for Callas is a mixture of one-fourth leaf mold and three-fourths good garden soil. Plant the bulb about one inch below the surface of the soil in a 4- or 5-inch pot or whatever size is necessary, owing to the size of the bulb or the number planted. Then place in cellar or dark closet for three or four weeks. When the bulb starts growing bring to the light and be sure to give it plenty of water. Callas do better planted in the Fall months. Also remember that in climates no colder than the Salt River Valley they can be grown successfully out of doors.

BULBS—IMPORTED

of Highest Quality for Fall and Winter Planting

GENERAL PLANTING INSTRUCTIONS FOR BULBS—Among many, it is the impression, Bulbs are difficult to grow, but in reality, no other plants are so easy to manage with pleasure and success under all conditions, none more showy than the different classes of bulbs. Successful Bulb-growing requires good drainage, rich, loose soil and deep planting; always add barnyard manure to your soil, and if a heavy soil, add some sand with the manure. For outdoor planting it is good practice to plant Bulbs to a depth of at least twice the size of Bulb. In heavy soils, Bulbs should not be planted as deep as in light, sandy soil. Planting in pots, deep planting is unnecessary, one-half inch to one inch for large Bulbs is deep enough below the surface. Bulbs planted in beds are flooded, a light mulch such as straw or well-rotted manure will keep the surface from crusting.

HYACINTH CULTURE: For Winter and Spring blooms out of doors, the bulbs should be planted from 3 to 5 inches deep, according to the texture of the soil. The deepest planting is required in light sandy soil. Plant early in the Fall and spade into the ground a good supply of well-rotted manure.
FOR POT CULTURE: Prepare the pots as they would drain well and use the best soil possible. Plant the bulbs about one inch below the surface, water thoroughly and put away in a dark cellar or bury them, but not all, about 8 inches below the surface in the garden. Let them stand about six to eight weeks and then bring them into the house a few at a time to have continual blooms throughout the season. During the growth in the house they should be well watered and kept near the light but direct sunlight should be avoided.

HYACINTHS IN GLASSES: A very interesting way to grow Hyacinth bulbs is in a Hyacinth glass made especially for that purpose. Fill the glass with clean water so that the water will touch the base of the bulbs, place the glass and bulb in a dark cellar or closet until the roots have made considerable growth, being careful in the meantime to keep the glass filled with water to the base of bulb, then bring to the light and keep in cool place. A little charcoal added to the water will keep it cool and sweet.

MCQUEEN'S INOCULATOR for Garden Peas and Beans, Alfalfa, Sweet Clover, Sour Clover, Vetch, etc.

SWEET PEAS AND HOW TO GROW THEM

Select your space in the open, where the vines may be trained on a trellis, and dig a trench about two feet wide and 18 inches deep. Put about three inches of well-rotted barnyard manure in the bottom of the trench, mix a sprinkle of manure and commercial fertilizer with the dirt that has been removed and replace it. Open a trench across bed about six inches deep and plant one ounce of seed to 15 feet of drill in the bottom of it, covering the seed about one inch. Now fill this last trench with water and soak thoroughly, following with a sprinkle of fine manure to prevent the surface crusts. After the peas are up eight or ten inches, dig a trench for the dirt to then, gradually filling the planted trench and opening another trench about ten inches from the row through which to water them the rest of the season. Frequent cultivation is very necessary and after the peas are 12 to 15 inches high a mulch of fine manure should be applied to the entire bed and gradually worked into the soil. Keep them well watered and at blooming time they should be cut each day to insure a long blooming period.
