

beloved Ireland. I am convinced that if one of your students had spent a week or two there he could reap a rich harvest; and there is good accommodation to be found for at least 150 miles between Dublin and the South shore.

You kindly offer to lend me some of your publications relating to N. Am: Botany. I should be very glad indeed to receive any such as now that I am settled at home I intend to compare myself to Britain and N. America. My brother whom you saw is well and at present in Edinburgh. He has much delighted with his trip and with the kindness which he everywhere experienced. Believe me very dear Sir

Yours most truly Jones

W. Marshall to Johnston desirous to ask you how he can send you a copy of his History of the Eastern Shores. and if the Remembrance

Berwick
Dumfries

My dear Sir

I should have replied to you of last August and for your kind attention brother - But I did write to you months ago you that I had intended which I had in contemplation when I returned to retiring from the Army own into civil life little in future be in of residence as I have with partnership with in London who has a large practice here - I regret that I was not able to your personal acquaintance

W. Marshall

Maclagan, Philip Whiteside. 1853. "Maclagan, Philip W. Dec. 7, 1853." Asa Gray correspondence. Senders McA-Ma

View This Item Online: <https://www.biodiversitylibrary.org/item/224822>

Permalink: <https://www.biodiversitylibrary.org/partpdf/250508>

Holding Institution

Harvard University Botany Libraries

Sponsored by

Arcadia 19th Century Collections Digitization/Harvard Library

Copyright & Reuse

Copyright Status: Public domain. The Library considers that this work is no longer under copyright protection

License: <https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc-sa/4.0/>

This document was created from content at the Biodiversity Heritage Library, the world's largest open access digital library for biodiversity literature and archives. Visit BHL at <https://www.biodiversitylibrary.org>.