does not appear to be over-doing, a criticism I fear might be lodged against us, and because it will give many friends of the Herbarium outside of the committee a chance to help it. If this plan fails, we shall still be at liberty to devise some other.

Very truly yours,

Groce what

Two hundred and eighty five Commonwealth Avenue

February 12, 1914.

Dr. George G. Kennedy, Readville, Mass.

Dear Doctor:

I had a talk with Dr. Robinson yesterday over the telephone and find him impressed with the idea that had occurred to me, namely, that we were doing more than we ought to do.

I told him what I had said to you and that I would again bring up the subject for your consideration. We left it that you should give five and I ten on condition that the balance should be contributed by others. I told him before he did anything to consult with you and that I would do the same.

I cannot rid myself of the feeling that this is a better plan than that you and I should contribute the whole amount. It is so because it

White, George R. 1914. "White, George R. 12 Feb 1914." George Golding Kennedy correspondence

View This Item Online: https://www.biodiversitylibrary.org/item/173449 Permalink: https://www.biodiversitylibrary.org/partpdf/285468

Holding Institution Harvard University Botany Libraries

Sponsored by IMLS

Copyright & Reuse

Copyright Status: Public domain. The BHL considers that this work is no longer under copyright protection.

This document was created from content at the Biodiversity Heritage Library, the world's largest open access digital library for biodiversity literature and archives. Visit BHL at https://www.biodiversitylibrary.org.