PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sep 29 1895

My Dear Deane,

You are rec'd - and contents noted. It troubles me to hear of another man hustling when I have received a share of Comparative rest. I feel as Dore represents the Wandering Jew at the Day of Judgment; while other sinners are being poked down to torment and flames - I am glesping kicking off my boots, "Let the galled jade wine, my mittens are un-worn!" On the first day of the term - Sep 18, I was so ill with a cold that I had to take to my little bed. I was - as in the thirteenth stage of man, sans taste, sans smell, sans most every thing. Now, with the exception of my aconoid and ever-present neck ache, I am doing well, I have 72 men in my class. We enter 236, Every thing is looking, I am in my new car-live - worms, a great improvement on the old, he expect to get wholly settled in the Fleet, in a month. Yesterday I had a drive and noted the late astera, great favorite of mine, like the girls, they grow prettier every year — God Bless 'em (both!).

Mary & her mother and some other young folks, have gone out to the park this fine day. I am writing ex cathedra Collusii,

How sad and sudden poor Riley's death on the bi-cycle, it especially shocked me as I had spoken to him so lately in Springfield, Do mind your wheel - and take care of yourself. 'Tis an ironmuring way of sacrificing a volatile life, he could ill spare poor Riley.

With best wishes & kind regards to Mrs. Deane - Always your friend

W. W. Bailey
