

Charlotte, N.C.

26, Oct., 1883.

Dear Mr. Davenport,

I send back Leavenworth's letter, which I have read with interest. It seems he did again visit the Huachuca Mts. and his "Conservatory Cañon"; and that he proposes to explore some "unknown mountain range" next year. It may be that he takes a clue from our new Chiricahua, and wants to go among the desert Mts. ~~at the~~ southwest from Tucson, as I do.

I have two copious letters from Rusby, now in Franklin, N.J. Under the circumstances his success was good, 400 species for his det., and many n. sp. will collect no more in the West, but intends to travel "in other lands" in quest of medicinal plants.

Your success in photography leads me to hope that I can succeed.

Davy wishes to leave early next month, after which I shall be confined at home by chorea; but, if the camera comes before he leaves, I shall endeavor to go again to Smuggler's Notch to photograph its peculiar scenery.

Have you noticed the article "Vacation in Vermont" in the last number of Harper with illustrations of Mt. Mansfield and Smuggler's Notch?

Yours faithfully,

C. G. Fingle.

Pringle, Cyrus G. 1883. "Pringle, C.G. Oct 26, 1883." George Edward Davenport correspondence

View This Item Online: <https://www.biodiversitylibrary.org/item/175072>

Permalink: <https://www.biodiversitylibrary.org/partpdf/290811>

Holding Institution

Harvard University Botany Libraries

Sponsored by

IMLS

Copyright & Reuse

Copyright Status: Public domain. The BHL considers that this work is no longer under copyright protection.

This document was created from content at the Biodiversity Heritage Library, the world's largest open access digital library for biodiversity literature and archives. Visit BHL at <https://www.biodiversitylibrary.org>.