INTRODUCTION

SELECTIONS made from catalogues of reliable dealers in rare books, who have devoted years of serious study to the demand and supply and are in touch with a large number of collectors and who put their names behind these figures, are the most reliable guides we can have for the true value of rare books.

“Colored Plate Books and Their Values” must not be considered in any way a bibliography or a fairly complete list of colored plate books. It is simply a labor- and time-saving aid to tell at a glance the present day value of certain books. The editor has made selections from various recent catalogues (both English and American) of such colored plate items as he thought would be valuable for reference. The list includes not only sporting books, but works on natural history, travels, genealogies, etc., in both English and foreign languages, alphabetically arranged by authors. The titles of books on botany and ornithology as well as travels that have colored illustrations are quite numerous, and will be of considerable help to those interested in these subjects.

A feature that will prove of interest is the addition of the name of the firm and the number or date of the catalogue in which the volume quoted appears—thus giving the reader an opportunity to order any item that may take his fancy.

It was most fortunate that while this work was in press, the sale, by the Anderson Auction Co. of New York, of the remarkable collection of excessively rare and unique colored plate books made by the late William C. Dulles of Philadelphia was announced. The sale took place on the evenings of December 10, 11, 12, 1912, and was largely attended by buyers from all parts of the United States. The prices that wealthy collectors are willing to pay for choice and unusual copies of this class of "picture books" will be found opposite each lot. It is the latest word regarding the values of colored plate items, from the American collectors' point of view.

As a general rule no lot is included that is worth less than five dollars, or one pound sterling.
