LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL.

U. S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE,
BUREAU OF STATISTICS,
Washington, D. C., June 30, 1912.

SIR: So frequent are the demands for a list of the agricultural fairs of this country that this bureau feels more than justified in offering the accompanying compilation for publication. The labor and expense required were not excessive and the list, subject to revision every few years, will doubtless constitute a permanent publication of the department.

It is respectfully recommended that it be published as Bulletin 102 of this bureau.

Very respectfully,

VICTOR H. OLMSTED,
Chief of Bureau.

HON. JAMES WILSON,
Secretary of Agriculture.

LIST OF AGRICULTURAL FAIRS AND EXHIBITIONS IN THE UNITED STATES.

BRIEF HISTORY.

ANCIENT ORIGIN.

The agricultural fair of the United States, generally exemplified by the county fair, had its remote origin in the temporary assemblages of traders or producers in the ancient world for the purpose of selling their wares to the customers who assembled to meet them. Many of these fairs of the ancient pattern are found in Europe and Asia, somewhat changed, perhaps, from their original nature, but yet remaining fairs for purchase and sale.

In the course of time the ancient fair was changed into a fair at which there were competitive exhibitions of domestic animals or various products, with an underlying purpose of sale of the articles exhibited and particularly the more excellent ones. This has especially been the case with live-stock "shows" in England.

BEGINNINGS IN THE UNITED STATES.

The agricultural fair began in this country fully divorced from commercialism. It was purely educational in its purpose and was intended to stimulate farmers to improve their live stock, their domestic manufactures, and their agriculture. Several prominent agricultural associations were established in the eighteenth century for educational purposes, but without holding fairs or exhibitions. The fair had an interesting origin early in the nineteenth century.

AT WASHINGTON, D. C.

The agricultural fair of the United States had its inception in the District of Columbia. In 1804 it was suggested by Dr. Thornton, the first Commissioner of Patents, that the ready sale of cattle and domestic products in the National Capital could be promoted by the holding of fairs or market days, as in England, his native land. The idea met with warm approval on the part of the citizens, and the municipal authorities passed an act establishing semiannual fairs. An editorial article in the National Intelligencer of October 17, 1804, spoke of the coming fair as offering advantages to purchasers and to settlers, "while at the same time it could but prove equally beneficial to the agricultural interests of our country."

The fair was held on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, "on the Mall on the south side of the Tiber, extending from the bridge at the Center Market to the Potomac." "It was a decided success," and before the next one was held an attempt was made by additional legislation on the part of the city government to increase its usefulness by appropriating $50 toward a fund for premiums. The citizens raised by subscription an equal sum, so that at the fair which began on April 26, 1805, "premiums to the amount of $100 were awarded to the best lamb, sheep, steer, milch cow, jack, oxen, and horse actually sold." A third fair was held in November, 1805, after which these market fairs were discontinued.

"SHEEP SHEARINGS" AT "ARLINGTON," VA.

More closely related to the inception of the fair movement in this country were the annual "sheep shearings" established and continued for a dozen years by George Washington Parke Custis, at "Arlington," his estate opposite Washington, D. C., on the Virginia side of the Potomac.

In 1866, Ben: Perley Poore, a noted writer of that time, in writing of these sheep shearings, comments that "those associated with him [Mr. Custis] in after life in the United States Agricultural Society will not wonder that large collections of prominent men used to accept his hospitable invitation to be present at these gatherings, where he entertained his guests beneath the marquee used throughout the Revolution by his illustrious guardian, George Washington." A program of one of these rural festivals, as published in a Georgetown newspaper of the day, follows:

PREMIUMS AT ARLINGTON ON THE 30TH OF APRIL, 1809.

SHEEP.

For the best tup-lamb, of 1 year, a silver cup; value, $60.

For the best pair of ewes, of same age, a silver cup; value, $40.

PRINCIPLE ESTABLISHED.

To the sheep which shall possess the best form, and yield the most and best wool in proportion to its size, the premium will be adjudged.

To the man (being a native American) who shall clip a fleece in the shortest time and best style, by clipping after the English fashion, $5.

MANUFACTURES.

For the national military dress, or uniform of Morgan's riflemen, with a complete statement of the expense accompanying the same, $20.

For the best 5 yards of cloth, yard wide, and composed of cotton and silk—the silk to be derived from articles which have been worn out, as gloves, umbrellas, etc.—$15.

For the best blanket of common size, $10.

For the best 5 yards of flannel, to be all wool, $10.

For the best ball of wool yarn, weighing 1 pound, which shall be spun to the greatest fineness on a wheel, to be ascertained by weighing any 10 yards in the ball, $5.

To that family, in the county of Alexandria, who shall make it appear that they have made the greatest quantity of wearing apparel of domestic manufactures, and used the least of foreign importations, the largest prize fleece.

To that family, in said county, who shall prove that to a given number of female children, the most are good spinners, the next largest fleece.

To the cultivator of the soil, in said county, who shall prove that he has manured most land from his own resources, in the last 12 months, toll free at the Washington Mills for one year.

WASHINGTON, November 20, 1808.

It is very probable that the “sheep shearings” at “Arlington” were the germ of the first agricultural fair in this country, organized in 1809, when its first fair was held.

COLUMBIAN AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY, WASHINGTON, D. C.

In 1809 a number of gentlemen interested in agriculture, residing in Maryland, Virginia, and the District of Columbia, after several meetings, organized the Columbian Agricultural Society. The first exhibition was held at the Union Hotel, Georgetown, on the 10th of May. It was (said the National Intelligencer of the following Friday) “attended by a numerous assemblage of members of the society, among whom we noticed the President and his lady, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of War, the comptroller, register, etc., and many other ladies and gentlemen of respectability. This is the first exhibition held by the society, which bids fair to exceed anything of the kind in the United States, and promises to be of great utility in the promotion of the agricultural arts, and particularly of the domestic manufactures of cotton, wool, and flax, by exciting a competition which can not but be productive of good effects.

“There were exhibited a great number of sheep of the best breeds, among which were several half and three-quarter breed merinos. At half past 11 o’clock the room for the exhibition of domestic fabrics was thrown open, when many specimens were displayed highly honorable to the industry and ingenuity of those who produced them, and gratifying to those who have at heart the cultivation of the resources of the country. Some specimens of diaper, bed ticking, and cotton bagging were particularly admired as equal to any imported. The result of the day was highly pleasing to all concerned; and the auspicious commencement of this patriotic institution furnishes another, in addition to the many evidences already existing, of the public spirit of the District."

The second exhibition of this society was held in what was then known as Parrott's grove, on the heights of Georgetown. The National Intelligencer of November 22, 1809, says of it: "The second semiannual exhibition of the Columbian Agricultural Society was held at Georgetown yesterday. A large concourse of members and visitors, with their ladies and families, were present. Among the visitors were the President and family, the Postmaster General, the treasurer, the auditor, the Russian minister, mayor, Mr. Barlow, Mr. Irving, and many other ladies and gentlemen of respectability. Owing to the late inclemency of the season, but few cattle were exhibited; but, to compensate for this deficiency, there was a great quantity of cotton and woolen domestic fabrics, comprehending much good cloth, blanketing, carpeting, hosiery, and so forth. The blanketing appeared to be most admired, though much praise was given to several pieces of cloth and carpeting."

The third semiannual exhibition of this society was held May 16, 1811, in Parrott's grove, and in its report of the exhibition the National Intelligencer of the next day says: "It was attended, as usual, by several hundred of the most respectable ladies and gentlemen in the District and neighboring counties of Virginia and Maryland, among whom were the President, heads of departments, and generally all the prominent officers of the Government, the French minister, and our minister to France. The show of sheep—merino, mixed blood, and natives—was said to be as numerous and respectable as any ever seen in the country. The manufactures, exclusively domestic, attracted much attention. The premiums were distributed as awarded by the judges. The pleasantness of the day, the nature of the ground, shaded with forest trees; the fragrance of the flowers, with the various entrances to the inclosure decorated, the presence of the music, and the good humor and gaiety which it contributed to diffuse, rendered the meeting unusually agreeable."

On November 20, 1811, the fourth semiannual exhibition of this society was held in Georgetown, and was fully reported in the National Intelligencer. The following is an extract from the report: "The day was rainy, and therefore unfavorable to the exhibition, especially of cattle. Of above 100 that had been brought into the town and neighborhood, not more than 6 or 8 were exhibited, the state of the weather rendered it so inconvenient. The cattle exhibited attracted general notice, especially an extraordinary steer, raised by Mr. Steinberger, of Shenandoah County, Va. This animal is believed to be the largest ever raised in Virginia; it is supposed he will weigh 2,700 pounds on the hoof and near 2,000 pounds net beef."

The show of domestic manufactures could not but be pleasing to every person present. The specimens of woolen cloth, blankets, flannels, kerseymeres, carpets, fancy patterns, cotton cloths, etc., evinced the progress which our citizens are making in this branch of economy. Many of the articles were judged to be equal, some were thought superior, to imported fabrics of the same kind."

The fifth semiannual exhibition of the Columbian Agricultural Society was held in Georgetown, May 20, 1812, and the sixth one was held November 18 in the same year. Unfortunately the war with England overshadowed everything else and, as the time had expired for which the society had been organized, it was dissolved.

BERKSHIRE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY, PITTSFIELD, MASS.

It has generally been believed that the first agricultural fair in this country was that of the Berkshire Agricultural Society at Pittsfield, Mass., in 1810. The fact remains, however, that the Berkshire Agricultural Society held its first fair before any other present-existing agricultural society.

CHANGES IN CHARACTER OF FAIRS.

MOVEMENT AWAY FROM EDUCATIONAL PURPOSES.

In the course of time the educational features of the agricultural fair in this country were compelled to admit the attraction of horse racing, and eventually, so prominent did horse racing become, that much opposition was developed, and the opposition was not entirely to gambling on the races. Racing, however, was not suppressed, and it is still a prominent feature of agricultural fairs.

Another intrusion into the educational purposes of the fair, becoming prominent long after horse racing had become so, was composed of shows in small tents, open-air exhibits for amusement or excitement, various gambling games, among which, at one time, was the "shell game," and numerous devices of "fakirs" to amuse and excite, if not fleece, the attendants at the fairs.

These features of the agricultural fair, in the course of time, dominated the educational features in many instances, and it is only in recent years that efforts have been made to reduce these distractions and restore the agricultural fair largely to its original purpose.

A difficulty that the managing fair committee has had to face has been, as it still is, the raising of sufficient income to pay premiums and other expenses. Partly for this reason fair managers have made the most of their opportunities to provide amusements for the purpose of raising revenue, and, in the case of many fairs, they have not refrained from pursuing this policy to the limit.

NUMBER OF AGRICULTURAL FAIRS AND EXHIBITIONS.

GEOGRAPHIC DISTRIBUTION.

The societies that hold regular fairs and exhibitions, in the list following, have been classified and counted, with results that may be found in the accompanying table. It appears in this table that the total number of fairs in the list is 2,740. Among the geographic divisions, the largest number, 764, is found in the East North Central group of States, and the West North Central group of States follows in order with 573 societies. Third in order is the Middle Atlantic group of States with 372 societies; fourth, New England, with 229 societies; fifth, South Atlantic, with 211 societies, after which follow the East South Central States, with 198 societies; the Pacific States, with 146; the West South Central States, with 140; and the Mountain States, with 107 societies.

CLASSIFICATION BY AREA COVERED.

In asking the societies to supply the facts required for this list, they were requested to specify their geographic scope, and the answers have been tabulated as given. The various totals of the reports place the number of societies holding international fairs and exhibitions at 102; the national ones at 129; the interstate ones at 200; the State ones at 155; the intercounty at 466; county, 839; local, 250; and still there remain 599 for which no report was obtained.

CLASSIFICATION BY KIND OF EXHIBIT.

The associations in this list have been classified according to the kind of their exhibit. Those that hold fairs or exhibitions devoted to general agriculture number 1,647; horticulture, 80; floriculture, 13; corn, 4; live stock, 22; horses, 81; poultry, 685; poultry and pigeons, 19; poultry and pet stock, 86; poultry, pigeons, and pet stock, 21; dogs, 74; apiculture, 1; and dairy products, 7.

PERCENTAGE TABLES.

The numbers of the associations, classified according to the geographic scope of their fairs and exhibitions and also according to the kind of exhibit, have been converted into percentages, which may be found in the accompanying tables.
