INTRODUCTORY.

It is no stretch of imagination to say that Belmont Park, the future "Home of the Thoroughbred," for which The Westchester Racing Association stands sponsor, is the most magnificent race-course in the world.

Nature, money and brains have been united into a combination which has given to the American public an ideal resort for the "Sport of Kings."

The vastness of the grounds, on which are erected the necessary impressive buildings, can be better appreciated when it is stated that it is a tract of land covering a space of over six hundred acres. This in itself gives a faint idea of the immensity of the undertaking which has transformed a vast area, studded with trees, &c., and of sandy loam, into a magnificent roomy pleasure park, the like of which no other country can boast.

The entrance to the grounds proper is lined by numerous rhododendrons, and is thickly studded, on each side, with rows of stately pine and chestnut trees, which, in a measure, prepare the visitor for the grandeur of what is to come. The quaint old historic, castle-looking mansion to the right of the entrance, nestling among the trees and shrubbery, is part of the ancient Manice estate, once the property of millionaires of New York and Long Island.

This mansion, which will be the future home of the exclusive Turf and Field Club, and which lies on the outskirts of a wood, is surrounded on three sides with elaborately laid-out gardens and scores of hothouses containing numerous rare plants of great beauty.

All events at this race-course will be run the reverse way to that with which the public is familiar, i. e.: all turns will be made to the right, in lieu of to the left. This wise move was adopted so as to permit a more advantageous location of the various buildings, and also to fulfill the requirements as to the direction of the sun's rays. West of the Grand Stand, and a few feet beyond the finish, or judges' stand, is

THE CLUB HOUSE, Which occupies a ground area of 10,100 square feet, and is a three-story structure of light-colored brick and Indiana freestone. Its frontage is 111 feet, with a depth of 91 feet. Two wide piazzas or observation balconies afford a grand view of all the tracks and grounds. It is most elaborate in its appointments and is, without doubt, superior to any similar building extant. The first floor contains a kitchen, café and committee-room; the second floor, a ladies' dining-room, 75x36 feet, serving-parlor and retiring-rooms; and the third floor a gentlemen's dining-room, dormitories, etc. A unique innovation consists of two elevators, one for freight and the other for club members and their guests.

An interesting historical feature to the private entrance, through which the Club House is reached, are four obelisks or monoliths which, for about one hundred years, stood at the portals of the Charleston (S. C.) Jockey Club grounds. These were presented to Mr. August Belmont. Inscribed tablets have been placed in the panels of these columns.

THE GRAND STAND, Built of iron, steel, brick, stone and cement, has a comfortable seating capacity for over 11,000 persons, and is, of course, the largest building on the grounds. It embodies original up-to-date ideas and designs which are foreign to all such similar structures. In order that everyone should have an uninterrupted view, particularly of the entire homestretch, it is not quite parallel to the track, but slopes slightly eastward. Ample protection against inclement weather is provided by an extension of the roof 31 feet beyond the front edge. On this roof are additional seating accommodations, from which a magnificent view of the entire plant is obtained.

A novel feature is a mezzanine gallery running along the entire length of the center, on which is a row of boxes with individual chairs for the use of the public; these, in turn, open on to a promenade (from eight to ten feet wide) which runs the entire length of the stand. On this promenade, but to the rear, are the kitchen, serving-rooms, dining-rooms, waiting-rooms, storage-rooms, coat-rooms, ladies' parlors, ladies' ante-rooms, and an emergency-room. In connection with the latter are first aid appliances and trained nurses.

There are also additional private boxes for the exclusive use of club members, which occupy over 100 feet of that portion of this stand nearest to the Club House, the latter being connected with it by a short span or bridge.

The ground floor is given over to lunch counters, bar, toilet retreats and police headquarters, etc.

In front of and at the easterly and westerly ends are depressions three feet deep by about twenty feet wide, paved with concrete. This arrangement is to discourage crowds from standing directly in front of the stand, as these depressions form unsatisfactory points from which to view the races. The concreted ground, however, in the center of the stand, slopes back gradually to the Rotunda, to which it leads. The lawn in front of the stand has a sloping tendency to the main track, varying in width from 100 to 150 feet.

The Nile-green color with which this and the Field Stand are painted is particularly effective and pleasing.

THE FIELD STAND

Lies directly east of the Grand Stand, and is 250x95 feet. It is constructed of steel, brick and concrete, and will hold 4,000 persons. The accommodations are somewhat similar to those on the ground floor of the Grand Stand.

THE ADMINISTRATION AND JOCKEY BUILDING

Is an attractive two-story structure, in close proximity and west of the Club House. Its interior is fitted up with special regard to the comfort and requirements of the stewards, officials, horse-owners and jockeys.

The first floor contains the secretary's or clerk of the course's room, fitted up after the style of a banking house; there are also jockeys' dressing-rooms, which contain 116 lockers, and lavatories, bathrooms, etc., etc. The second floor is laid out for the exclusive use of the handicapper, Jockey Club officials, with a very spacious Board room for the Stewards.

A broad balcony encircles this building, which commands a fine view of the grounds and surrounding country.

THE SADDLING PADDOCK

Is constructed of yellow pine, topped by a slanting slate roof. Its dimensions are 295x83 feet. It contains 36 stalls, 18 each on the easterly and westerly sides, and is charmingly situated in the center of a number of massive trees, about a couple of hundred feet immediately to the rear of and midway between the Club House and Grand Stand. To and from the track the horses will traverse that portion of the grounds, which lies between the Club House and Administration Building.

THE ROTUNDA,

Or public financial concourse, is a one-story structure, and is the first which greets one after entering the Park from the trains or highway. Its approach from the main entrance gates is by a walk and roadway 650 feet long by 170 feet wide, which includes two roadways, a covered way and a sidewalk on each side. The covered way is a cemented walk 20 feet wide. Steps on either side of this building lead from the entrance grounds to its roof, on which are two parallel walks which, in turn, lead directly to the Grand Stand (the latter is also reached by either traversing or going around the Rotunda to the lawn in front of the Grand Stand).

The Rotunda is built slightly under but otherwise clear of the Grand Stand. Its shape is nearly circular, 249x207 feet. It affords superior roomy facilities for the purpose intended, and is open on all sides. It has concrete flooring, and skylights to ensure ample light.

THE STABLES,

Of which at present there are 40, are situated at the eastern and northwestern ends of the grounds, and will house between 800 and 1,000 thoroughbreds. The roof of each extends 14 feet on all sides, so as to permit of horses exercising in bad weather. Sleeping quarters for attendants and stable hands are built over the stalls. There are public and private kitchens galore.

GENERAL CONTRACTORS FOR THE VARIOUS BUILDINGS AT BELMONT PARK.

BELMONT PARK OFFICIAL SOUVENIR.

SIX RACECOURSES Are laid out on this splendid property. The main one is $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles in circumference, with a perfectly straight chute of seven furlongs at its southeasterly end. The turf course, immediately within the first, is $1\frac{3}{8}$ miles around; the third, inside the second, has a circuit of $1\frac{1}{4}$ miles, and is for steeplechase events, but which, in addition, is connected with a couple of other courses which wind at random, as it were, over the other three, making it possible to give jumping events of any distance. At present there are five hedges, two "Liverpools," two "banks," and one water jump, the latter being immediately in front of the Grand Stand. The finish in all cases will begin from the northeasterly end, then south, into the $1\frac{3}{8}$ mile or turf track. Additional obstacles will be added in the near future.

The sixth course is of one mile, with two slight extensions, one at the northwest end and the other at the southeast. It is attached and tangent to the main track.

It has been built for the novel and special use of a training ground, and also for the "trying-out" of yearlings. Its southwesterly end connects with the main track at the latter's southeasterly point. Races for the Belmont Cup will start from the southeasterly extension up to the north turn, down its western stretch, then on to the main track, into the homestretch to the finish, a distance of $1\frac{3}{8}$ miles.

Experts agree that the original soil of this land, a sandy loam, which has been used in the construction of the three courses on which flat races will be run, will result in ideal tracks. The soil being very porous, it was not found necessary to lay under-drains, but "catch basins" at frequent intervals along the inner rails are connected with the main drainage system.

Clever sprinkling devices have been constructed for watering, which do away with the antiquated, familiar methods of horses and sprinkling carts.

ADDITIONAL NOVELTIES. These consist of three subterranean concreted passages, one of which leads visitors, by a gradual upward slope, to the entrance of the grounds from the train terminals; the second is for the use of the public to reach the infield, so as to relieve any overcrowding of the Grand Stand and lawn, and the third subway, situated about midway under the $\frac{7}{8}$ -mile chute, is for the use of stable hands and tradesmen. By means of the latter two, everyone, other than those whose duties necessitate their being there, will be kept off the surface of the tracks.

Electrical wires have been installed throughout the property, so that the Stewards, in their official capacity, and in the administration of their duties, will be able to communicate with every portion of the Park. This applies also to the starting points, no matter from what portion of the grounds the thoroughbreds "line up."

In the present case, comparisons not being odious, and official data having been obtained by correspondence, the contrast between the Grand Stand at Belmont Park and similar structures in other countries will prove of interest:

Belmont Park (Seating capacity) (over)	11,000

TRANSPORTATION FACILITIES

For reaching Belmont Park have been perfected by the Long Island Railroad for the quick handling of enormous crowds by the frequent running of special trains. A four-track connection has been made with the main line, which is increased to ten rails at the terminal. Each track is 800 feet long, with corresponding concrete platforms covered by galvanized iron roofs. These land passengers in front of and a few steps from the main entrance. It will also be possible to reach the course from the Bridge via

A Yearling Race.

A little tear and a little smile	The little tear he got the start;
Set out to run a race—	We really feared he'd win
We watched them closely all the while—	He ran so fast, and made a dart
Their course was Baby's face.	Straight for her dimpled chin.

But somehow—it was very queer;
We watched them all the while—
The little, shining, fretful tear
Got beaten by the smile.

HERMIS

IN the Fall of 1901 Mr. Henry M. Ziegler, proprietor of the Columbia Theatre, Cincinnati, ran and won a race in that district, with a pretty shifty horse. In its second attempt it was beaten in very easy fashion by Hermis. Both Mr. Ziegler and his trainer, Charles Hughes, were so impressed with Hermis's performance, and that there was a grand future for him, that Mr. Hughes went immediately to Lexington to see the then owner, Mr. H. A. Engman, from whom he bought the animal for Mr. Ziegler for $3,300. The horse was then retired for the Winter. The splendid care which Mr. Hughes gave him, Mr. Ziegler claims, was the means of his proving such a great horse the following year. He started in the American Derby at Chicago in 1902, but getting off very badly was pulled up. Mr. Ziegler claims he was the best horse in the race and should have won. He was then sent to Brighton Beach and Saratoga, winning every race in which he started after the Derby (nine in all). After his victory in the Travers Stakes, Mr. Ziegler sold him to Mr. L. V. Bell for $15,000.

H. M. Ziegler

Mr. Ziegler has taken to the breeding of his own racehorses and will add more mares to those he has already purchased.

He has some particularly promising two-year-olds at Sheepshead, with which he confidently expects to win a goodly share of races on the Metropolitan tracks.

The ground is in bronze on a pedestal of black and red marble, on the front panel of which is a suitable inscription by the donor. AUCTION POOLS.

Up to and including the year 1876, speculation was conducted altogether by the system of auction pools. Very few of the present generation being familiar with its modus operandi, the following may be of interest:

In addition to the auctioneer, there were two assistants, one the cashier, the other recording clerk.

The auctioneer invited bids for the privilege of naming and purchasing "first choice." As an example, refer to the race run in 1870, and for which event $400 was paid for Kingfisher (who was first choice, and, therefore, the favorite, because no other horse sold for a higher figure). This $400 was handed to the cashier by the person who bid that amount, and who received, in return, a ticket bearing the horse's name and amount he paid.

The auctioneer would then ask: "How much am I bid for second choice?" Foster and Stamps were both second favorites, or choices, because they sold for $200 each. The pool was now $800. The third choice was Middy, which sold for $190 (pool $990). Of the remaining three horses no one, evidently, thought any single one good enough to be bid on, so Nellie James, Eldorado and the Canary Bird colt were sold as one horse and known in turf parlance as "the field." This "field" brought $195 (the person purchasing it had, of course, three chances of winning). Total pool, $1185.

All horses being disposed of, that particular pool was closed and the auctioneer began all over again.

From the grand total of each pool 3% was deducted for expenses, and the remainder went to the persons holding Kingfisher tickets in each pool.

The above-described pool for the year 1870 shows the following results:

Kingfisher sold for.....	$ 400.00
Foster sold for.....	200.00
Stamps sold for.....	200.00
Middy sold for.....	190.00
The field (3 horses) sold for.....	195.00
	<hr/>
	$1185.00
Deduct 3%	35.55
	<hr/>
	$1149.45
Deduct cost of ticket.....	400.00
	<hr/>
Net profit	$ 749.45

Or $759.45, against $400 (a little less than 2 to 1).

BEWARE OF UNRELIABLE BOOK-MAKERS.

In the whole world there are only a few bookmakers with reputations that are valuable assets.

Germany has one or two; England as many more; America one.

These five are to bookmaking what Dunlap and Knox are to hats; what Worth and Redfern are to gowns; what Chickering and Steinway are to pianos. Their names have a real value. They stand for best. They stand for perfect workmanship, highest quality, durability, reliability. They stand for self-satisfaction, which has an unmeasurable but unmistakable value to the owner of a Knox, a Worth or a Chickering.

In the United States Tapley is the only bookmaker whose name conveys to the booklover a real, added value. This name has been so frequently used by publishers and agents of The Century Dictionary and Cyclopedia and Atlas, Jewish Encyclopedia, the Historians' History of the World, Beacon Lights of History and other great works that it has come to be a guarantee of the best in bookbinding. A booklover asserts that his choice volumes are "Bound by Tapley" with the same satisfaction that the perfectly dressed gentleman displays the label in his latest-block hat. He has the satisfaction not only of knowing that the materials are of the highest quality and the workmanship above reproach, but also a justifiable pride in the realization that no one can possess a better bound book.

That these statements are true you may easily demonstrate. At least one of the sets of books above mentioned must be in your library. Take one of the volumes—no matter which, for all of Tapley's work is uniform—examine the materials used in the outer coverings; note how flat and true the covers lie; observe the care with which the corners are put on; the back rounded and embellished. Lift the covers and see how firmly the leaves are fitted to the binding; with what skill the inner covers are finished. Lastly, note the ease with which the book opens to any of the pages—not with that crackling which frightens you into thinking the whole book is coming to pieces, but—easily, quietly, smoothly.

Then glance along your library shelves at many of your

OLD FRIENDS THAT NEED NEW DRESS

and for whom—for old friendship's sake—you would never think of furnishing anything but the best. Send them to us; tell us how you wish them dressed; what materials shall be used; what ornamentation (your monogram, coat-of-arms, crest, initials, name) we shall use, and, in a reasonable time you, too, will find pleasure in the assertion "Bound by Tapley."

Perhaps you have a manuscript you want printed, or a booklet you want prepared and published. We are equipped to make books from the very beginning with the same care and skill that we bind them.

THE BIGGEST WIN OF MY LIFE;

OR,

HOW I BEAT THE "BOOKIES."

The barrier went up and off they started.
From the rest of the field a "dark horse" parted.
At every stride he went further away
From the favorite. His backers, all in dismay,
Saw him trailing behind in the beaten bunch,
His "jock" whipping, spurring, his back all a "hunch";
As for me—I screamed, shouted and yelled
Like a crazy man, or as one impelled.
I had 2,000 to 10 on the one in the lead.
(More money than I thought I ever would need.)
"Come on! Come on! you son-of-a-gun!"
I kept shouting until the darned thing won.
With eyes all ablaze and crushed card in hand
I rushed to the ring, to the bookmakers' stand.
I stood in line, awaiting my turn; when
I reached the cashier I said, "2,000 and 10."
He quickly counted the yellow-backed "dough,"
Which he handed me carelessly, dontcherknow.
Wondering what I would do with the heap—
I suddenly woke up from a Welsh-rarebit sleep.

—JOHN GOODWIN.

HOW TO LOSE MONEY AT THE RACES.

- ALWAYS give more than 2 to win 1 on a horse, particularly if it is very sure to win.
- ALWAYS play two horses, straight and place each.
- ALWAYS play one horse straight and another for a place.
- ALWAYS plunge on good things (cinches).
- ALWAYS place very little money on a horse whose price is anywhere from 10 to 100 to 1.
- DO NOT limit yourself to an equal amount on each horse, i. e., should you win $100 or $200 for a $10 bill, be sure that you invest all your winnings on the next race.

Valuable Recipes for Use in Racing Stables.

CLEAR SOUP.—To two quarts of boiling water add a pint of cold water. Let simmer for at least four hours, stirring briskly all the time. Add pepper and salt to taste. Care should be taken that it does not burn.

PLUM PIE.—Get some dough, hammer out a front and back breadth. Line a dish with silesia, put in a veneering of dough, fill the dish with cough drops, put on the top crust, featherstitch around the edges and bake in a plumber's furnace.

POUND CAKE.—Mix up some flour and things, put them into a dish, bake for a while, then screw in the handle, commence to pound and serve before eating.

STOMACH CAKE.—Line a stable boy with green apples and cucumbers.

CALF'S FOOT JELLY.—Get a Chicago calf—they have the largest feet—cut off the calf, which can be used for making hash or chicken salad; cut the nails, wash the feet, thicken with glue, add a few molasses, strain through a cane-seated chair, pour into a blue bowl with red pictures on it; set it in the shade to get tough. Then send it to your mother-in-law.

ICE CREAM.—Dry a piece of ice in the sun, stir in some cold cream or vaseline, fan it until it freezes, garnish with Christmas greens.

HASH.—Chop up everything, add some ready-mixed paint, and fry in a wash-boiler until the potatoes become a golden brown.

AN INEXPENSIVE DISH.—A five-cent plate.

TO MAKE ICE.—Procure a piece of ice, put it in the oven and reduce it to water; put the water in a pail and swing the pail around rapidly until the water freezes.

COFFEE JELLY.—Buy a pound of coffee; grind to a fine powder. Wash a soiled tablecloth or piece of unbleached muslin until it is thoroughly clean. Buy another half pound of coffee and blend with the first pound. Pour into individual coffee cups and set on ice. Serve when it becomes hard. (For sick people this is an excellent substitute for calf's-foot jelly.) Some people add coffee to this, but that is a matter of taste.

HORSESHOE FRITTERS.—After making a dough, as explained on page 136, roll out and place on a clean floor. Secure a gentle thoroughbred, lead it into the kitchen and let it walk over the dough, so that it may cut out pieces the shape of its shoe. Add grated horse chestnuts and bake in a fast oven (1 : 38 3-5 to a mile).

TO REMOVE STAINS.—To remove fruit stains from a tablecloth, saturate the cloth in benzine, kerosene or coal oil, sprinkle with gunpowder; apply a lighted match.
