INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The New York State Fair of 1910 is generally acknowledged to have been superior in all respects to any fair previously held. Improvements of many kinds were evident. Departments showed a growth in numbers of exhibits and in amounts awarded for premiums. A better quality of exhibits was noticeable. As a result the reputation of the fair for its splendid educational value extends not only throughout this state, but into many other states.

It is worthy of particular mention that this fair was conducted on a high standard, so that objectionable exhibits and displays were conspicuous for their absence. The commission has received favorable comment because of the fact that fakirs, gambling and liquor selling, and degrading side shows were rigidly excluded. Some amusement features were provided, care being taken to limit them to exhibits and entertainments of a harmless character. The principal of the special attractions at the 1910 fair was an aeroplane, operated daily.

Prominent among the educational features of the fair were the following:

An extensive exhibit of fruits by the New York Agricultural Experiment Station. This included hundreds of plates of apples, grapes, plums and other fruits, all raised on the station grounds, arranged and labeled so that visitors could make comparisons with fruits which they might bring for this purpose and thus learn the correct names of varieties grown on their farms. The exhibit contained illustrations of numerous fungous and fruit pests of the farm, indicating the appearance at different stages with best methods of treatment.

The New York State College of Agriculture, the state veterinary college, and the schools of agriculture were well represented in the State Institutions Building. The principal kinds of agricultural instruction were shown in separate booths, with experts in charge to explain them. These exhibits comprised live animals and poultry, plants, preparation of animal and plant tissues, tile draining, farm machinery, preparation of foods, plant breeding and plant diseases, insect pests, horticulture, and other subjects.

In the new Dairy Building instruction was given constantly throughout the week in a large amphitheatre where butter-making demonstrations were carried on morning and afternoon. It is proposed to allow exhibitors to use the amphitheatre at hours to be announced, so that they may give instructive talks upon their machinery and supplies. This is a development of fair work along educational lines which is not known to have been definitely provided for elsewhere.

In the Horticultural Building visitors found thousands of specimens of fruits from this state and other states, so arranged and classified as to be of the greatest value to small and large fruit growers.

The farm machinery exhibit, including an enormous collection which crowded the capacity of the grounds, was an interesting feature of the fair and proved to be highly valuable to many farmers who had postponed making purchases until they could see for themselves the various kinds of machines in which they were interested. Exhibitors reported many sales.

In the live stock exhibit were a collection of farm, breeding and draft horses said to have been the best ever seen east of Chicago; hundreds of the finest specimens of dairy animals, with some individuals from this state and other states having values in the thousands of dollars; exhibits of sheep, swine, and poultry which taxed the accommodations. All these helped to establish a new record not only in total numbers of several different breeds of animals and birds, but in respect to the educational value of these exhibits.

The new State Institutions Building, which has now been in use two years, is serving to give the people of the state an idea of the work of state departments and institutions such as many of them have never before had. This building was crowded by visitors all the time. Liberal space was filled by exhibits from the Department of Health which showed charts, diagrams and objects representing the spread of diseases and methods of control and cure. The Prisons Department exhibited specimens of carpets, furniture and other articles made in the state prisons, as well as photographs of interiors and modern methods of care and discipline. Products of the farm and handiwork produced by the insane were shown by the Commission in Lunacy. Institutions reporting to the Fiscal Supervisor showed articles made by inmates, and their exhibit included also a group of blind at work in useful ways, as taught in an institution maintained by the state. The Department of Agriculture showed high-class agricultural products that are being raised on some of our farm lands popularly supposed to be unproductive or even abandoned. The Barge Canal office, with working models of locks, the Water Supply Commission, with devices for utilizing water power on farms, the Excise Department, office of Sealer of Weights and Measures, the State Education Department, with pictures such as are loaned to schools, also contributed toward the educational value of the fair in a manner comparable with the great government exhibits at the national expositions which have attracted attention throughout the world.

That the fair is meeting the expectations of the people of the state and is increasing in popularity is shown by the reputation it bears, but more exactly by the treasurer's report of numbers of visitors, and his statement showing the large balance turned into the state treasury.

HISTORY OF THE NEW YORK STATE FAIR

The New York State Fair was established by the New York State Agricultural Society, which was organized as a result of a convention held in Albany, February, 1832. The object of this society was to distribute information among the farmers of the state and to promote and encourage enlightened agriculture.

The first officers were: James LeRay De Chaumont, of Jefferson County, president; E. P. Livingston, Ambrose Spencer, Jacob Morris, Robert S. Rose, vice-presidents; P. S. Van Rensselaer, recording secretary; Jesse Buell, corresponding secretary; and Charles R. Webster, treasurer. A committee was appointed for each county, according to the number of assemblymen thereof. Resolutions were adopted favoring an agricultural school and an annual fair. The society contemplated a periodical publication devoted to the improvement of the rural arts. A law incorporating the society was passed April 26, 1832, authorizing its existence for twenty years and permitting it to hold real estate to the extent of $25,000, the object, as stated in the act, being to improve the condition of agriculture, horticulture and the household arts. Meetings were held annually but, through want of legislative patronage and encouragement, the result was not what was hoped for. There was insufficient public interest to justify the holding of a fair, but much information of value to the farmers was distributed and in 1834 the society established a periodical, The Cultivator.

In 1841, public opinion seemed to favor a fair, and February 10 of that year at Albany it was decided to hold an annual exposition. Each member was assessed $1 per year. The officers then elected were: Joel B. Nott, Albany, president; Jeremiah Johnson, Kings, Robert Denniston, Orange, Caleb N. Bennett, Albany, Edward C. Delavan, Saratoga, Benjamin P. Johnson, Oneida, Lewis A. Morrell, Tompkins, Willis Gaylord, Onondaga, T. C. Peters, Genesee, vice-presidents. The legislature was asked to help and, May 5, appropriated $8,000 a year for five years, to be distributed among the counties, $700 of which was to go annually to the agricultural society. The law required that each winner of a premium should furnish a written description of the process of preparing the soil, etc., to accomplish the result he had obtained.

The first fair was held in Syracuse, September 29 and 30 of that year. The premiums were small. There were nine classes of cattle, the prizes in each running from $23 to $40; two classes of horses, with $40 in prizes in each; two of swine, with $23 in prizes in each; eight classes of implements; one of butter, prizes $60; one of cheese, etc. Later three special premiums were offered by individuals. The fair was held in and near the old court house, which used to stand in North Salina Street between Clinton Square and the present West Shore Station. The grounds were not enclosed. The pens were in a grove and the implements and produce were exhibited in the court house, which was inadequate for the purpose. The fair was attended by from 10,000 to 15,000 people, from nearly every county and from several states. Twenty-five cars of exhibits, etc. came from Albany and the Hudson River counties. There were some women exhibitors. The fair was considered a success in spite of unfavorable weather. The balance sheet showed $2,056.87 receipts and $1,087.51 expenses. One of the features of the show was three yoke of oxen, weighing 18,000 pounds, from Onondaga and Ontario counties. Mr. Rust, who exhibited one yoke, slaughtered one of the oxen, weighing 2,750 pounds, and presented a quarter to the society. Another feature, as of succeeding shows, was a plowing contest.

The second fair was held September 27-29, 1842, at Albany. The society this time devoted $2,000 to premiums, which was considered a large sum. The largest amount, $827, was allotted to live stock, but there was $200 for essays and for artists for portraits of animals. Governor William H. Seward was substituted for Daniel Webster, who was unable to speak as expected. This fair was considered a huge success. More than 600 domestic animals were entered. In the implements department there were more than 40 plows. The receipts, after paying expenses, were $345.74.

The president was now James S. Wadsworth, of Geneseo. As a result of the 1843 fair, which was held in September at Rochester, the society was able to invest $3,000 in seven per cent. stock. For the first time the grounds, which now covered ten acres, were enclosed. The admission fee was 12½ cents. It is stated of this fair that there was an unprecedented rush, canal boats and trains pouring in thousands. The attendance was 20,000. Among the many distinguished guests were Ex-President Van Buren, Governor Bouck, Ex-Governor Seward and Daniel Webster.

With John P. Beekman, of Rhinebeck, as president, a fair was held at Poughkeepsie, September 18-19, 1844. At this fair, which was held in buildings, there were many novel features and, as a result, the society decided to establish an agricultural museum. George Baneroft, the celebrated historian, was the speaker. The 1845 fair was held in Utica, with B. P. Johnson, of Oneida, as president of the society. Four exhibition buildings, 100 by 30 feet, housed the principal exhibits. The feature of the fair was the exhibition of the magnetic telegraph and the famous Josiah Quincy, of Massachusetts, was the orator. The exhibit included 683 animals. Forty thousand persons attended this fair, which left the society with $5,000.

In Auburn, September 21-22, 1846, the next fair was held, with excellent success. Samuel Stevens, of Albany, was the speaker. As a result of the society's efforts farmers' clubs had begun to be established, and the society was also able to take a prominent position in movements for commercial legislation. At the Saratoga fair, 1847, sixteen acres were occupied. Silas Wright who had been invited to speak at this fair died just before it, but his speech was read by United States Senator John A. Dix. Among the visitors were Ex-Presidents Van Buren and Tyler, Governor Young and Ex-Governor Hill, of New Hampshire. The society this year started an agricultural survey of the state, employing Asa Fitch for the purpose.

The Buffalo exposition of the following year was said to be the greatest fair ever held on the continent. Many notable people from this and other states attended, including some of the Mexican War generals and a representative of the Governor-General, Lord Elgin, of Canada. John C. Spencer was the orator. This time sales of stock were inaugurated, amounting during the fair to $20,000. The expenses, however, were greater than the receipts and the society decided that thereafter the local interests must insure a financial profit. At Buffalo there were 1,452 live stock and nearly 5,000 implement exhibits.

Syracuse entertained the 1849 fair. Although President Taylor was unable to attend, Vice-President Fillmore, Henry Clay, Governor Fish and other public characters were present. Professor J. F. Johnston came from England to deliver an address on scientific farming. Amos Dean was the speaker at the 1850 fair which was held at Albany, September 3-6. Delegates from 22 states and several parts of British America were present, one of the most distinguished visitors being Lafayette's grandson. The next year the fair was held at Rochester, where there was a record attendance estimated at 100,000. Two thousand and fourteen live stock and 1,000 other exhibits were shown. Governor Hunt, Lord Elgin, Ex-President Tyler and Governor Wright, of Indiana, were present. The orator of the occasion was Stephen A. Douglas, then a senator from Illinois.

At the next year's fair at Utica, the society was giving $7,500 in premiums. Horatio Seymour spoke here. On account of bad weather the 1853 fair at Saratoga was not so successful and the receipts paid only the premiums. William C. Rives, of Virginia, was the orator. The society added to its work by offering prizes for experimental farming. In 1854 the experiment was tried of holding the fair in New York but, although the city subscribed $8,000 to the event, it was not a financial success. An immense crowd attended the 1855 fair at Elmira where Governor Joseph A. Wright, of Indiana, delivered an address. At this time, owing to the efforts of the society, an agricultural hall containing a museum was opened by the state at Albany, and here winter exhibits were held.

One of the features of the 1856 fair at Watertown was the giving by Horace Greeley of premiums for the best farming efforts of young men under eighteen. William Jessup, of Monroe, was the orator of this fair. The exhibits showed notable improvements in farm machinery. In 1857, when the fair was held at Buffalo, experiments were being made with the steam engine for farming purposes. This was a remarkable fair for, although there was a great business depression, the exhibition was successful and October 8 there was the largest crowd ever convened in the state on such an occasion. Ex-President Fillmore, Governor John A. King and Ex-Governor Washington Hunt were among the guests and the orator was the famous Edward Everett.

The fair returned to Syracuse in 1858, October 4-8. All exhibits were crowded and there was a particularly excellent display of machinery. Martin Van Buren was a guest. The next year the fair went to Albany, where the exhibits reached record figures. John A. Dix spoke here.

The years 1860 to 1865, inclusive, were war time. Nevertheless, the fair was successful, a fact which was then commented on by historians as showing the remarkable resources of the state. The fairs were held as follows: 1860, Elmira; 1861, Watertown; 1862, Rochester; 1863, Utica; 1864, Rochester; 1865, Utica. Distinguished men were infrequently at these fairs because they were occupied elsewhere. The Rochester fairs showed splendid receipts and the cereals were unusually prolific in these war-time years. At the 1862 fair Ezra Cornell, who was the president of the society, made his offer of a large sum to establish a college, which later resulted in Cornell University. At the 1865 fair, Governor Fenton, Generals Hooker, Butterfield, Patrick and Dennison and Ex-Governors King and Seymour were present.

In 1866 the society pursued investigations abroad. The state appropriated $5,000 to make trials of implements. The fair was held that year at Saratoga, with Governor Fenton present, and the next fair was at Buffalo. The report of the society shows that the average yearly expense for ten years had been $13,618.08 and the average income, $14,511.57, the average yearly premiums had been $4,572.45, and the assets had grown from $3,771.59 to $12,910.51.

The 1868 fair held at Rochester was profitable. In connection with the fairs, the society had evening agricultural discussions. It held similar discussions at its winter meetings and collected statistics of benefit to the farmers. At Elmira the next year the attendance in one day was estimated at 25,000. The fair in 1870 was held at Utica where a sum exceeding its assets, at this time $20,000, was received. The premiums had grown to $8,007.12. The next year, when the society went to Albany, it had several experts in its employ collecting material of benefit to the farmers, to say nothing of its numerous voluntary essays and other contributions to agricultural science.

The next few years the fair was held as follows: 1872, Elmira; 1873, Albany; 1874, Rochester; 1875, Elmira; 1876, Albany; 1877, Rochester. In 1872 a new system was adopted whereby the fair was held at certain fixed points, upon permanent grounds. By authority of the legislature, Chemung County bonded itself for $50,000 in 1872, with the provision that the fair be held there once every three years for twelve years and as often thereafter as at any other place. Of this sum, $20,500 was spent for fifty acres of land and the rest given to the society for permanent buildings, upon which $38,417.78 was spent that year. In 1873 the experiment of a seven days' fair was tried at Albany. There was a deficit at Rochester in 1874. The society had arranged with local societies in these two cities for permanent grounds.

The fair was then held as follows: 1878, Elmira; 1879, Utica; 1880, Albany; 1881, Elmira; 1882, Utica; 1883, Rochester. In 1877 the legislature appropriated $10,000 to help the fair, but the governor vetoed the bill. The state, however, furnished the premiums and an annual appropriation thereafter. In 1884, the fair was at Elmira; 1885, Albany; 1886, Utica. The experiment of having a seven days' fair beginning in one week and ending in another was tried successfully. In 1887 the place was Rochester; 1888, Elmira; 1889, Albany.

After long consideration, February 25, 1889, the executive committee voted to accept the offer of Syracuse citizens, giving the society the perpetual use of one hundred acres of land (the present site). Subsequently the society bought three and a half acres at $300 an acre and fifteen acres at $600 an acre. Here the fair was held permanently for the first time in 1890. The live stock buildings were considered the most complete in the country. It was the largest exhibit ever made in the state, there being 5,096 entries in the catalog. Senator Chauncey M. Depew was the orator on this occasion. The total expenditures that year were $112,620.61, of which $6,966.82 was for construction, $51,865 for buildings and $10,372.38 for land and surveys. The society now had 660 annual members and 123 life members.

The fair continued to be held annually in August or September under the auspices of the society, with large attendance and a huge exhibition list, numbering 8,171 entries, for instance, in 1895, until 1899, when the state took over the institution which it has since conducted through a commission. This step was taken because the society had encountered adversities which it could not overcome. The state had made appropriations to help the fair, but under its own control these have increased.

During the time it has been located at Syracuse, the fair has grown yearly in size, importance and amount of money involved. A half-mile race track has grown to a mile track with Grand Circuit meetings; there are magnificent grand stands, numerous new buildings and constantly increasing exhibits.

For several years the commission had felt that the success of the fair would justify the construction of permanent brick and concrete buildings, laid out in accord with a definite, harmonious plan, with landscape features.

NEW YORK STATE FAIR
SYRACUSE, N. Y.

PLAN FOR NEW YORK STATE FAIR GROUNDS.

Lieutenant-Governor Bruce and later Lieutenant-Governor Chanler were earnestly in favor of the adoption of such a plan. When, to meet the needs of the fair, it became necessary to build a new and larger Liberal Arts Building, it was generally felt that only after such a general plan had been adopted should the state be asked to spend a large sum in this way. Governor Hughes, who, like his predecessors since Governor Flower's day, was a guest at the fair, felt this so strongly that he vetoed the appropriation for this much needed building in 1907 and asked the special session of the legislature of that year to make an appropriation for a commission to call for plans in competition. An appropriation of $10,000 was made, of which $6,000 was turned back into the state treasury; a competition was held and the plans of Green & Wicks, architects of Buffalo, were accepted, and later received the approval of the legislature. The legislature at its next session made an appropriation of $225,000 for the new Liberal Arts Building, the first to be constructed in accordance with this general plan, and this building was dedicated at the fair of 1908, a great one-story structure with two wings, 160 by 500 feet, having 90,000 square feet of floor space, constructed wholly of steel, brick and concrete and of a design which will make it fit in harmoniously with the other buildings. This building was dedicated by Governor Hughes during the fair.

The commission erected in 1909 race horse stables, State Institutions, Grange and Dairy buildings at a cost of $210,000, under chapter 160, Laws of 1909. The total cost of the new state fair, to be constructed in accordance with this plan, as shown in the diagram facing page 506, is $1,800,000. This will provide for improvements and these principal buildings:

Administration Building, 5,000 square feet, $40,000; Manufactures Building, 90,000 square feet, $225,000; live stock pavilion, 184,000 square feet, $180,000; show horse pavilions, 75,000 square feet, $150,000; race horse pavilions, 75,000 square feet, $75,000; covered judging ring, 63,000 square feet, $157,000; Dairy Building, 24,000 square feet, $61,000; Horticultural Building, 62,000 square feet, $156,000; Poultry Building, 20,000 square feet, $24,000; Art Building, 10,000 square feet, $34,000; Woman's Building, 10,000 square feet, $34,000; State Grange Building, 9,000 square feet, $25,000; restaurant, 10,000 square feet, $40,000; model farm barn, 5,000 square feet, $10,000; open air theater with peristyle, 20,000 square feet, $41,600; sanitary buildings, $10,000; Police Building, 4,000 square feet, $10,000; railroad stations, $25,000; State Institutions Building, 21,000 square feet, $64,000; Domestic Arts Building, 21,000 square feet, $64,000; band stands, 10,000 square feet, $12,000; main entrance, $25,000; fountains, pools, canals, etc., $25,000; grounds, grading and planting, $125,000; roads and walks, $50,000.

Under an act of 1908 the fair is now controlled by a commission composed of seven members, five of whom are appointed by the governor for three years, the lieutenant-governor and commissioner of agriculture being members ex-officio. The members of the commission are: Lieutenant-Governor Horace White, Commissioner of Agriculture Raymond A. Pearson, Charles A. Wieting, Ira Sharp, Abraham E. Perren, DeForest Settle and William Pitkin. Stanton C. Shaver is secretary and Albert E. Brown treasurer.

DEPARTMENT A—FARM, BREEDING AND DRAFT HORSES

Commissioner in Charge, RAYMOND A. PEARSON, Albany.

Superintendent, F. D. WARD, Batavia.

Clerk, JOSEPH DAVIS, Albany.

Although it always has seemed difficult to get out a good exhibit of farm horses at the state fair, in 1910 a vigorous effort made along this line met with marked success. Heretofore all horses have been shown in the horse show, but this year the farm, breeding and draft classes were put into a separate department and they were shown in a newly constructed ring in front of the grand stand, adjoining the ring used by the horse show. Valuable exhibits came from the West, as well as from points in the East and it was stated by many that these horses formed the best collection of farm, breeding and draft classes ever shown in the East. The horses were stalled in the new racing stables at the rear of the fair grounds, this arrangement being necessary temporarily because of the changes of buildings and plan of the grounds. The location was the only drawback suffered by this exhibit. Another year accommodations for the horses, even though they must be somewhat poorer, should be provided near the center of the grounds. Eventually this department will become one of the most useful in the state fair. The farm value of horses on farms in New York State is estimated at nearly $90,000,000. There are about 200 owners of pure-bred horses within New York State. These and large breeders in the West, who have been favorably impressed by the start we have made, are sufficient guarantee for the exhibits of the future, providing satisfactory classes and prizes are offered. The amount for premiums should be doubled.

HORSE SHOW DEPARTMENT

Commissioner in Charge, ABRAHAM E. PERREN, Buffalo.Secretary, SAMUEL W. TAYLOR, New York City.

The horse show upheld its reputation as an attraction for those who are interested in the finest specimens of harness horses. There were 48 exhibitors with 480 entries in this department and each day, except one when there was rain, judging was in progress constantly from 11 a. m. until about 6 p. m.

Most of the exhibits came from New York City and vicinity and more would have been secured but for the large expense entailed in transporting the horses of this class and the costly outfits. It is suggested that the horse show could be materially improved by increasing the premiums, so that these will more nearly equal the expense of exhibitors who are successful in making winnings.

DEPARTMENT OF RACES

Commissioner in Charge, DEFOREST SETTLE, Syracuse*Secretary*, HENRY S. NEALLEY, Syracuse

A race meeting attracting the largest stables of light harness race horses in the United States and Canada, and producing highly interesting contests between the kings and queens of the turf, has for several years furnished a very strong feature of the New York State Fair. Crowds daily filling the immense grand stand and paddock, overflowing into the infield and scattering along the track fences for a distance of over a quarter of a mile, tell of the popular interest in this department. At few places in the country is the interest in racing as keen and few state fairs can boast of as big a revenue producing attraction.

The state fair track, pronounced one of the fastest mile circular courses, is regarded in the horse world as a powerful link of the Grand Circuit — the connecting link between the tracks of the East and those controlled by the larger racing associations of the West and South. To the state fair meeting come annually practically all of the leading campaigners and famous drivers handling the sensational performers of the light harness horse turf. From the half-mile track circuits in adjoining states are attracted the best of the smaller stables. New world's records are established, drawing the attention of horse lovers and representatives of breeding interests throughout the country. The meeting, of an unusually high standard from the opening to the close and filled with features brilliant and spectacular, furnishes pleasing entertainment for thousands, many from beyond the borders of the state, and produces a large portion of the fair receipts.

Within the borders of New York State are horse breeding establishments, representing investments aggregating hundreds of thousands of dollars, which depend for success—some for their very life—on the market for the light harness horse. The fair, in aiding in the promotion of all that makes the Empire State great, encourages an interest in the race horse and the roadster and helps the breeder. Incidentally, it strengthens a market for the farmer who raises hay, straw or grain.

In keeping with the perfect mile track is the remainder of the state fair racing plant. Fireproof, sanitary stalls, built under the "permanent grounds" plan, form an important part. An abundant supply of pure water and other facilities make the course ideal for trainers and campaigners of racing stables.

The present high standard of perfection in the racing department of the fair was only reached after a struggle extending over a long period, and through a study of racing and breeding interests, and a knowledge of its needs gained by those who have been in charge of the department for the past six years.

Twelve years ago the racing course at the fair grounds consisted of a half-mile track and the races were regarded for a time as inferior to those provided at some country agricultural fairs. So little interest did the meetings attract that it was questioned by the management whether they were necessary to the success of the institution. One year—1895—racing was suspended and the management was brought to a realization that, while no great crowds had up to that time been attracted to the fair, the races furnished one of the most popular features. When the state took over the plant from the New York State Agricultural Society in 1900 there developed a determination to improve the racing, the belief being that it would add to the popularity of the exposition and work an increase in receipts.

The year the state secured control of the fair plant the half-mile track was abandoned, and the first step toward making the state fair grounds an important racing center was taken in the laying out of a mile track. In 1905 there had been some improvement in the racing and increased interest on the part of the public, but the meeting was not regarded as important when compared with other mile-track meetings of the country. It was realized that membership in the Grand Circuit was necessary and a campaign for recognition was started. The stewards of the Grand Circuit were not inclined to look with favor upon our track but, by persistent effort and an awakening upon the part of the racing authorities of the influence of the state of New York, circuit dates were secured. With this advantage and by winning and holding the support of campaigners of race horses, the racing department of the fair developed until the meeting of 1910 was pronounced one of the most successful in many respects, if not the banner meeting of the year.

The program included many unusual features. Among the early closing events were the "Empire State," with a purse of \$10,000, and the fair's first futurity, the Horse World Representative Stallion Purse, an event of great interest to the breeders and of a guaranteed value of \$10,000. The meeting also added to turf history. A new world's record for trotting stallions was established by the Harvester, which, driven by Edward F. Geers, trotted in 2:01¼, and new world's records for the fastest fifth heat, the fastest sixth heat and the fastest seventh heat in a trotting race were made by the gelding, Demarest, the time of the heats being 2:06¼, 2:07¾, and 2:09. The state fair track also holds the world's record for the fastest mile by a trotter under saddle, made in 1909, when Country Jay trotted in 2:08 $\frac{1}{4}$, and for the fastest two heats in a race by a pacing mare, made at the same meeting, when Darkey Hal won in 2:03 $\frac{1}{4}$ and 2:02 $\frac{1}{4}$.

DEPARTMENT B—CATTLE

Commissioner in Charge, CHARLES A. WIETING, Cobleskill.

Superintendent, DORR McLAURY, Portlandville.

The exhibition of cattle in 1910 was larger than that in 1909 and in quality it was far superior to any ever shown, except in 1908, when we had the largest show of high-grade Holsteins ever made in this country. The cattle department is growing so fast that the present facilities are entirely inadequate for proper display. I would suggest to the commission that it use every endeavor to have the legislature appropriate sufficient money for the erection of the barns according to the new plan.

DEPARTMENT C — SHEEP

Commissioner in Charge, CHARLES A. WIETING, Cobleskill.Superintendent, LEVI A. PAGE, Seneca Castle.

The addition of a fourth division, and consequent increase of prizes made this year the largest show of sheep ever held at the state fair. Every class was well filled, the exhibitors were exceedingly well pleased with their treatment and all were satisfied that the judging was honorably done. The conditions of the sheep buildings are similar to those of the cattle buildings. There is not sufficient space to properly show such valuable flocks as were exhibited this year. The breeders of this state are worthy of better treatment.

DEPARTMENT D—SWINE

Commissioner in Charge, CHARLES A. WIETING, Cobleskill.

In 1909 we had the largest exhibit of swine that was ever shown in the East, temporary yards being placed about the grounds to care for the overflow which was equal to that which was housed. The treatment caused a great deal of criticism among the exhibitors and, consequently, the show in 1910 was much lighter. The quality, however, was kept to the top and great interest was manifested at the time of the judging, both among the exhibitors and the prospective purchasers. As there is no class of animals more valuable to the farmer and none so hard to exhibit as a hog, provision should be made for sanitary and sufficient buildings.

DEPARTMENT E — POULTRY

Commissioner in Charge, CHARLES A. WIETING, Cobleskill.

Superintendent, W. E. GILBERT, Syracuse.

As will be noticed by the prize money distributed, the poultry department is increasing every year. Some years ago this building was filled by poultry from a few single exhibitors. This year there was a very large increase of exhibits from individuals making a specialty of one kind. The competition was extremely strong and a ribbon won at the New York State Fair is now prized far above the money. The artificial pond in the center of the poultry house, filled with 200 specimens of wild fowl, attracted great attention and was commended by all. The new poultry house should be so erected that there will be room for poultry, pet stock and dogs; also, a room for the killing, picking and packing of poultry, thus showing the farmer how to prepare this important product for markets giving the highest possible price. In addition, it should include a lecture room with a seating capacity for at least 1,000 people, in order that the educational value of such a display may not be lost.

DEPARTMENT F—IMPLEMENTS AND MACHINES

Commissioner in Charge, IRA SHARP, Lowville.

Superintendent, A. M. SEYMOUR, Copenhagen.

The fair of 1910 showed the largest number of individual exhibits of farm implements and machinery ever shown at this state fair. Nearly every exhibit was a working one, propelled by electricity, gas or steam. Each day the spaces were filled with prospective purchasers until the closing hours. No portion of the fair seemed so valuable to the visiting farmer in need of improved, up-to-date methods of handling his crops. We need, at once, a building or buildings large enough to care for all these classes of exhibits, except traction engines and threshers. In a few years the present method of showing in tents should be a thing of the past. It is an impossibility at the present time to get an exhibit of high-priced carriages, or automobiles because of the danger of their injury by wind or rain. An electricity building should be erected.

DEPARTMENT G—DAIRY PRODUCTS

Commissioner in Charge, RAYMOND A. PEARSON, Albany.

Superintendent, GEORGE A. SMITH, Geneva.

Assistant Superintendent, W. E. GRIFFITH, Madrid.

Clerk, ROYAL GILKEY, Albany.

The magnificent new dairy building which was first used in 1909 was overcrowded by exhibits and visitors in 1910. Formerly this department was housed in a small wooden structure poorly adapted for exhibits representing the greatest branch of agriculture in New York State. The small quarters were not well filled chiefly because of the poor facilities provided. Last year more exhibits were offered than could be accommodated. The main room of the building, with large glass-front refrigerators around the outside walls, with an amphitheatre where working demonstrations were in progress most of the day, and with attractive exhibits of machinery and dairy supplies in adjoining rooms, constituted a popular part of the fair. The permanent booths erected at great expense by some of the machinery exhibitors, together with the power necessary to keep their apparatus in motion, presented a picture worthy of the great industry and of high educational value to the many visitors. Exhibitors reported good business results for the fair week. Charge for exhibit space outside of refrigerators was ten cents per square foot. For the first time, dairy exhibits were judged before the fair opened, and throughout the entire week the prize products with names and addresses of exhibitors were shown in the refrigerators.

The numbers of exhibits of dairy products during the last four years were as follows:

	1907	1908	1909	1910
Butter, all classes	165	218	230	276
Cheese, all classes	280	309	321	360
Bottled milk and cream, all classes...	...	15	17	40

An interesting feature of this department was the educational booth. Here demonstrations were given by experts; bacteria were plated, grown and counted; the new moisture test for butter and the salt test were shown; and charts containing important suggestions to dairymen were displayed.

DEPARTMENT H—FRUITS

Commissioner in Charge, WILLIAM PITKIN, Rochester.

Superintendent, C. S. WILSON, Ithaca.

That our annual exposition has come to be of great value in the promotion of the large fruit growing interests of the state is no longer a matter of doubt. The orchard men, the large state fruit societies, the county societies, the local granges, have become thoroughly interested, and are sending us exhibits large and small, which combined to make the fruit show at the 1910 fair the greatest ever known in this state, and one of the best ever exhibited in the country, if we may be guided by the many complimentary expressions of visitors, whose expert knowledge and experience make them competent judges.

The department was seriously handicapped by lack of room and proper modern facilities for displaying the enormous quantities of fruit sent in, and it is safe to say that when the new Horticultural Building is completed a fruit show second to none in the world can be put up.

Many changes have been made in the premium list since 1907, and in the methods of interesting exhibitors and the public. These changes have been carefully considered, and results show that they have met the approval of the exhibitors and patrons of the fair. Under the old method the full premium list was sent out during the summer to previous exhibitors and a few others, reaching them generally too late to secure their interest and exhibits. We are now sending out during March or April an advance premium list which covers only the fruit department, thus enabling the possible exhibitor to arrange his plans in advance. A large increase has been made in the mailing list, and circular letters are also sent to orchardists, farmers, county societies, and local granges, urging them to make some kind of an exhibit.

The premium list was formerly carried along from year to year with but few, if any, changes, and premiums were offered for many varieties of fruit which were either obsolete or so rarely found in orchards that no competitive interest could be aroused. These items have now been eliminated and the prize money so saved has been added to the well-known commercial varieties grown in every orchard, making it possible to arouse a keen spirit of competition and interest. It has also been made possible for the exhibitor to send his fruit to the fair by express or otherwise, and have it properly installed and displayed, if he cannot make it convenient to come and arrange it himself. The small entry fee on single plates of fruit has also been eliminated. These changes have added largely to the number of small individual exhibits, and every prize winner is a first-class advertising medium for the fair in his own neighborhood.

In 1907 it cost $2 to enter a plate of Baldwin apples, and the first premium was $1.50. In 1910 there was no entrance fee for a single plate of Baldwin apples, and the first premium was $25. The advantage of this change, considered from an educational view point, will be appreciated when it is seen that the number of plates exhibited in 1907 was only four, and in 1910 the number was sixty-seven, an increase of over 1500 per cent. A like increase is shown in other commercial varieties like McIntosh, King and Northern Spy apples, Bartlett pears, Elberta peaches, etc. Additional entries mean a greater number of exhibitors, more interest, and better advertising and attendance.

Several new classes have been added to the premium list. The classes for fruit packed in boxes were of the greatest importance in teaching the orchardist and farmer of New York State how he can best meet the competition from Oregon and Washington, whose fruit we now see so beautifully packed and displayed on all of our fruitstands. We had thirty exhibits in this class at our last fair, and none in 1907. Further efforts will be made to largely increase the exhibits and interest in this class.

Another new and popular feature, which was not seen in 1907, was the collection of fruit exhibited by the boys and girls of the state under sixteen years of age. They are the farmers and fruit growers of the future, and must be interested and instructed. With the exception of a few special classes, the competition is now confined to New York State fruit growers. It was found that we should not admit any competitive fruit from localities south of us, as by reason of the season and climatic conditions they would have an advantage which it was impossible for the orchardists of New York State to overcome, and it was felt that the premium benefits of the fair should go to our own state people. This change has added greatly to the popularity of the fruit department. The exhibits of nursery stock formed another new feature of the last fair, and aroused great interest and attention among the patrons. Both orchardists and farmers are always anxious to learn all they can in regard to the trees which they propose to plant, and the nursery exhibits were always surrounded by crowds of interested people.

Special attention has been paid to interesting county societies and local granges and securing their attendance and exhibits, for it means an interest on the part of every member of such a society. The number of these exhibits has increased from three in 1907 to eight in 1910, an increase of 166 per cent. Through the cooperation of the two large fruit societies of the state, the Western New York Horticultural Society and the New York State Association of Fruit Growers, we have been able to secure magnificent exhibits of the best products of the orchards of the state. The membership of these societies runs into the thousands, and the fruit for exhibition is donated by the individual members, evidencing not only an enthusiastic support of the societies, but a keen interest in the success of the state fair.

These exhibits have been in charge of committees headed by Secretary John Hall and F. E. Rupert, of the Western New York Horticultural Society, and Secretary E. C. Gillett and Mr. Schaubert, of the New York Fruit Growers' Association. The state fair offers these societies for the first and second premiums $350 and $250, and there is a generous spirit of rivalry between these two large organizations, not so much for the money value of the prize, but for the honor of winning the highest premium offered by the state fair. The honors have been quite evenly divided during recent years, being usually decided by a few points in the scale.

The following comparative statement shows the number of exhibitors and exhibits of (1) the county and grange societies, (2) the leading commercial varieties of fruit, (3) commercial packages, (4) nursery stock, in the years 1907 and 1910 and the percentage of increase.

One of the best evidences of the increased interest in the fruit department is shown by two items in the above table. In 1907 premiums offered were $2,665, and premiums paid $2,033, showing that $632, or 24 per cent. of the premiums offered, were not paid. This means that a large number of classes were not attractive and were not filled, and no display made. In 1910 the premiums offered were $3,599, and the premiums paid $3,450, showing that the amount unpaid was only $149, or 4 per cent. of the amount offered, indicating that nearly every class was attractive, and was filled with desirable entries.

The large annual exhibits of the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva have been of the greatest educational value, in that they have covered a very wide range of varieties, affording the orchardist an opportunity of informing himself in regard to any fruits with which he was not familiar. The experiment station, as well as the college of agriculture at Cornell University, has placed at our disposal its experts in fruits, vegetables, soils, entomology and other lines, and these scientists have been in attendance each day of the fair, prepared to answer questions and instruct the people of the state on the many problems arising daily in their agricultural and horticultural operations.

When the development of the state fair grounds reaches a point where available land can be definitely located, and if sufficient funds are obtainable, it is proposed to plant an experimental orchard, assign plots for the planting of small fruits, and agricultural products, and thus teach the beginner and others some practical lessons in agriculture and horticulture.

Many changes in the premium list and methods are under consideration, which it is expected will still further tend to increase the interest in and the educational value of the horticultural department.

DEPARTMENT I—FLOWERS

Commissioner in Charge, WILLIAM PITKIN, Rochester.

Superintendent, DAVID CAMPBELL, Syracuse.

This department has been one of the pleasantest show places and attractions of the fair, always thronged with visitors, who have been delighted with the display of the beauties of the floral world.

The present building is so unsuitable for the purpose, that it has been impossible to develop this department as rapidly as we could wish. In the new Horticultural Building, however, special arrangements will be provided for the flower department, and it is planned to offer a flower show second to none, which will be one of the greatest attractions of the fair. Hearty cooperation is already promised by prominent florists of the state, who are ready to take hold energetically and enthusiastically when the new building is completed, but whose aid it has not been possible to secure in the present inadequate and unsuitable building. The flower show in the new Horticultural Building will be the beauty spot of the fair grounds.

DEPARTMENT J — FARM PRODUCE

Commissioner in Charge, WILLIAM PITKIN, Rochester.Superintendent, JOHN McCANN, Elmira.

A special and successful effort has been made in the department to increase the interest and exhibits from the county societies and local granges, and many beautiful displays have been made by such organizations. This department receives great attention from the farmer and the market gardener, and is of the utmost educational value. It has been hampered by lack of room during the past two years, and is awaiting the completion of a new horticultural building, when it is safe to promise that still greater display will be made by the societies and granges, as well as by the individual exhibitor.

DEPARTMENT K — DOMESTIC

Commissioner in Charge, IRA SHARP, Lowville.
Superintendent, HOWARD MOORE, Cobleskill.

This department is located temporarily in a wing of the Manufacturers and Liberal Arts Building, until the new Domestic and Arts Building is completed. While the number of exhibits were many in excess of any before received and the quality far superior, yet the commissioner in charge feels it would be unwise to increase the number of exhibits or prizes in either the domestic or art department until the new buildings are completed. We will certainly be at a standstill for a few years because exhibitors of the finest goods in domestic art hesitate to send them where moths and dust may damage or destroy them. It would seem wise that the commission give this department its immediate attention.

MANUFACTURERS AND LIBERAL ARTS BUILDING

Commissioner in Charge, IRA SHARP, Lowville.

This building is 500 feet long by 120 feet wide and has two L's, each 50 by 75 feet. It was originally intended to provide for manufactures and liberal arts, but because of lack of other buildings many exhibits of agricultural implements have been provided for, causing a demand for much more space than is available. A machinery building, as contemplated, should be erected as soon as possible so that exhibits of manufactures, liberal arts and agricultural machinery may be better arranged and more liberally provided for.

STATE INSTITUTIONS BUILDING

Commissioner in Charge, RAYMOND A. PEARSON, Albany.

The State Institutions Building which was used for the first time in 1909 proved to be too small for exhibits offered in 1910. This building represents a new departure at the New York State Fair. Its aisles and exhibits were crowded almost every hour from the opening of the fair till its close. In this building many citizens and taxpayers of the state learned more about their state departments and institutions than they had ever before known.

The various exhibits were arranged to show the leading lines of work carried on by the different state agencies. The list of exhibitors is as follows:

New York State College of Agriculture.
New York State School of Agriculture at Canton.
New York State School of Agriculture at Alfred.
New York State School of Agriculture at Morrisville.
New York State Veterinary College.
Department of Agriculture.
State Water Supply Commission.
Lunacy Commission.
State Banking Department.
Excise Department.
Public Service Commission, District No. 1.
State Probation Commission.
Superintendent of Weights and Measures.
Prison Department.
Forest, Fish & Game Commission.
Fiscal Supervisor.
Thomas Indian School.
Syracuse Institution for Feeble-Minded Children.
Craig Colony for Epileptics.
New York State Reformatory for Women at Bedford.
Rome State Custodial Asylum.
New York State Training School for Girls at Hudson.
New York State School for the Blind at Batavia.
New York State Engineer and Surveyor, Barge Canal.
State Board of Health.

The New York State Experiment Station at Geneva exhibited a large assortment of fruits in the fruit building.

GRANGE BUILDING

Commissioner in Charge, RAYMOND A. PEARSON, Albany.

This building, which is connected with the State Institutions Building, was a popular resort for grangers, as well as for many others. It provided for basket parties and for visitors who wished to rest. Several general and educational meetings were held here. The women's work committee of the grange maintained a private room where persons temporarily indisposed were cared for, and another room was occupied by State Master Godfrey and other officers of the grange.

The popularity of the Grange Building and the great interest of members of this organization in the fair has led to the suggestion, which will probably be worked out a year later, that one hundred farm boys be brought to the state fair, where they may sleep in the Grange Building on cots to be carefully stored away each day so that the present available space for the day visitors may not be reduced.

WOMAN'S BUILDING AND HOSPITAL

Commissioner in Charge, A. E. PERREN, Buffalo.

Superintendent, HATTIE G. SCHWARTZ, Syracuse.

About 1903 a building was fitted up for the convenience of women and children who visit the New York State Fair. This building has proved more and more popular each year. It contains a rest room where popular concerts are given twice a day; a nursery where as many as 150 babies have been cared for in a day; an auditorium, with a seating capacity of 400, where programs are presented every day by the various women's clubs of the state; and an emergency hospital having a staff of two physicians and two nurses and an ambulance. During the 1910 fair several accident cases were cared for in the hospital, as well as a large number of cases of temporary weakness and indisposition.

In maintaining the high standard of the women's building the purpose has been to educate the women visitors in the work of clubs and societies, to provide them with information which may be of practical value in their homes, and with new thoughts which they may take back to brighten the lonely winter days.

Thousands of women who visit the building are appreciative and grateful for the comforts provided for them. But now the number of visitors has so greatly increased and the building has become so crowded that this important branch of the State Fair is not able to accomplish all it ought; and enlarged and better adapted facilities are earnestly recommended. There is a growing demand that the state acknowledge the progress of woman's influence in all institutions and provide means for her further advancement. The new building should have a rest room to replace the one now in use which is packed almost to suffocation on heavy days of the fair, even standing room being at a premium. A nursery several times as large as the one now used is needed and it should be provided with hygienic equipment, good ventilation and ordinary comforts. More toilets are desired but if they cannot be had at once those in the present building ought to be overhauled. The hospital should be made larger and, perhaps most important of all, the auditorium should be enlarged and properly ventilated and furnished.

TRANSPORTATION DEPARTMENT

Commissioner in Charge, IRA SHARP, Lowville.

The loading and unloading of heavy exhibits from docks which are entirely inadequate (although they are much larger than ever before) makes the cost of the transportation department far greater than it would be if the facilities for handling were increased. The fair takes upon itself the transfer of every exhibit from the cars to the locations on the grounds or in the buildings and returns the same to the docks for shipment at the close of the fair. The commission has been charging at the rate of fifty cents a load each way, but I would recommend that this price be increased to one dollar per load each way for the heavier machinery. The commission does not desire to make any money from this department but expects that the department will pay for itself.

PRIVILEGES

Commissioner in Charge, IRA SHARP, Lowville.

The privileges at the New York State Fair are sold on a flat rate basis, and, considering that this fair is not running a night show and continues but six days, the total amount received, $9,050, exclusive of the midway, seems to be a fair consideration. These privileges will bring much higher prices as soon as the fair is equipped with a proper building and locations can be arranged in other places than tents. It has been the policy of the commission to sell the frankfurter, soft drink, score card, pop corn and ice cream privileges to the highest bidder. The lunch privileges are sold at an upset price of $125. Special privileges sell from $25 to $100, according to the locations and the style. The sale privileges in the Manufactures and Liberal Arts Building are sold at twenty cents per square foot, floor space. The commission must bear in mind that this fair has eliminated the sale of anything that looks like a game of chance and, while it has improved the quality of the privileges, it has depleted the treasury of at least $2,000 a year. With the improvements that are expected within the next two or three years, the privileges should reach $20,000.

FORAGE DEPARTMENT

Commissioner in Charge, IRA SHARP, Lowville.

The privilege to supply hay, straw and grain to exhibitors is given to a responsible local dealer with the understanding that he must furnish all grades of feed at the market price. The conduct of the business during the past year was excellent. A little fault was found with the prices by one exhibitor, but upon investigation it was found that the owner had been misinformed by his caretaker. I am convinced that our policy of handling this department is wise and should be continued.

MIDWAY

Commissioner in Charge, CHARLES A. WIETING, Cobleskill.

The location for the midway in 1910 was entirely unsatisfactory. There was an up-to-date, harmless line of shows. This year the midway was run on a percentage basis and netted $2,557.47, which was more than was expected, in consideration of the location and the inability on the part of the show people to place their fronts attractively. As soon as the permanent plan is farther along, the midway should be given permanent headquarters of size sufficient to enable the commissioners to secure the largest and best shows that are on the road.

POLICE DEPARTMENT

Commissioner in Charge, WILLIAM PITKIN, Rochester.

This department should be regarded rather as one concerned with the safety and comfort of the people than as one for the detection and control of the criminal element. The patrons of the fair need but little police regulation. While the duty of the department is to maintain order, prevent violations of the law, and arrest offenders, its work in this direction is not burdensome or strenuous. The principal work is to safeguard the visitors at the fair, to supply them with information and guidance, and in every way to look after their comfort and welfare. This has been done to the satisfaction of the commission and the public. The force of the department for 1910 consisted of a chief, and assistant chief, a clerk, a justice of the peace, and a patrol force of sixty day and eleven night men. There was a slight increase in the force of day men over that of the previous year. The change in rules granting admission to the paddock and infield without extra charge largely increased the number of people in those sections of the grounds, and the number crossing the race track during the races, necessitating additional officers to thoroughly guard the danger points.

No serious accidents occurred during the fair, the large crowds being well handled and controlled.

It is found that while the total attendance at the fair increased from 142,000 in 1907 to 196,000 in 1910, an increase of 38 per cent., the expense of the police department decreased from $3,124 in 1907 to $2,561 in 1910, a decrease of 18 per cent.

Some additional changes in methods and safety appliances are now under consideration, which will add still more to the effectiveness of the department, and the safety, comfort, and convenience of the visiting public.

PASSENGER RATES

Commissioner in Charge, A. E. PERREN, Buffalo.

Three and three-quarters cents per mile, one-way distance, for the round trip, plus admission fee of 50 cents, from points in New York State and border points in Pennsylvania; tickets including admission to the fair to be sold and good going from New York City and points within 40 miles thereof, September 10, 11, and 12, and from other points, September 10 to 17, inclusive; all tickets to be good returning to reach original starting point not later than September 19.
