The First Flowers of Spring

SPRING hounds the heels of winter from the first of January on; but only the little beasts and the little flowers are aware of it. Long before the stupid bluebird whistles huskily his conventional announcement, the adventurous buds of the snowdrops have shouldered aside the icy clods and flung their snowy banners to the February blasts.

Lilium regale (Royal Lily)

Exceptionally fine spring weather and an abundance of rain are responsible for a very fine crop of Lilium Regale. We shall have a surplus of size 6 to 7 inches. This is quite a large size, and has heretofore been very difficult to obtain. Usually these bulbs cost 75 cts. each. We can now sell them to you at the low price of 32 cts. each, $3.20 per dozen. This is a saving of over 50 per cent.

CROCUS

Fancy Crocus of monster size in Blue, White, Violet, Striped, and Yellow. $3.50 per 100, $2 for 50 bulbs, $1.10 for 25 bulbs.

Put the lusty bulbs we send you into dishes of water and anchor them with pebbles. Feed them with only a little loving care, and within a few short weeks you will enjoy one of the pleasures of the ancient gods—flowers at any time or season you choose by varying the planting-time and forcing—clusters of exquisitely fluted flowers on slender stems, blossoms filled with delicious and pervading fragrance.

It is all so simple and lovely that no one need ever want for flowers during the dulllest days of winter.
