DAHLIA GARDEN

341 OAKDALE AVENUE, MILL VALLEY, CALIFORNIA

1930

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Haake

Greetings

WE take pleasure in presenting to our friends a list of pompon dahlias which we believe to be the best collection obtainable for both exhibition and commercial use. Also some very excellent varieties of the large dahlias.

One of the most interesting parts of our garden is the pompon seedling patch, for with each season comes a keen anticipation of what it will bring forth. We are introducing for 1930 some fine new varieties—products of this seedling patch.

Our seed has been carefully gathered this year, keeping the colors separate. As many of our pompons are prize winners the seed is the best obtainable.

It is very gratifying to receive letters from our patrons commending our stock. The following is much appreciated:

"Fine firm first class stock A-1 or better if possible to express it."

We are always glad to hear from our friends and patrons and to aid in any way we can to grow

BETTER DAHLIAS.

Wishing you every success this coming season,

H. C. HAAKE.

NEW POMPON DAHLIAS

Our Own 1930 Introductions

- DOLORES A rare color in a pompon, deep pink of one tone. Very striking. Net . $1.50
- HAAKE'S GLOW Yellow base, heavily tipped old rose.
An uncommon combination. Very prolific bloomer. Net 1.50
- MICKY An odd pompon in the straw color, daintily tipped lavender. Quite different, but pretty. Net 1.50
- MYRA Deep canary base, heavily tipped raspberry red. Both colors quite distinct. Very attractive. Net 1.50
- PIXY This pompon won first prize at the 1929 Dahlia Show. It is a very small deep yellow, heavily tipped Indian
red. Net 1.50
- SUNSET GOLD A small perfect pompon of the shades of the new color capucine-canary yellow, very heavily suffused orange. Exceedingly pretty. Net 1.50

BOLSA GARDEN POMPON DAHLIAS

Pompon dahlias, in which we specialize, are becoming great favorites, for one reason because they keep well as a cut flower and lend themselves to any decorative scheme or color arrangement. They are splendid for florists' work, mixing well with any other flowers. They can be used in the garden to get a massed effect of color in front of shrubbery or in a patch by themselves.

For the benefit of those who are not familiar with this variety, the pompons are small, ball shaped in form, with petals spirally set. They can be planted quite close together one on each side of a stake and do not need disbudding as do the large dahlias.

We won again this year at the show of the Dahlia Society of California in San Francisco, for the best six varieties, the best basket of pompons and for the best pompon seedling, which Mr. Carpenter of the American Home Magazine named Pixy, after the little sprite called Pixy.

At the beautiful show of the Dahlia Society of Southern California in Los Angeles we captured the first on the ten varieties and first for the best basket of California pompons and were given special mention for our table.

Packing and carrying our pompons 500 miles to the Los Angeles show is no joke, but of them Mr. Warren, the able editor of their bulletin, has this to say—

"The Bolsa Dahlia Gardens are north of San Francisco—500 miles north of the Biltmore and the place where Mrs. Haake grows Poms mostly of her own originations. We saw ten baskets with every bloom in perfect showroom condition. Still another world's record." Thanks, Mr. Warren.

We had an 18 foot table at the show in San Francisco and displayed our pompons to show how beautiful they are for decoration, using the different combinations of colors in basket work, vases and flat dishes.

The basket of pompons on the outside cover of this catalog was the prize winner; in it were five varieties of the pinkish lavenders—Anna von Schwerin, Bebe, Nellie Fraser, Girlie and Helen Anita.

The following pompons are listed according to color just as we grow them in our garden.

DAHLIA SEED

We are offering this season a high grade of pompon seed, the very best it is possible to obtain from prize winning stock.

We have carefully gathered this seed, it is hand picked and the colors kept separate.

California is particularly suited for the seed culture. Its warm climate and long dry season allows the seed to ripen naturally and mature early.

We are also offering a limited amount of seed from the large varieties listed in this catalog. We can recommend this seed; it is the best grade.

We can furnish pompon seed in the following color groups as you find them arranged in our catalog. Specify your choice.

Red shades Lavender and purple shades Yellow and orange shades.
Pink, old rose and salmon shades.
