DIG & DUNG

There is no soil, however barren and unproductive, that cannot, by well digging and dunging, be made fertile and prolific.—Adapted from Cervantes' DON QUIXOTE, Part II, Chapter XII.

FIELD NOTES

You'd be interested in knowing that blooms of Bonnie Brae outsold those of Jersey's Beauty at our gardens this year. Under Skinner Irrigation they were simply irresistible.

Oregon Beauty is another variety that responds wonderfully to water. Under Skinner System our blooms were perfect—not a burned petal during even the hottest weather.

Laura Morris made the best showing of any yellow variety in our fields. Massive blooms, long, strong stems, and rank foliage attracted the attention of everyone. This variety will be here long after most of the other new ones are gone. We introduced it on its merits alone—never crowded it into the shows or boosted it with elaborate colored pictures, but it is getting well distributed throughout the country, nevertheless, and you will hear from it strong in due time. Mr. Harman, of the Laurelton Dahlia Farm, Long Island, says it is "a wonderful flower, giant bloom 10 inches across, vigorous grower," etc. Mrs. Gennett, whose home is one of the show places in Asheville, N. C., refers to it as "the finest and largest yellow dahlia grown." You can't go wrong with Laura Morris, and I will stake my reputation on your good opinion of it if you try it this season. You will sell all your surplus without effort when people see it in bloom among your other varieties.

Snowdrift has held the lead over all whites, judging from admirers at our fields this season, with Purity a close second. This is not a large bloom, but a clean, pure white that cuts well and seldom scorches.

Visitors always admire LeGrande Manitou, but we warn them about its tendency to revert to solid color, notwithstanding our extreme care in tagging out all reversions.

Judge Marean, as usual, has been a wonderfully profuse bloomer, as have Bertha Horne, Countess of Lonsdale, Jean Kerr, Darlene, Countess of Pembroke, Aurore, Theo. Vail, etc. All of these sold well at the fields, too. There is money in these varieties for any florist.

Dakota, Venus, Judge Parker, and Bashful Giant showed a mass of giant blooms that sold a lot of tubers for us this year.

FERTILIZING THE DAHLIA

We sow vetch at the rate of 20 lbs. per acre among our dahlias at last cultivation—just as plants start to bloom freely—then in early spring we cover with cow manure, and about May first plow deep, giving us a fine layer of humus, which with the potash and superphosphate mixture used in hills at time of planting, gives us an abundance of perfectly balanced food for both flowers and roots which come later. Scientific methods of culture are the sole basis of our superior stock.

Emerson said "There is always a best way of doing everything, if it be but to boil an egg." This applies to growing dahlias as well as to anything else.

Tubers are going fast this year. The severe drought means a short crop, and we cannot urge you too strongly to buy early. Don't wait for bargain prices on surplus stock late in the season. "There ain't gonna be no surplus" this year—not of good stock from reliable growers. Many plants not under irrigation have not bloomed at all, and could not, therefore, be properly rouged, and the result is bound to be a lot of mixed stuff that will prove dear at any price.

Out of the hundreds—yes, thousands—of varieties of dahlias that have been introduced in the last thirty years, how many would you select if you were thinking of planting a thousand or more tubers of each variety? Surely not more than a score, and probably not that many. You would want Mrs. I. de Ver Warner, Jersey's Beauty, and a few others, of course; but among the introductions of the last three years do you know of a single one that you would feel safe in planting heavily, and still be sure of moving your crop? Don't fall too hard for fads and novelties.

We have discontinued the growing of pompons entirely, also collarettes.

SEASON OF 1931

You would be interested in following our dahlias through the entire season from time of planting until tubers are packed and shipped into every state in the Union and many foreign countries, ready to be planted for a crop in other soils and under varying climatic conditions. Our tubers are grown right, fully matured before digging, then they are stored and handled just right to give best results. You don't get stunted plants or poor results just because of a change in growing conditions. A trial order will convince you that "we know our dahlias" and how to handle them. You may think this is bologna, but there is really a lot more to a good dahlia tuber than just looks. Where tubers are planted late, as is the case where the raising of flowers is the principal object, (the surplus tubers being a necessary by-product) the result is a crop of tubers not fully matured and oftentimes unable to produce a strong, healthy plant. It always pays to get the best stock, whether you want it to plant or for resale.

These collections make dandy premiums as well as bargain leaders.

Any other collections can be made up to suit special requirements.

The FLORISTS' REVIEW gave a selected list of twenty dahlias for cut flower purposes. This list still stands as about the best selection that can be made. It comprises the following varieties:—

Decorative—Jersey's Beauty, Judge Marean, Mrs. I. de Ver Warner, Rosa Nell, Charm, Delice, Insulinde, Patrick O'Mara, Sylvia, The Millionaire.

Cactus—Countess of Lonsdale, Bianca, Golden West.
Peony-flowered—Jan Olieslanger, Queen Wilhelmina.

Show—A. D. Lovoni, Dorothy Peacock, Jean Kerr, Stradella, Yellow Duke.

We will supply ten tubers of each of these twenty varieties, two hundred tubers in all, for $24. This will give you an excellent assortment at an exceedingly low cost.

I always liked the spirit of the drummer boy of Napoleon, who could not beat retreat, but who could beat a charge that would stir men's souls to action and make the dead fall into line. That spirit today would do a lot towards reviving business.

Half-size assortment (125 tubers, every one wrapped and labelled) for $10.50. If you want to offer your customers some wonderful values in dahlias, don't fail to order either the half or full assortment—and at the price quoted it makes some mighty low price planting stock.

Our retail catalog (copy of which will be mailed to you early in January) lists hundreds of varieties not found in our regular wholesale list. On all such varieties, we allow a uniform trade discount of 33 1-3%.

We do not sell undivided clumps of dahlia tubers.

These views were taken at the Wayland Dahlia Gardens just after their Skinner Irrigation System was installed.

Later, during September, these fields presented a most remarkable view, with healthy, vigorous plants and hundreds of thousands of matchless flowers, leaving no doubt in the minds of observers as to the wonderful results obtained from Skinner Irrigation.

Still later, the increase in root crop proved to be more than sufficient to pay for the entire cost of installation in a single year.

You can't grow perfect dahlias, either roots or blooms, without plenty of water at just the right time.

Laura Morris

The Perfect Yellow Dahlia

This wonderful dahlia was originated by Mr. Geo. A. Relyea, of Connecticut, and introduced by us in 1929; and after three seasons' growing, we do not hesitate in offering it as the largest and by all means the finest yellow decorative we have ever seen. The plant is a rank grower, not affected by thrip or hot weather, a profuse bloomer on long, strong stems, and a remarkably good root maker for such a large flower. Giant blooms, 9 to 10 inches across, full deep centers, under ordinary field culture, without disbudding. Color a pure, rich, deep strontian yellow with back petals of amber yellow. A more attractive flower than Mrs. Scheepers, because of its much deeper color. Sure to be a winner for both exhibition and cut flower purposes. Retail price for 1931, $3. each. Trade price, $2. each, with an extra discount of 10% (making it $1.80 each net) if you list it in your catalog.

TERMS AND CONDITIONS

Not less than 10 tubers will be supplied at the hundred rate, and no wholesale orders will be accepted for less than $5, unless the season's orders amount to at least $10 in the aggregate, in which case all orders will be billed at the minimum rate.

While we seldom fail to complete accepted orders, we reserve the right to omit any part of order where unexpected or unavoidable shortage of any variety occurs.

We will not substitute unless specifically instructed to do so. If sold out of any particular variety when order is received, we will so advise at once.

All orders shipped at purchaser's expense and risk, and although we exercise every precaution to pack tubers safely against freezing, we do not guarantee against damage in transit.

Always state time and mode of shipment, otherwise we will use our best judgment, but without assuming any responsibility in the matter.

No extra charge made for packing and delivery to carrier, except where tubers are put up in special packages for resale.

Claims for rejections, errors, or omissions must be made within ten days after arrival of tubers.

GUARANTEE—While we exercise the greatest care to have all our stock true to label, and hold ourselves prepared to replace, on proper proof, all that may prove untrue, we do not give any warranty, expressed or implied, and in case of any error on our part, it is mutually agreed between the purchaser and ourselves that we shall not at any time be held responsible for a greater amount than the original purchase price of the stock.

TERMS—Unknown persons should send either cash in full with order, or 25 per cent with order, balance C. O. D. Parties whose credit is approved may order tubers shipped any time after December first, and invoice for same will be dated June first following. Accounts unpaid after that date are subject to an interest charge at the rate of 6 per cent per annum. No accounts carried where amount is less than $25.

REFERENCE—As to our responsibility, we refer to the Wayland State Bank, Wayland, Michigan.
