Pansy Culture

ON this page we wish to give information that may help Florists to grow Pansies at their best. Our specialty is Pansies and we feel that a good description on how to grow them would be very appropriate. We realize that most Florists are able to grow them with success yet it is quite frequent for us to receive letters, from Florists, saying that their Pansies were not as good as the previous year and asking us for a reason. Sometimes they had in mind that our strain was not as good as in the year previous. We wish to say that if these rules are followed carefully there is no reason why you should have a failure in Pansies in any particular year:

Pansies can be grown on any well drained soil. If your soil is heavy and gets soggy in wet weather, the beds should be raised at least 4 inches above the level. Add a little sand; it will help to lighten the soil. This need be done only in extremely heavy soil. Be sure and always have plenty of humus in your soil, it will help a lot toward drainage.

Always bear in mind, in order to have large and beautiful flowers, the soil should be very rich. Fertilize your beds a month or two before planting when possible; use well rotted stable manure liberally. We find it best to use fresh stable manure, humus and soil and allow it to rot down. Commercial fertilizer can be used with success if applied intelligently, using for humus, peat moss, well rotted manure, dead leaves or like material.

When preparing for planting, pulverize the soil to a depth of 6 inches or more, firm the soil. Place plants no less than 4 inches square, up to 9 inches is better if you have the space. Put roots in ground as deep as they were in nursery. If ground is sticky, wait until it dries a little. In hot, dry weather, water thoroughly after planting, shading the bed during the heat of the day until plants are rooted. In the South, little or no covering will be necessary to carry plants over Winter. In the colder states if plants are wintered in the open, would advise mulching with some light material such as hay, straw, evergreen boughs, etc. Do not cover so heavily that the plants cannot be seen, otherwise you will smother them. They should not be covered until the ground is frozen hard. At our nursery we find about December 15th to be the proper time to mulch for the winter.

The above are photographs of the large and regular size Pansy plants. They are greatly reduced, of course, but it shows the stocky, vigorous plants, and note the wonderful root system. Our soil is somewhat sandy, which accounts for the good roots.

The large size Pansies are more developed and, of course, will come to bloom a few weeks earlier than the regular size. The large size will also produce more flowers at the start.

The regular size will take a little longer to develop, but should be just as nice in the end. We recommend the large size for greenhouse Winter blooming.

PITZONKA'S PRIZE MIXTURE

This strain is all the name implies, the colors are entirely new to our other strain, the Pitzonka's Giant-Flowering Mixture. The variety consists of several shades of red and pink, a rich yellow, a blue and many other handsome colors. We have tried to incorporate into these Pansies the pencil stripes and blotched varieties, doing away with the variegated Pansies which are of no particular shade. Many of the Pansies are of solid colors such as pure whites, purples, yellows, etc. We would say that this mixture is the finest of any that we have ever seen. Every flower is giant in size. In selecting this strain the form and texture of each flower is considered. We have but a limited quantity of this wonderful variety, for in making up the mother bed only the very choicest stock is taken for seed production.
