EX libris

Don Horter

of young men whose graves were being dug slowly but surely by the trying pan. Knowing that plain diet, pure air, bright sunshine and varied exercise would work wonders, he induced four of them to accompany him on what proved to be a thoroughly rough but most enjoyable trip. How they sailed down the rivers and lakes and the open sea; how they fished and hunted, and what varied and amusing adventures they met with in their encounters with alligators, rattlesnakes, and panthers: what monstrous fishes they caught, and what hair-breadth escapes they had, would take too much of our space to describe. We must content ourselves with saying that the book is a very readable one from beginning to end.—London Fishing Gazette.

Will be sent by mail, prepaid, on receipt of the price.

CINCINNATI, O.

The present list gives a very general idea of the character of the stock we carry in this department. Most of these works we aim to keep constantly on hand, but they necessarily vary somewhat in price, according to their condition, scarcity, etc.

Our stock is constantly changing, by sales, and additions of old books. All new books are received as soon as issued.

Gentlemen will find it to their advantage to send us, from time to time, lists of books desired, as we have special facilities for the collection of rare and out-of-print works in this department.

Letters of inquiry meet with prompt attention.

FOR THE NATURALIST AND ANGLER.

DR. JAMES A. HENSHALL'S BOOK OF THE BLACK BASS.

Comprising its complete Scientific and Life Histories, together with a Practical Treatise on Angling and Fly-fishing, and a full Account of Tools, Tackle, and Implements. By JAMES A. HENSHALL, M. D.

Large 12mo. 460 pages. Fully illustrated. Price $3.00.

Sent by mail, prepaid, on receipt of the price.

This volume is the most complete and exhaustive monograph ever published upon any game-fish. It is entirely practical and instructive in its scope and style, and will fully meet the wants and requirements of the great and growing interest manifested on this subject.

The Black Bass is a game-fish of the highest order, and is pre-eminently American in its habitat and characteristics, its range now extending over the entire country east of the Rocky Mountains; but, while the Salmon and Brook Trout are fairly represented in American Angling Works (mostly compilations from English authors), the Black Bass has been neglected and almost ignored; a few pages of an unreliable and insufficient character being all that has heretofore been devoted to its consideration.

Dr. Henshall has been well known for the past ten years as an authority on the Black Bass, and as an expert angler. His writings, published in the various journals of the country devoted to Angling, Field Sports, Natural History, etc., are constantly referred to as the only reliable data on the subject.

The BOOK OF THE BLACK BASS is beautifully printed, handsomely bound, and fully illustrated.

The full-paged Photo-lithograph Engravings of the two species of Black Bass are true to nature in every particular, having been drawn from many fresh specimens, expressly for this work, by ERNEST R. COPELAND, M. D., of Milwaukee, Wis.

The mode and methods of handling the rod in casting, striking, and playing a Bass in fly-fishing and bait-fishing, are illustrated by special engravings drawn from life.

The various articles of tackle are faithfully represented by more than a hundred illustrations.

The author, being a life-long angler, has written his own personal experiences and observations of the Black Bass, and how to capture him. This portion of the book is entirely original and purely American, and differs vastly from any work hitherto published on practical angling.

A MAGNIFICENT WORK.

THE FISHES OF NORTH AMERICA.

By WILLIAM C. HARRIS,

Editor of the "American Angler."

The work will consist of about forty parts, containing portraits, colored as in life, of eighty or more fishes that take the hook and line in the fresh and salt waters of the United States and Canada, with appropriate text. It will be finely printed on heavy plate paper, in monthly parts; size of the page, 12 by 17 inches. Each number will contain:

1. Two portraits of fishes, colored to life;
2. Scientific classification and description;
3. Local names and habitat;
4. When and where caught;
5. Methods of capture;
6. Tackle and lures used;
7. Striking incidents of capture.

The portraits will average a foot in length. They will be shown in an upright position, that of the act of swimming, and extreme care has been taken, not only to give the coloration of life, but also with distinctness the specific markings, indicating the exact number of spines or rays in the fin construction, etc.

In making studies of individual fish, the artist has caught the coloration from at least ten, and often twenty-five, specimens laid before him as they came struggling from the water. Under no other conditions can be procured an accurate transcript of the evanescent tints, which, in many fish, fade or alter the moment they are lifted from the water.

Price, $1.50 per part.

The parts can be sent by mail, carefully protected with boards.

The first number will be ready in August.
