CARM CONFERENCE

42 anthropologists and computer scientists and experts from eight North American and European countries recently met at Field Museum to discuss the need for and the best way of achieving an inventory of ethnological collections of all museums of North America.

The conference, which was called by the Committee on Anthropological Research in Museums (CARM), was organized by Dr. Donald Collier, chief curator of anthropology at Field Museum, and sponsored by the WennerGren Foundation for Anthropological Research, New York. CARM is an official committee of the American Anthropological Association.

The committee decided to have a pilot computer project in a large museum, and Field Museum was recommended as the site for such a program.

Women's Board Elects President

Mrs. Edward Byron Smith was elected president of the Women's Board of Field Museum at the Board's annual meeting recently. She succeeds Mrs. Hermon Dunlap Smith, president of the Board since its founding in 1966.

As the new president of the Board, Mrs. Smith automatically becomes a Museum Trustee, with full voting privileges.

A charter member of the Women's Board, she has been extremely active in its programs, serving as vice president during the past year.

Among her many other interests, Mrs. Smith also is vice president of the Alliance Française of Chicago and board member of the Passavant Hos-on China and Tibet," Webber said.

Prior to joining the Field Museum staff, Dr. Starr served as a graduate assistant in the anthropology department at Peabody Museum of Natural History, Yale University. He has been a lecturer in Asiatic Archaeology and Ethnology at the University of Chicago since 1959.

The author of numerous publications on Asian prehistory, contemporary Chinese culture and Chinese rubbings, Dr. Starr is currently completing a full-length book titled Black Tigers: A Grammar of Chinese Rubbings.

As Director of the Milwaukee Public Museum, Dr. Starr succeeds Stephan Borhegyi who was killed in an auto accident in September, 1969.
